WHO STOLE ALL THE WEALTH?

THE PATRIOTIC British author Emily Brontë who 100 years ago wrote the masterpiece of literature "Wuthering Heights" she said; "The tyrant grinds down his slaves and they don't turn against him, they just crush those beneath him."

Exactly 100 years ago in Emily Brontë's time the British Empire covered a third of the world, but two ridiculous world wars for reasons historians cannot adequately explain, and waffle about an Archduke in Austria and agreements with Poland, explanations which just don't stack up, have depleted Britain and other nations' wealth but made the bankers rich beyond belief, this money stolen from us is actually loaned back to us at high interest by the IMF ( International Monetary fund) which is really Rothschild who stole the money in the first place.

Communism was instigated as a way of robbing the people and keeping the wealth in the hands of the few, and one of the rules of Marxism is that all wealth is owned ultimately by the state.

Many British people have a high percentage of their wealth tied up in a motorcar, but the government secretly changed the laws so you no longer own that car, you are now only the registered keeper, and because the government now owns it they can take it and crush it if they want and they often do.

All property is theft, runs the Marxist proverb and now all property in Britain has been confiscated, you are no longer the owner of your house you are the occupier, because the government owns everything you have and even you as a person and the banks own the government that owns you, this is what Hitler fought to smash.

Before each major war we have a severe depression as the banks claw in every penny and every cent from the people, and we are now informed Fort Knox the US governments giant secure piggy bank where they hold the people's money, is empty, the German people have asked for their gold back from the US, and the USA has been fudging and it is said the US have spent others wealth too.

British author Emily Bronte was so loved that when the traitor Guy Burgess who sold Britain to Rothschild and the communists dashed off to hide in Russia, he took with him Bronte sister's books and a dress and bonnet from that period, homosexuality was seen as an abomination in Russia and they confiscated his suitcase.

The Daily Mail of Feb 20 2013 had an article claiming that more than 600,000 Londoners had been squeezed out during the past 10 years, the Census figures show White people left London, that's the population of Glasgow pushed out by newcomers, this shows that in every major English City white people are now in a minority, Paul Wilson of the ex-service men's association made a distinction between English white people and coloured and said English people are Anglo Saxon, how could they be any other colour other than white?

The Daily Mail article went on that only 45% of people in England are white and it's going down by the year, Left wing activist Carl Markus said the English person is the new Red Indian, despised and outdated in their own land, the government only wants newcomers, fresh people and mixed nationalities for the planned new cosmopolitan era.

What would Emily Bronte have said?
