Winston Churchill - Further Notes

By An Ancient Mariner

WHEN HIS FARTHER TOOK CHURCHILL TO HARROW PUBLIC SCHOOL, the headmaster asked him to write an essay. He failed to do so and handed in a blank sheet of paper. All was well however, the headmaster could see his potential. He had to - the governors would have been very angry with him turning down the grandson of the Duke of Marlborough!

The inability to write essays continued. Bert Piper was a a cook on the Isle of Man steam Packet Co., When I was there. His brother was Liverpool City Recorder and their father had been in the same class at Harrow as Winston Church and wrote his essays. Twice when reading biographies of Winston Churchill I came across a man, different name each time, described as a “Literary Secretary”, which I read as ghost writer.

Winston Churchill had a large research team for the production of his 5 volume history of the second world war. Were these and his “Literary Secretary”, the actual writers of this history? Winston Churchill merely acting as editor, cutting out anything unfavourable to himself. He did say history would be kind to him, for he would write it!

Opposite Leeds University is a second hand bookshop. The proprietor obtained a set of the history with one volume missing, he thought it would be a good sale, so he searched around in the book trade and replaced the missing volume. They were still on his bookshelves. That’s what scholars think of Winston Churchill’s History.

Winston Churchill received the Nobel Prize for Literature!!!

Mary Soames was Winston Churchill's daughter and wrote "Clementine", a biography of her mother. I have the second edition and Mary says she understands her mother much better since writing the book.

Clementine had a problem, the servants were always leaving and giving the same reason, the bus stop was so far from her house. Bert Piper of course gives the real reason. During the war he was cooking in the western desert for the army. Winston Churchill arrived and his servants had much to do with Bert's kitchen.

They were busy telling everyone they hated Winston Churchill. A man who is hated by his servants will not keep them very long.

Winston Churchill must have a Wine Book. Between 1908 and 1965 he drank 2 bottles of Champagne a day and had a bottle of port at breakfast. Would anyone trust their officers to such an alcoholic? These details were published in the "Daily Mail".

Chartwell was for sale and he wished to buy it. Clementine was quite against the idea— he can afford a Mortgage as a Cabinet Minister in the 1920's, but there is no security in the job. Winston Churchill was a brilliant politician, which is the art of getting what you want, regardless of the interests of others.

He took the children for a car ride and went to Chartwell. The children saw over the house and played in the garden. Just before they arrived home he told the children he was going to buy Chartwell. We know what happened next. The children ran into the house and told mother. She was outvoted.

His wilderness years in the 1930's, when he was out of office leaves a mystery - who paid his mortgage and large staff??

The Curragh Mutiny by Ferguson is interesting. In March 1914, the Cabinet (including Winston Churchill) decided to fight the Ulster Protestants. They summoned the Commanding Officer of our army in Ireland to London and told him. He fielded this well; "I will have to ask my officers he said. The Infantry Officers agreed "Orders is Orders". The Cavalry stated the King cannot make war against his loyal subjects and the politicians project failed.

Zela Charleton was a cousin of my friend Phyllis Raffin. She was in the same class as Mary Soames (to be). The two were friends - Mary often too Zela to a flat in Morpeth Mansions. Morpeth is a district in Liverpool and means murder path. Zela reported that the adults in the flat were always swearing at each other.

Recently there was a programme on TV about Churchill being a gambler. He would have the top floor of the hotel and take 20 suitcases with him to Monte Carlo.
