

Franken Foods Homeless People & Mystery of Buster Crabb

By T. Stokes

How those GM Frankenfoods are going to be the death of us all.

Careful! They're out to get you!

A very interesting scientific paper has just been released showing that Monsanto's dastardly GM Frankenfoods are going to give us all cancer, tests done on rats show huge cancer rates, long term effects of eating the products are not known but are believed to make people infertile at the very least, so this will help cut down the population numbers which is something that concerns those in power, as they have no jobs, no hope and no future for them.

Processed paste foods already on sale have been called "monster mash" by the young, and manufacturers will not say that percentages are GM, currently scandals in Britain are over Tesco allegedly selling horse burgers and previously kangaroo burgers and labelling them beef have upset very many people, yet no mention of growth promoters, hormone injections, insecticides, ground up chickens and even cement dust being added to the animals to put on weight before slaughter.

Some say horse meat is Ok but what else? Some ingredients you would not want to know about.

A group of expert researchers known to be against GM foods have released the results of a two-year experiment they conducted. In it they fed GM maize and also the herbicide Roundup to various groups of rats. Varying proportions for different groups, and also a control group who received clean water and non-GM maize. The researchers claim that the rats fed the GM and the herbicide contracted many more tumours than the control group.

California voted on whether to demand labelling of GM containing foods, so important was this seen that high level interference and threats over the vote became widely known.

Greenpeace-associated scientists teamed up with homeopaths to release a paper on Frankenfoods just before a vote on GM labelling, Monsanto hides its owners behind company laws, and well it may as in India it has been responsible for colossal numbers of farmers who were tricked into using it committing suicide.

But GM foods are genetically modified to withstand Chemtrail spraying which kills off ordinary veg, this was concealed by crazy weather patterns, which according to the Independent Weather Bureau was engineered by government for that very purpose, advice by experts is to buy organic and grow your own, this is being discouraged in Britain, also in Europe and in the USA its becoming an offence to grow your own or to water them with rainwater butts on your own property, but people are making use of old barrels, tubs even window boxes and growing in secret.

The senate means to get GM down your throats at any cost, and the public has to ask why?

And then say no

Homeless People Now Sleeping In Cambridge Cemetery

London's homeless rate has increased by more than two-fifths over the past year.

The number of rough sleepers in and around London England has increased by more than two-fifths over the past year as many Britons are struggling to make ends meet within the country's stagnant economy, but banking and military escapades have been the only boom industries and the only area of employment for British males, while the jobs gap is filled with peoples from the old Soviet bloc and others.

The number of people classed as homeless and in need of emergency accommodation has soared 43 percent in the British capital in the last 12 months, Reuters reported.

According to statistics compiled by outreach groups and local authorities, nearly 6,000 English people slept rough in London at some point during 2011-2012, up from about 3,900 the year before and 3,000 in 2006-2007, figures since Christmas 2012 are not available yet but many of these people slip between the rungs for financial help and are left destitute and can only beg, the sight of people eating out of litter bins is becoming common in some areas.

In some areas such as Cambridge the abandoned cemetery is now used by the homeless and those seeking consolation and escape with alcohol and drugs, sleeping in the tombs with the already dead.

Some charities believe that the introduction of additional cuts to housing benefits by the Tory-led government will aggravate the situation, when Britain's local authorities and charities have already faced reductions in their budgets.

Mick Bateman, head of the charity Crisis at Christmas, said, "There has definitely been an increase in rough sleeping this year and the cuts in benefits are obviously putting more people into hardship, so we are expecting to see more people with us after Christmas, we pray that the after Christmas weather will not be too harsh on them."

Paul Oliver from HRS help for people sleeping rough said immigrants get special help which is unavailable to our people, we should have a level playing field where all are treated the same, we can't have help for outsiders and no help for the British people who pay for it all, and those sleeping rough in the general greater London area were all British nationals.

Carl Jackson who runs the late night soup van for the Christian Alliance says each month the numbers grow by the dozen, we asked the bankers to contribute as they caused this mayhem and they refused, local shops such as Patels groceries have been very kind in donating stock approaching sell by dates and for this we are very grateful.

National Supermarkets such as Tesco and Sainsbury will not donate any food, they would sooner bury it rather than donate to food banks.

Earlier in July, a research found that the number of the homeless families and individuals in England has surged by a quarter in the recent three years, and according to data, the number of homeless households was 50,290 in 2011-12, showing an increase of over 25 percent when compared with 40,020 in 2009-2010.

The government told the people again and again that if they fought W W II for them the people would be free forever, where is the freedom in poverty, in hunger in living from bins and sleeping in the park, is this the freedom they promised?

The Mystery Of Buster Crabb

RNVR.GM. OBE.?

The British government has again hidden the files on the death of Lionel “buster” Crabb, the daredevil naval frogman, who was a legend in both W.W.II and the cold war, these files should have become available in 1986, but have been criminally hidden until 2057, to hide the government negligence and incompetence.

Buster Crabb went missing in 1956, while examining the hull of the soviet ship the Ordzhonikidze.

The visit from Soviet leader Krushchev and Foreign minister Bulganin, was listed as a goodwill visit, but was actually a recognition and a buck up call to all the socialist sympathisers in Britain, and a warning to Britain over the coming Suez crisis.

The labour leader Hugh Gaitskell was seen by Bulganin, as not as easy to manipulate as his successor Harold Wilson Crabb was put in charge of a wartime diving team in 1942, but thought he ought to learn to dive himself if he was to be of real use.

The Italians had achieved some big successes with underwater bombs in Gibraltar, sinking British shipping, Crabb saved much British shipping with diving 12 hour days, diffusing underwater mines and captured many in underwater sabotage.

He was noted for his fair treatment of captured divers, and he achieved as much adulation among foreign divers as his own, this meant a lot of information came back in respect of how he treated what he regarded as just men serving their government, just as he was.

The saying that;”you catch more flies with honey that you do with vinegar” would be a valuable lesson today with places like Guantanamo Bay.

The end of Crabb came as he was approached by 2 men from the admiralty, to see how the Soviet ship the Ordzhonikidze could turn sideways so well in Portsmouth dock, Crabb had great success in the examination of the hull of the Sverdlov, even entering up inside a hatch in the underside of the Soviet ship, to make notes.

This magnificent escapade was copied in a later James Bond film.

Crabb who was unprepared and somewhat unfit, agreed to a look at the bottom of the ship, and was never seen again.

Journalists have written 10 books on Crabb’s heroism, and kept up the pressure on the British authorities for so long as to what happened, that recently his fellow diver Sydney Knowles, was pressured into claiming that he defected to the Russians who captured him as he looked at the ships undersides.

But this is total rubbish, and a smear on a great man.

The Soviets made the best of the mystery, and claimed he had defected to them and was now top Russian teaching diver Lev Lvovich-korablov, and used Soviet friendly British journalists to put out faked photographs.

Crabb was a super patriot, although a roman catholic, kept postponing his wedding, because “the queen needed him” for increasingly dangerous missions.

His father was listed as “missing in action” in W.W.1, so for his mother to be kept in ignorance of what really happened to her son who undertook the underwater missions no one else would take, meant she never came to terms with her husband and son both listed as Missing in action.

An Isreali journalist Yigal Soma, recently interviewed a Soviet émigré to Israel, Joseph Sverkin, who claimed, he was on the Ordzhonikidze, and that a diver seen swimming on the surface near the Soviet ship, was shot by an expert marksman in the head and killed. But Crabb was swimming underwater. The truth is very murky.

The Soviets were waiting for him, and they know what happened but our own government chooses to hide it from us, even 50 years on, because a British Admiralty operative called Godfrey Vassal was blackmailed by the soviet K.G.B over a gay Admiralty sex ring, into photographing lots of naval documents, he hid the equipment in a specially altered wardrobe, among his women’s underwear, and it was he, who informed the Russians that wartime hero Lionel Crabb RNVR. GM.OBE. would be involved in a secret black op to examine the hull.

The vassal affair meant several resignations from the top of Britain’s society, including Thomas Galbraith.

The M.I.6 chief Sir John Alexander-Sinclair had to resign due to soviet complaints.

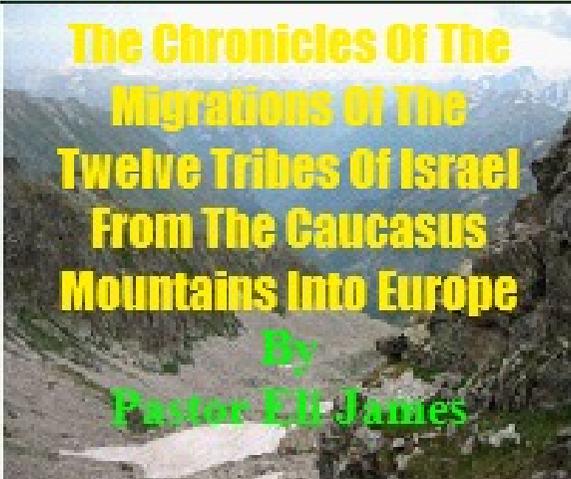

But the British navy daredevil was dead. Sometime later a skull was recovered from Chichester harbour, and was believed to be Crabb.

His mother had inscribed on his gravestone; In loving memory of my son Commander Lionel Crabb at rest at last.

Its time now his government recognised his contribution, and told us the truth about a man who was admired by both friend and foe alike, his ghost is said to stalk the corrupt politicians in the corridors of power.
