International Standard Bible Encyclopaedia Refers to "Bastard Race"

Bastard

bas'tard In Deu_23:2 probably the offspring of an incestuous union, or of a marriage within the prohibited degrees of affinity (Lev_18:6-20; Lev_20:10-21). He and his descendants to the tenth generation are excluded from the assembly of the Lord. (See Driver, at the place). Zechariah (Zec_9:6), after prophesying the overthrow of three Philistine cities, declares of the fourth: "And a bastard (the Revised Version, margin "a bastard race") shall dwell in Ashdod," meaning probably that a "mixed population" (BDB) of aliens shall invade and settle in the capital of the Philistines. In Heb (Zec_12:8) in its proper sense of "born out of wedlock," and therefore not admitted to the privileges of paternal care and responsibility as a legitimate son.

Oxford English Dictionary states, a bastard is a "mongrel, hybrid, or inferior breed."

A Bastard Is the Offspring of an Interracial Marriage Easton's Bible Dictionary Defines "Bastard" as "Mongrel" — Bastard

In the Old Testament the rendering of the Hebrew word 'mamzer', which means "polluted."

In Deu_23:2, it occurs in the ordinary sense of illegitimate offspring. In Zec_9:6, the word is used in the sense of foreigner. From the history of Jephthah we learn that there were bastard offspring among the Jews (Jdg_11:1-7). In Heb_12:8, the word (Gr. nothoi) is used in its ordinary sense, and denotes those who do not share the privileges of God's children.

"Heathen" Refers to a Different Race, Rather than a Different Religion

The word "heathen" is translated from the Greek word "ethnos", which is Strong's #1484, which means RACE, not religion: 1484 ethnos eth'-nos: probably from 1486; a race (as of the same habit), i.e. a tribe; specially, a foreign (non-Jewish) one (usually, by implication, pagan):--Gentile, heathen, nation, people.

"Heathen" has nothing to do with religious belief, other than the fact that different RACES practice different religions. Had The Holy Bible intended to refer to "religious belief", it would have used the word "pagan", which is "one who is not a Christian, a Mohammedan, nor a Jew" or "a person who worships false gods".

There is a very distinct difference here which cannot be ignored, especially since "bastard" is defined as "mongrel", which is defined by Webster as: MONGREL, a. [See Mingle.] Of a mixed breed; of different kinds.

There's a specific Hebrew phrase for the children of harlots, which is "ishshah zanah" [Strong's #802 and 2181], so if it was intended that Deuteronomy 23:2 refer to children of prostitutes, This is the Hebrew phrase that would have been used. "nothos" [Strong's #3541] is the Hebrew word that means "illegitimate child", so if Deuteronomy 23:2 was intended to refer to children of an illegitimate marriage, This is the Hebrew word that would have been used.

The confusion arises from the fact that the English word "bastard" includes three different types of children:

- A child of incest.
- An illegitimate child
- A mongrel.

Because there are specific and different Greek and Hebrew words for each of these, it's clear that "A bastard shall not enter into the congregation of the LORD; even to his tenth generation shall he not enter into the congregation of the LORD" refers specifically to a mongrel, and nobody else. So the offspring of an Israelite married to a gentile would be a "mamzer", Strong's #4464.

It can't get clearer than this: a mongrel [read: mamzer] is the offspring of an interracial marriage, period!

A Comprehensive Lexicon by John Pickering (1847), for the noun moichidios: "bastard, spurious." This Greek word should correctly be translated as mongrel, and a true understanding of the English language reveals that when Pickering, in 1847, used the word bastard, he too meant a mongrel. This was a common understanding of the word in the mid-19th century and before, as we shall prove later. Pickering was not the only one, however, to understand that the word moichidios meant mongrel.

In Lexicon Manuale by Cornelius Schrevel (1796), the word moichidios is defined with the Latin word "adulterinus." According to the Oxford Latin Dictionary, or OLD, adulterinus means: "adulterated, impure." Lewis and Short add: "not full-blooded." Leverett's Lexicon of the Latin Language: "begotten basely, not thorough-bred, not full-blooded, adulterated." Most importantly, however, A Large Dictionary by Thomas Holyoke (1672) states that adulterinus is equivalent (in the ancient translations and commentaries) to the Hebrew mamzir, which according to Strong's Hebrew Dictionary means "a mongrel." This dictionary also states in the same definition that the Greek moichikos is equivalent to mamzir and also is equivalent to the Greek kibdelos which is defined by LSJ as: "adulterated, base."

We will discuss Holyoke's definitions and the word kibdelos in more detail later, but what is important to notice here is that all of these lexical authorities agree that the Latin word adulterinus means "mongrel," and therefore the Greek word moichidios, universally defined by this Latin word, also means mongrel. Pickering's definition of bastard must be understood to have its mid-19th century meaning of mongrel.

According to the latest US Census, 4.1% of California's population and 3.1% of New York's population defined themselves as being "two or more races". American blacks (mulattos with an average of 80% Negroid and 20% Caucasoid blood) are 3.4% of California's population and 15.9% of New York's population, Latinos are 27.9 and 15.1 percent, respectively, Asians 5.8 and 5.5, Indians 1.6 and 0.4, and Whites 74.3 and 67.9%.

But 32% of those in California who specify that they are Whites are of Hispanic origin, which means that Caucasians are actually only 46.4%, and 15.1% of those in New York who specify that they are Whites are of Hispanic origin.
