FASCIST OPINION.

SHALL WE LOSE ULSTER

NO SURRENDER?

As Ireland is so very much in the public eye at the moment, I feel that a few words of explanation as to the conditions which obtain before and during a "free" Irish election.

The English are, by nature, a law-abiding nation. In England, if you want the public not to use a certain path, you merely place a small stick or cord across the said path, and all pedestrians, meekly turn aside and go another way. In Ireland, should you wish to block a path, you need to put up barb wire barricades, and then you will probably find that some bright lad has produced wire cutters and forced his way through!

The law, in Ireland, must be enforced with a very strong hand if it is not to be broken and the ordinary conventions of life count for nothing with a people who are half dreamers and half unsentimental materialists.

Only those who have been through the intimidation which is practised at a present-day Irish election can have any idea of the conditions.

It is not easy for a woman living alone in an isolated cottage to go to the polls and vote as her conscience dictates, if she knows that the I.R.A. have her under observation, and that it is more than probable that the night before the election her cow will be maimed, her windows broken by revolver shots, and that she herself will be hustled and probably injured as she attempts to enter the polling booth.

I was living just inside the Ulster border during the first post-war election, and was responsible for bringing many trembling elderly women voters to the polls. Being loyalists, they would have stood no chance of recording their votes had we not fetched them from their outlying homes, and literally fought our way through the members of the I.R.A. who lined the steps of the school where the voting was taking place, with the avowed-intention of preventing loyalists from recording their votes.

The outline of a 4.50 colt, worn beneath a thin coat is a useful barrier against terrorism, and the only one which gains- any respect from the lawless element in Ireland, where pacifism and conciliation are merely counted as weakness.

The I.R.A. are numerous, but, unless they- have greatly changed since the last "bad times" they are not over courageous. I have been one of a party of four ambushed by "twenty picked men" of the 4th Northern Division I.R.A., and have heard that same twenty running like rabbits in the darkness when we stopped the car in which we were driving and chased them up the road, without firing one shot!

I have been escorted by twelve armed men of the I.R.A., party who were raiding my father's house in 1920, across my own yard in order that I might unlock the garage door for them to put the car out or order. Twelve armed men to guard one woman, and double that amount left in the house to point rifles at the heads of one unarmed retired Colonel and his wife, and to terrorise the young maids and a child of three years old!

That is the vaunted I.R.A., whom the toleration merchants of England are contemplating as masters of John Bull's other Island ! Surely it is time that the British Lion stirred from his slumbers, and showed the watching nations that he is still strong and vital, and has not degenerated into a toothless, clawless mongrel, ready to slink away at the crack of a rebel's whip!

The cry "Up de Valera!" is heard in Ireland to day. I say "Up England!" Reconquer Ireland, and restore peace and prosperity, happiness and laughter to her oppressed people. At the bottom of his heart the most fervid Republican knows he was better off under British rule. If the British troops were to march into Dublin to-morrow, they would be welcomed with open arms and prayers of thanksgiving would be offered up in every church and chapel, that the rule of the place seeker and terrorist was over.

We loyal Irish love our country with a fervour that seems ridiculous to the English mind. To us, the very soil seems different to that of other countries. We love her for her mistakes and shortcomings, for her inconsistencies and her soft, energy-sapping beauty, but loving her un-selfishly, we know she is not fit to govern herself. Only by keeping her place within the British Empire can she fulfil her destiny. We, as well as de Valera want "One and undivided," but we want her one and undivided WITHIN THE BRITISH EMPIRE. The Six Loyal Counties of Ulster were saved from the wreck, and now there is once more some talk of throwing them overboard to make a Republican holiday.

The men of the 36th (Ulster) Division went "over the top" during the great war crying "No Surrender," and while there is breath in our bodies we, who survived them, will say the same. Irish Fascist.

The Dangers of Tariffs

The National Government was returned by the Electorate upon a policy of Tariffs on foreign goods. These Tariffs, which have not yet materialised, were designed to protect Home Industries against foreign competition.

The present Cabinet is not a business one and contains but very few members who understand our Trades. Should these men follow the lead of Mr. Winston Churchill and blindly impose advalorem duties to benefit one trade, they may further endanger our already impoverished workers.

The Protectionists point proudly with some justification) to two trades; (artificial silk and internal combustion (engineering-which have materially benefited under "McKenna" duties, but they do not stress the damage done to others.

Let us consider the motor car first. From 1918 to 1925 eight cars out of every ten used in Great Britain were of foreign origin. Our home manufacturers had struggled to compete with the cheap American and European products, but were fast becoming submerged.

The only British Company to pay a regular dividend during this period was Messrs. Rolls-Royce Ltd., many others failed or became moribund.

A deputation of manufacturers presented their case to Mr. Churchill, and in 1925 he decided to impose a thirty-three and one third per cent. tax on all imported cars and all component parts of engines, chassis, and bodies.

In the seven succeeding years our manufactures have made great strides, and conditions in the industry have improved a hundred fold. Home motorists are buying home-made cars and the foreigner has been forced off our market.

Sir William Morris has turned the little country village of Cowley, Oxon, into a manufacturing town. He has bought up and reconstructed the affairs of Messrs. Wolseley. He has established workshops in the Midlands and has placed thousands of men and women into good regular employment.

Sir Herbert Austin has trebled his Birmingham factory, and created world-wide interest in his products. Various other firms—Hillman-Humber, Rover, Singer, Leyland; Crossleys, Armstrong Siddeley, etc.—have grown beyond recognition, and British cars are selling abroad and gradually becoming preeminent on the World's Markets.

Ford and Citroen, in self-defence, have had to erect huge factories at Dagenham and Slough respectively, and find employment for English mechanics to turn out cars that, before the duties were imposed, were made by Americans and Frenchmen. So far, so good.

The motor car industry in annually consuming thousands of tons of iron and steel. To smelt one ton of iron ore, ten tons of coal have to be burned. Logically then, one would presume that our coal and iron mines are working full time, and the miners flourishing. Such is not the case. The coal mines of Great Britain have never been in a worse condition, and the miners and their families are gradually starving at the pit heads. Not one iron ore mine in these islands is working full time and 90 per cent of them have been closed for many years, and never can be reopened.

When Churchill protected the car he allowed German and Belgian iron and steel to come into this country in bar and ingot form free of duty. The European miner works long hours for small wages, and their Governments subsidise their Industry. When Churchill protected cars, he damned our coal and iron trade. Our British cars are made of foreign metal.

At the same time (1925) Churchill decided to place a thirty-three and one third per cent duty on all imported manufactured artificial silk goods, and all the raw materials used in their manufacture.

Prior to this protection, little or no artificial silk had been made in English factories. To-day, Britain leads the world in this trade; her goods are the best and the cheapest on the market.

British artificial silk, underwear, hosiery, curtains, upholstering materials, dress materials, and readymade dresses, costumes and jumpers, are preeminent. They are in universal every-day use.

Vast sums of money have been sunk in this industry, huge factories have been erected and many thousands of workers have found employment in a trade which, prior to protection, was virtually non-existent. Once again the Tariff minded politician Crows.

For many decades Lancashire-made cotton goods were the pride of Britain and the necessity of the world's peoples. The mills of Burnley, Preston and Blackburn supplied the needs of many races, the mill-worker was happy and contented — Lancashire flourished. To-day Lancashire is a county peopled by despondent, disgruntled, workless and hopeless men and women. Her trade has gone, her homes are bare. Protected artificial silk has replaced unprotected cotton.

Before voting again, ask your candidate his knowledge of our trade conditions, and his attitude towards Tariffs. Area-Commander Whitmore

Wake-up Youth!

MR. HARRY POLLITT is again active in the East-End, and on the 1st January, at the Shoreditch Town Hall in the course of a strong revolutionary speech, said:—

"The Russian Revolution owed the greatest debt to the wonderful work carried on by the "Pravda" (U.S.S.R. Newspaper). What the Russian Bolsheviks did, we British Bolsheviks will do."

This most clearly identifies the Communist Party with Bolshevism. This will surely shock our pacifist and internationalist friends. However since internationalism and Bolshevism are not desirable to Britain, we ask for greater efforts on the part of our readers to recruit still more to the banner. There are clear indications that the Socialist, I.L.P., and the Communist parties are again "getting together" in yet another combined effort against the State.

Mr. A. L. Rowse, in an appeal to youth (see "New Clarion" 31st December), said:—

"There is no way other than that of the working class movement in Europe. I refuse to make any distinction, whether it is Labour Party or I.L.P., Social Democrat or Communist; it is all one movement tone, and what is outside is either purposeless. or working for destruction."

This man, and many other of a similar type have great influence over youth, because of their seemingly reasonable demands and the usual cloak of "intellectual pacifism" which covers nearly all the enemies of the State to-day.

Yet, while day by day, these enemies of the State consolidate their positions, little or no steps are taken to ensure even the loyalty of the State employee. By the Press, Cinematograph, Radio, by example and. by fashion the Marxism gospel is spread.

Youth of Britain, make this spring a time of re-awakening Britain.

Face the trials and difficulties con-fronting our country with courage, with the faith of Youth.

Join our Legions; show that you reject the theory of Marx and Engles. Show you fellow citizens that .you are ready to fight for the rights that your fathers died for!

Remember always, "Duties before Rights."

The Empire's Need of Loyal Ulster

I write this in a spirit of humility, mitigated by hope for the future, for I am English In 1919, the English betrayed their trust to the Irish loyalists; and now is their opportunity to redeem their former broken pledge.

On Saturday, January, 29th, the centenary of the birth of General-Gordon, the hero of Khartoum was celebrated, and this brought back to the minds of citizens of the Empire the criminal blunder which sent this man and his native troops to their deaths. We, in the present generation have committed the same criminal blunder, and sent hundreds of loyal Irish men and women to their deaths, and worse than death.

Now that de Valera is on the point of proclaiming an Irish Republic; and Lord --Craigavon has demanded that Ulster be allowed to assert her rights to remain within the British Empire, the British Fascists have offered their services to help the Six Loyal Counties.

Now is the time to redeem our honour, and render all aid in our power to our brother and sister loyalists across the Irish Sea.

I appeal for public support from all classes of the community, and would remind our readers of the Jew, Karl Marx's famous saving, "Ireland is the Achilles heel of England." To those who are deaf to the call of honour, this last may appeal.

Since Cromwell's time we in England have not experienced the horrors of civil war. We have yet to see peaceful homesteads destroyed by fire at night; such as was the case at Altnaveigh, Co. Armagh, near the border town of Newry, where every loyalist's home was visited by the I.R.A., who left a trail of death and wrecked homes behind them, or to have a repetition of the terrible scenes of rape, torture and murder which took place during the Irish troubles.

History- repeats itself, and is about to do so again. The loss- of the Irish Loyalist would make certain of Moscow's greatest aim—the destruction of Christianity and the British Empire.

I ask all English readers to- help clear the stain from our shield, and take up the fight for the retention of loyal Ulster in her place in the Empire which she has so well and truly earned. R, L-O.

British Fascists at the German Embassy

ON the occasion of the rise of Fas-cist power in Germany, four members of the Executive Committee of the British Fascists called at the German Embassy and were received by the First Political Secretary.

Mutual interest in fighting: international Communism was the cause of the visit.

Poultry and Cabbages

THE much abused farmer has a great deal these days, with which to contend, and "Commissions," usually composed of townees do not assist the problem. It is all very well to talk of thousands of bushels of corn, etc., but the real problem in the ordinary British farmer's life is the inability of being certain of a market for his smaller produce.

The price of labour is so high that he is obliged to cut down his employed labour, thereby producing fewer commodities, and even these may be left on his, hands.

An ordinary mixed farm of say, 200 to 300 acres should have a fair output of dairy produce, poultry, pigs, and in most cases, garden pro-dime as well, which would be used for the nation's food if only there was an assured market.

The food problem in England is acute; we cannot feed ourselves for more than three weeks without outside help, and now that the Navy has been reduced so drastically, we can no longer rely on our supremacy of the seas to save us from a serious blockade.

This difficulty could, in a large measure be solved by a Government collective system, such as obtains in Holland, where local vans collect daily from the farms, and the small farmer is certain of his produce being sold, no matter how little he can grow. In these circumstances, the farmer is encouraged to increase instead of decrease h is output, and the community benefits by being able to purchase fresh, home-grown foodstuffs instead of existing on semi-fresh or frozen imports.

Such- a scheme would create employment, and place the country in far more self-supporting position. If a little help were forthcoming, much could be done to improve the small farmer's lot.

To quote a case (one of hundreds), known to me personally:—A West Country farmer has 130 acres of moor-land suitable for sheep. Sheep were actually being sold at 2/- per head in the local markets three months ago, but this farmer could not afford the wages of a shepherd at the present trade union rates. Could he have had a little government help, he could have bought his flock, taken one agricultural labourer off the dole, produced a nice little stock of home-grown lamb and mutton for consumption, to say nothing of wool. Public opinion should demand home products, and make it possible for the home farmer to supply the demand. Land-should be rated according to its productive qualities, and production encouraged and not discouraged. I go as far as to say that owners of productive land, that is, land capable of growing foodstuffs, or grazing cattle, who leave that land uncultivated, should be trebly rated and the money so obtained passed to those who use it for the diminution of unemployment and the production of food for the nation.

The ownership of land is a great national responsibility, but an equally great responsibility rests on those who live in towns and industrial areas; that is, that they should demand British farm products, and see that they get them. Then the farmer will be able to respond by producing more and selling cheaper. Thomas Latch.

A Soviet Britain?

SPEAKING at Lime Grove Baths, Hammersmith, at the "Lenin Anniversary" meeting on January 24th, last, Mr. Bramley spoke of a "Soviet Britain:" as the objective of all Communist Activities in England.

He also stated, that, had the bus strikers had enough support during their recent cessation of work, it would have been easy to have started a revolution. He said that the Communist Party were standing by India and Ireland in their respective struggles for freedom, and urged his hearers to make Hammersmith a Communist Centre.

Asked by a member of the audience "What about Christ," Mr. Bramley replied, "Lenin is our Christ, and him we follow and no other."

After a stirring appeal to his enthusiastic hearers to work for a Soviet Britain Mr. Bramley concluded, "We have only one thing to fear, and that is the Fascists..."

"Lenin is our Christ—but we fear the Fascists!" Those sentiments will cheer many a member of the British Fascists who has worked "without personal consideration" for the past ten years. To have earned the fear and hatred of renegade traitors who look to revolutionary Russia for their "Christ" is surely a tribute to the good work done by the Organisation

If only the thousands of apathetically loyal citizens of these islands of ours would take a lesson from both the British Fascists and the Communists, and work for their cause! The country is full of men and women to whom the downfall of the British Empire would mean the end of all things—but what are they doing to prevent such a tragedy? They deplore the growth of Communism, but they will give neither personal, help nor monetary support to those who are doing their utmost to check the spread of revolutionary poison.

The Red menace to Britain is very real and terribly strong. The apostles of sedition and disruption talk openly of a Soviet Britain, are the loyal citizens going to allow such schemes to come to fruition?

In the war, we had a rousing slogan, "Are we downhearted?" and the answer used to come with a roar "NO!" Let the same slogan be heard to-day.

"A Soviet Britain!" cry the Reds, let the loyalists drown this subversive question with such a "NO!" as will be heard at the very headquarters of our Communists' Russian masters. D. G. H.

Unemployment—A Suggested Palliative

THE Unemployment figures issued by the Ministry of Labour show that nearly 3,000,000 men and women are drawing Unemployment benefit each week. Unfortunately this total, had as it is, is a false one, and does not give the general public a true impression of the damnable condition into which our politicians have allowed the industries of Great Britain to fall.

It tells 'nothing of the vast army of workers who have expended their benefit and have been struck off the "live register" of the Ministry—their numbers are legion. The hordes of clerks and professional men, who, when in employment earn more than £250 per annum are not included. Domestic servants, male and female, and agricultural labourers are not insurable—their quota is missing from the report. Finally, the gravest of all problems this country has to face is hidden from the vulgar gaze by these statistics.

At the end of each quarter, boys and girls who have completed their education are thrown on to the labour market in an ever increasing stream; no work is available and they are forced to remain idle. These children are denied the right to equip themselves for the fight for existence, and the Ministry conveniently overlooks them in its returns.

Since 1918, when our troops returned victorious from the Great War, we have been represented in the House of Commons by Governments formed in turn by Prime Ministers of all three parties, i.e., Liberal, Labour and Conservative. Each Government, has, in its turn, added materially to the numbers of workless, and failed to produce any measure designed to meet the needs of our industries.

Our trade markets have gone, we won the War, the Central European Countries have won the peace. Goods, the result of sweated labour in Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Yugoslavia, Germany, Belgium, etc., have replaced home products, in the home markets. Our own manufacturers striving as they have been, to maintain a decent standard of living in Great Britain; have been unable to compete with these cheap foreign goods and have been forced to close their factories.

The overhead costs have been so high that employers have lost money on the labours of each employee. It has been estimated that the average loss on each employee has been one of from 3/- to 5/- per head per week. This could not be maintained, and the factories have had to extinguish their fires and close their doors.

The unemployment benefit paid to the workless averages at least per head, the loss on the workers labours—at the most, 5/- per-week. Would it not be more economic for the Government to subsidise the Industrialist than to pay benefits to the workless?

The difference between such subsidy and the benefits now paid would be one of 10/- per head per week, or, with the figures at 3,000,000, 08,000,000 per annum.

This gigantic sum could be saved each year if our Government called upon employers to render a monthly balance sheet to the Exchequer -and Audit Department. This Balance Sheet, when checked, would be passed to the Treasury who would pay the certified deficiency to the Employer, thus allowing the latter to keep open his factory and give a living wage to the worker.

The saving of .L78,000,000 per annum above mentioned would be but a minor factor in the welfare of the country if such a scheme were adopted. A workless person endeavouring to exist on a miserable pittance of 15/- per week has no material spending value. When in employment he (or she) can, and does, increase the Country's trade by circulating the rewards of his (or her) labours.

And, what is more, we could then buy British.
Area-Commander Whitmore.

The Godless

IT is foolish for the "broad-minded" people to remain inactive any longer, they must awaken to the dangers of Communism. This is work for British Fascists. If the propaganda of the Communist party of Great Britain remains unchecked, there will be no strata of society untainted by its pernicious effect.

The changes that Communism would involve,—should it ever be adopted-- are not only economic but also moral. As evidence of this, attacks upon religion have been renewed with fierce intensity. Mr. T. A. Jackson is now busy organizing the tierce attacks, and opening branches of the "League of Militant Godless" in many parts of England.

During' July and August of last year the "Daily Worker" placed its columns at the disposal of "Godless" correspondents in the U.S.S.R. and anti-religious articles are published by this organ of discontent every week.

This is a challenge; a challenge to Christian civilisation, let British Fascists accept it and arouse the apathetic' public to crush these enemies of God and the British race.

The tight will be hard, as there are many "armchair" critics, whilst the Communists are entrenched in the ranks of the discontented and un-employed, corrupting and degrading the very heart of the Empire.

Whilst the renewed attack on Religion and Christian Morals standard is more intense, it 'is not new, but part of the never-ending propaganda of the Communist party.

Communism, to gain its victory over Liberty and conscience, must necessarily destroy religion, the home, and the individual in Society. As proof of this the "Pravda" (U.S. S. R. Government Organ, 8th April, 1929) printed the following:-

"Local authorities must without loss of time, throw all necessary forces on to the Anti-God front. They must declare anti-religious propaganda to be compulsory,—and that such work will be considered as party work—we must declare war to the death on all forms of religion."

Again Comrade Lounstcharsky Commissar of Public Education—says, "We must learn how to hate, and it is only then that we shall conquer the World. Down with the love of our neighbours."

These are only a tithe of the damning evidence of their hatred for any form of law and order.

We know well how such creeds as these affect youth, and it is to the Youth that these false maxims are taught. If our Government has neither the will or power to stop this most poisonous propaganda of the Soviet, let British Fascism supply a strong antidote.

By word, deed and action, we must recruit and meet the danger that confronts our Country whether it is Political or moral.
Company Officer Crum.

The Spring Push

G.H.Q., has moved into larger Headquarters, owing to the growth of our movement. These are situated at 22, Stanhope Gardens, South Kensington, and, as well as the necessary offices have a good clubroom for members, who are most heartily welcome at any time.

There is a canteen, where members can obtain meals at cost price. Any provincial members visiting London can have a bed at H.Q. at nominal cost; and there is an additional benefit of constant hot water, so that baths may be had at a small charge. Members are asked to bring their friends to H.Q., where they will be sure of a welcome.

Outdoor lunch-hour and evening meetings are being held daily, and all members are asked to attend as many of them as possible.

The country has never needed, patriotic Fascism more than to-day especially with the prospect of a Republican Ireland at our back-gates, so all British Fascists should keep in constant touch with G.H.Q., and should endeavour to recruit as many patriotic men and women as possible for the Organisation.

Spread the Gospel of Fascism

BROTHER and Sister Fascists, the country's need is great. Never in the history of our Empire have its enemies been so strong, or so determined to bring about its downfall.

We know that Fascism, and Fascism alone will save us from the evils of Communism and Bolshevism. Fascism is the purest form of patriotism, putting King and Country first always, not sometimes when it suits, as the professional politician does.

Therefore it is essential that now, as never before, we determine, each and every one of us, to become an apostle for the cause we have at heart. The time is ripe. Wherever we go, at work or play, we should remember that thinking people of all classes are realising the failure of the party system, and the need for sane practical remedies. Fascism alone can supply those remedies.

The public are awakening, are you Fascists sleeping? So many of you are strangers at Headquarters that the staff are wondering if they should not all be wearing black armlets. Your duty to the movement is a great one. Each and every moment of each and every day you should, think, talk (not dream) Fascism.

You all have friends, your friends are loyal Citizens; the fact that they are loyal citizens and not Fascists reflects little credit on yourselves. Tell all you know, all you meet the truth and nothing hut the truth, and our members will swell. Never has England needed the united efforts of her loyal people as she does today.

Our politicians have thrown aside Egypt, and surrendered the Hankow concessions. India has suffered from milk and water methods, Ireland is showing signs of revolt. The Communists are working, what are you doing? Play the game, remember your oath and work too.

There is plenty to encourage us. We are receiving inquiries not only from all parts of the country, but from the Colonies. Branches are being formed in both Australia and Canada.

So, on with the good work. Make our slogan "For God, King and Country" ring out from end to end of our land, and remember Britain for the British. W. J. Webster, County Commander.

Social Event

A very pleasant dance was held, under the auspices of the British Fascists, Headquarter Staff, at Holborn Assembly Rooms, on 27th January. An excellent programme of music was rendered by the Columbine Dance Band; conducted by Mr. George Dowie.

An open Fox-trot competition was won by Mr. F. Alback and Miss B. Slough, with Miss Dunham and Mr. Beaks, second. Miss Jean McKay, Secretary of the Ballroom Dancers Association acted as judge, and awarded the prizes.

Some pretty Cabaret numbers were then given, after which a flashlight photograph was taken of the gathering.

The next item was rather a pleasant one to all present, when County Commander Webster, who acted as M.C. presented the Founder, Miss Lintorn-Orman with a silver cigarette case, on behalf of the members of the Organisation. The Founder suitably replied.

A most enjoyable evening closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The British Fascists held a Meeting at Hyde Park on Sunday, February 12th. Some 40 Members (Men's and Women's Units) were present and guarded the Colours against a hostile crowd of some 1,500 Reds.

The British Fascists would like to render their thanks to the Police, who assisted them in every way.

Further Meetings are being held in Hyde Park.

Perhaps the Reds and Irish Contingents might refrain from 1, drawing razors; 2, knives; 3, guns or 4, indecent remarks.

Correspondence

To the Editor of British Fascism.

Dear Sir,

UNEMPLOYMENT

Has it ever struck you, what fools our legislators are? We have close on three million registered unemployed Three million of our people struggling to exist on the miserable pittance they draw from the dole. Yet if you take a walk round the West End, go into any of our large hotels, and look at the members of the staff in any one of them, you find nothing but French, Italian, Greek, Chinese. Rarely can you see a single British face. Chefs, waiters, kitchen staffs, all foreigners, while our own people starve on the dole. In this one industry alone there is an opportunity to put thousands of our Britons into work, not only in London, but all over the country. But that would mean being unkind enough to shift a few foreigners, a lot of whom are loud in running down England and everything English. And that would never suit our political bosses. Far better allow an alien to make a good living at our expense, than to risk offending the financier who might withdraw his support from party funds.

I hope Mr. Editor, you will take up this question, and include it in your fight to waken the Nation to the necessity of rallying to the slogan "Britain for the British." Yours loyally, Observer.

To the Editor of British Fascism

Dear Sir,

I notice in to-day's paper, that the Red faction in Germany are making use of children as "Storm-Troops" against the Hitlerites.

Whatever our conditions have been since 1914-1918, it is grossly unfair to bring youngsters into the trouble.

The Bolsheviks in Russia started this caddish form of fighting, and the same idea, of "Women and Children first" was used in Ireland during the Rebellion. The English Bolsheviks use the same tactics in the East End.

Cannot the Reds in England at least, fight British? Yours etc., EX.

To the Editor of British Fascism.

Dear Sir,

I wish to protest against the Oxford University Students being permitted to make the statement, "This house will in no circumstances fight for our King and Country."

These young men receive their Education at one of our greatest Universities; they receive the privileges of an organised institution, and as long as they benefit by these privileges, should be loyal to the traditions of Oxford.

If not—let them come down and definitely join the open Red Flagites, but do not take the privileges and none of the responsibilities.

If you publish my letter, please send it to Oxford—and. to the Mayor of Oxford.

Yours etc.
