THE E.E.C. OR EUROPEAN UNION HAS ITS OWN FLAG; twelve golden stars upon a blue background. It is frequently to be seen nowadays flying from town halls and public buildings. This same flag appears as the logo on all properties and projects which receive European funding, even on Protestant church properties which have taken aid from Europe.

The prevailing religious ethos of the European Union is Roman Catholic; reflecting the vast numerical majority of Roman Catholics within the borders of its member states, such as Italy, Spain, France and Portugal. Students of Bible Prophecy know that the aim of the European Union is to destroy the national sovereignty of the member states including Great Britain and submerge them in a United States of Europe, as the first step in fulfilling the centuries old conspiracy to create a one-world government, economy and religion.

Bearing all this in mind we find the following interesting information regarding the design of the flag or banner of the European Union.

In August 1987 I happened to be standing outside the Carmelite convent in Lisieux. A man came up to me and said:—

I come from Strasbourg, I was given the responsibility of designing a flag for the European Community. Inspired by God, I devised a blue flag on which are displayed the twelve stars of the Miraculous Medal of the Rue du Bac. Hence the flag of Europe is the flag of Our Lady — a blue background and the twelve stars of Apocalypse XII. I am telling you this, lather, because you are wearing the little cross of the Blue Army on your chest. 'Hie adoption of the flag could not have been more officially ratified. All the European nations were involved in the vote, the English were hesitant. No one knew where the idea of twelve stars on a blue background came from. Finally everyone signed. Pierre C'aillon from *The Patriot

Now what is this "miraculous medal" of the Rue du Bac?

In 1830 Catherine Laboure, a twenty-four year old postulant nun of the Sisters of Charity claimed to receive a number of visions or apparitions at the "mother house" of her Order, the Convent of the Rue du Bac. The superstitious young woman later to be made a Saint of the Church of Rome, even ate a tiny piece of the surplice of the founder of her Order in the hope of receiving further visitations.

During one of these she claimed that the Virgin Mary appeared to her and gave her the exact design of a "miraculous medal" to be cast in her honour. Soon millions of medals were in circulation, and it was claimed they had cured plague and even given victory to the French armies in North Africa
