A History Of Evil From Ancient Times To The Present

By

"Nothing is more disgusting than the crowing about liberty by slaves, as most men are, and the flippant mistaking for freedom of some paper preamble like a Declaration of Independence, or the statute right to vote, by those who have never dared to think or to act. — Ralph Waldo Emerson.

INTRODUCTION

In the years preceding the American Revolution, there were no great leaders in America. The situation of economic slavery created the leaders: Washington, Jefferson, Henry, Adams, Madison, Franklin and the rest.

At the time of Patrick Henry's fiery speech on March 23, 1775, his Virginia colleagues were so scared and shocked that they proposed a vote of censure.

At the time of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, less than ten per cent of the people in the Thirteen Colonies dared to speak and act in its defence. That less than ten per cent was the leadership, was the beacon round which the rest of the people rallied after the "shot heard round the world" inspired them to action.

Less than ten per cent were leaders. The rest of the people, however patriotic and all-sacrificing they became later, were the followers.

This report is written for those who dare to be leaders!

Leaders will understand that we have strayed so far from Constitutional government that ours is no longer a Republic, nor even a "Representative Democracy;" but a Judaic Socialist Democracy of the Marxist pattern.

Therefore, that "less than ten per cent" of leadership must dare to plan a counter-revolution. And, that less than ten per cent must understand that the "followers" will not accept their leadership until there is another "shot heard round the world"—this time in the form of economic chaos, or World War.

A similar situation in Italy produced a Mussolini and in Spain a Franco.

In each case the situation produced the leadership—the leader did not produce the situation! In the United States we are facing the similar situation brought on by the Jew directed forces of Zionism. Economic collapse and/or World War has become inevitable; for we face the Crisis of the Ages as foretold by the Prophets and by Christ Himself. (The economic collapse is described completely in Revelation, as is the final war on the fields of Armageddon.) That less than ten per cent must plan now to have the right kind of Christian leadership available when the crisis comes. To do less is to deny God Himself. For rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God.

This report is written for and addressed to, that "less than ten per cent."

If you have survived the reading of this introduction, let's now get to the beginning of things governmental, and in the spirit of that, in the renewing of a God approved form of government for this "Age of Grace". We have but the "lamp of experience to guide us.

NIMROD THE FIRST INTERNATIONALIST

In the beginning God segregated the races. In his speech to the Athenians on Mar's Hill, St. Paul said that God had determined the nations "and the bounds of their habitation"—but this did not occur until the time of Nimrod. God approved of both racism and nationalism.

After the Deluge, the people were governed under a Patriarchal system—which was the ideal form of government for a nomadic people mostly engaged in herd grazing as their principle occupation. Inter-family and inter community matters were the responsibility of the priests and religious leaders.

Nimrod was a warrior, a hunter of men and builder of cities. "And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh (all cities) in the land of Shinar. Out of that land went forth Asshur, and builded Ninevah, and the city Rehoboth, and Calah; the same is a great city." (Gen. 10: 10,11,12).

When Nimrod created Babel, his task was easier than it would be today. For the people were neither "free" nor "democratic" at that time. They followed their leaders without question. So, Nimrod created a false priesthood and enthroned a false god—Baal. The priests of Baal were adepts at Black Magic and devil worship, the people obeyed—and those who didn't were liquidated save for the family of Abraham.

Nimrod's priests also created a system of banking which, when internationalised, made internationalism profitable to those in control. 1500 years later, Babylon again reigned. The problem of nationalism now had to be solved before internationalism could be made to "pay off."

Since there were no nations, as such, Nimrod could not create for himself a "United Nations."

So, he did the next best thing: he created the "United Cities," with Babel as his capital.

With no nations to resist Nimrod, God Himself stepped in and ended Internationalism by dividing people into different nations with different tongues.

By this act, God made it very plain to all who have eyes to see and ears to hear that He would not tolerate a carnal brotherhood of nations, and the yoking together of believers with unbelievers and the mixing of people whom He intended should remain separate and distinct, one from another.

God stopped the building of the Tower and scattered the people. He did not destroy Babylon. Note the wording of the Authorized, King James Version: "So the Lord scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city." (Gen. 11:8.)

Then the Lord let the Devil have his own, and concentrated on developing Abram, no doubt hoping that the next time the Devil raised a Babylon, Abram's children would have enough sense to prevent it, knowing from the beginning, they wouldn't.

Nimrod found things much easier than do the modern internationalists who have the foundations of a Christian civilization to destroy before they can build their world order and make people like it. In Nimrod's day there were no nations in the area where he was as we know them today, so Nimrod had no foe in the form of a nationalist movement which would in our times require the creation of a United Nations to try to overcome. There were no huddled masses that had to be "liberated;" therefore Nimrod had no pro-European Immigration Act to nullify. There were no minorities to shout discrimination; and no "enslaved" labouring class to cry out against the dirty capitalists. No "Re-education" or brainwashing was required.

All Nimrod had to do was to establish a false god (Baal), and establish himself as the "people's Messiah" of that false god; then depose the Patriarchal ruling class—and go about the business of cashing in on his world order established on what he believed was universal brotherly love. The Patriarch Eber, whose descendants were called Hebrews, opposed Nimrod's program.

The Bible concerns itself with world history after the time of Noah, as it directly concerns the Israelites—not the so-called Jews who are of the Synagogue of Satan. Any Biblical reference to the Jews is incidental and necessary for the telling of the story of the People of the Covenant. Because the Bible tells us only the story of a people, it does not deal extensively with Nimrod's world government—only with its destruction, the confounding of languages, and the creating of nations, and the spreading of the people of those nations to their bounds of habitation. Ancient historians tell us of the earthly world government of Nimrod. Most histories dealing with the period have been suppressed by the Cabalists so that they might rewrite history to their own liking and make people believe the Jews are a "chosen people." But writings still extant confirm what is written in Genesis 11:1-2 that the hieratic language of Ur was then a universal language and the secret brotherhood of Hamites called Nabatheans came to the plains of Shinar and founded a city called Babel. History also tells us that Nimrod's world league extended into Egypt. Nimrod was a leader of the secret brotherhood, and was an adept of Black Magic, and was worshipped as a god. His priests developed the Cabalistic Occult Theocracy which was later perfected in Babylon and from there taken over by those of the captivity who later called themselves Jews. This is the Serpent Cult which Daniel the Prophet opposed and which Jesus denounced so bitterly, saying that those who had once claimed to be the "seed of Abraham" were in fact the children of the Devil, who is the father of lies.

Nimrod's world government had to create a world banking system, as an integral and necessary part of Internationalism. The creation of banking is described by Dr. William J. Hale in his book Chemivision, from which we quote (pages 73, 74): "In that far off day was begun the construction of a great temple or Ziggurat to reach into the clouds, which was the Tower of Babel. Within the confines of this temple were built secure coffered vaults for the storage and safe keeping of precious metals and under the guard of the so called priests of the temple. Not alone was gold and precious metal to be stored but also to be loaned out to citizens at a rate of interest amounting to 20% of its value per year and clay tablet receipts were handed to those who wished to store their valuables, and clay tablet receipts were demanded of those who wished to borrow gold, silver and other valuables.

"...The temple authorities discovered they could loan out as much as ten times what they had and still remain solvent. Correctly viewed we have here the origin of a financial system launched on a debit structure—a system that always rewards those who loan over those who borrow.

The extension of credit to ten times what metallically is existent merely emphasizes the fact that capital gains enormously upon a modicum of investment."

Thus, Nimrod's priests became money creators. By internationalising the banking system, a cabal might thereby literally own and control the world.

Stripped of the mask of "universal brotherhood," this is the naked aim of internationalism: to secure control of the world and all its people so they can use its natural resources and its human manpower to enrich a chosen cult, in the name of the people who are enslaved.

In Nimrod's day there were no nations to resist his world ownership scheme. No armies to halt him. Only the Patriarchs and those who worshipped the true God objected to Nimrod's world government. So, he ordered the slaughter or enslavement of all those who opposed him. Abram's family escaped and there is no record of any others of God's people who escaped Nimrod's power gluttony.

NEBUCHADNEZZAR

According to Biblical chronology, it was 1500 years after the fall of Babel that King Nebuchadnezzar had a chance to try Nimrod's scheme all over again. With the fall of Tyre in 571 B.C. he had conquered most of the world, but making internationalism pay off was something else.

Having conquered his world by the power of arms, Nebuchadnezzar had no need to create a United Nations to indoctrinate the nations on world understanding. Instead of teaching nations to "cooperate in their own destruction," he simply mixed and integrated the people by force. His ancestors had begun doing this, and he completed, the job of moving nationals out of their homeland and moving foreigners in. The Ten Tribes of Israel were packed off to the North where they began their trek in search of a new land God had promised them after their years of atonement had been completed. The people of Judah were exiled to Babylon and Canaanite foreigners were moved into Jerusalem. Some had to return so prophecies might be fulfilled, but the majority of them stayed on in Babylon and became adepts of Occult Theocracy and International Banking. The Apostle Peter tried later to bring the Israelites back to God, but there is little record of any success in the New Testament.

Nebuchadnezzar went all out for intercultural exchanges, just as FDR later was to bring in foreign born Felix Frankfurter, Sidney Hillman, Harold Laski, Anna Rosenberg et al, to help him develop his own type of Babylon. Nebuchadnezzar had brought in four of the brightest young men to become his chief advisors. He had them renamed Belshazzar (Daniel), Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego.

And, just like FDR's scheme, the intercultural scheme of Nebuchadnezzar backfired. FDR's was for the glee of Satan, Nebuchadnezzar's for the glory of his god. Because of a dream and its interpretation, Daniel made Nebuchadnezzar forget his internationalist schemes and turn to God.

But when Daniel went off on government business, false prophets got Nebuchadnezzar's ear and he decided to go ahead with the creation of the international banking system which makes internationalism profitable to the Cabalists. The Bible refers to the incident as the making of an image of gold. We can understand it better in worldly language by calling it the creation of a gold standard, which is the foundation upon which international banking is based, as it was in Nimrod's day.

Dr. Hale says "Nebuchadnezzar erected a great column on the plains of Dura near Babylon in 569 B.C. The column was 100 feet high and 6 feet in diameter. Atop this column was placed a winged disc of gold.

"To the dedication of this winged disc of gold were invited all of the governors of the provinces, and captains of tributary peoples to pay homage to the installation of the Gold Standard for the then known world. In the account of this ceremony as related by the prophet Daniel, certain Chaldeans reported how Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego refused to fall down in worship of the golden image. Such disobedience made it necessary for Nebuchadnezzar to command that these three dissenters be bound and cast into an over heated fiery furnace. Following the execution of this order Nebuchadnezzar observed that these three men walked unharmed in the midst of the fire, and a fourth also whose "form is like the Son of God"—whereupon he commanded that they come forth; and finding them totally unharmed he gave praise to the God of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego.

"Nevertheless the golden image remained installed and intact—the mammon of Babylonian economy. This installation date, in fact, marks the beginning of what has been described in Biblical history as Babylon the Great. So mighty had become the power of Mammon through manipulation of money and interest that the prophet Daniel painted a terrible end to the whole system."

Daniel couldn't keep King Nebuchadnezzar on the straight and narrow path and out of the clutches of false prophets and the international bankers. In spite of Daniel, Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego, the king kept backsliding. So God took a hand personally and slid Nebuchadnezzar right back to the complete animal state. He was driven from men, ate grass with the oxen, grew unkempt hair like eagles feathers, and his nails became like birds claws. After seven years of this, Nebuchadnezzar repented, praised God, and was allowed to write a chapter in the Holy Book, witnessing how he "got religion" and he stayed with God to the end of his days.

That left his Belshazzar in charge of Babylon. Belshazzar, was named after the false god Baal who was the Devil's disciple from the very beginning.

While Belshazzar and his favorites were feasting, Daniel was interpreting the handwriting on the wall, telling Belshazzar he had been tried and found wanting. During this time the army of Darius was busy diverting the course of a river which ran through the city and an army entered the otherwise impregnable Babylon by way of a river bed; and Belshazzar died before he ever sobered up.

So the system of Babylon was stopped and Darius, being a righteous man, might never have tolerated the system at all. But, all those men of Judah who had studied the Talmud and about international finance from the Babylonians; didn't want to go back to Jerusalem with Nehemiah, Ezra and the other faithful who wanted to go back to rebuild the temple, so that the prophecies concerning the birth of the Messiah might be fulfilled. These men of Judah and the other Tribes decided they'd rather stay on in Babylon, become more proficient in their Black Magic and high finance—and when the right time came, they'd create their own Messiah.

Thus was Babylon ended for a while but not destroyed. For the "Time of the Gentiles" was soon to come and, during all the centuries following, the Devil would be, in imitation of God, preparing a special people to receive the coming Anti-Christ.

The rulers solved it by transferring whole nations to new lands, and integrating people so that no dominant majority was maintained anywhere.

Nebuchadnezzar also created the Gold Standard of the known World, whereby the person having gold could, by loans of receipts instead of gold, create ten times the value of the gold in "money." The International Bankers under banker proselyte FDR, were to withdraw the gold entirely from national exchange and use it only in international exchange and at a reduced rate. In fighting against the works of the Devil—whether it be individual or collective sin, individual or collective deprivation of liberty, Welfare Statism, Communism, Zionism, or any other form of Internationalist collectivism—we are told that as we go forth as sheep in the midst of wolves and we must be "wise as serpents, and harmless as doves" (Matt. 10; 16.)

This is no pacifist philosophy, for the dove is the worldly symbol of the Holy Ghost, whose Power makes the explosion of a hydrogen bomb seem as the striking of a match to those who have put on the full armour of God.

If we are to be "wise as serpents" we must understand the ways and weapons of the serpent race which controls the powers of darkness, of which the Invisible Government is a part.

Earlier we learned how the "Powers of Darkness" learned to create an anti-God world religion and start International Finance under Internationalist Nimrod.

We learned how Nations were "internationalised" through forced migrations of entire populations under the Assyrian Internationalists of Nebuchadnezzar.

The Internationalist era of the Medes and the Persians was a perfecting period for the adepts of the Serpent Cult. During this time the minting of coins began on an international scale. This led to the necessary creation of international exchange and the international bankers developed the art of making great fortunes by transferring gold from one nation to another, then cashing in on the need for gold in a depleted area or nation. Under Medeo-Persian Internationalism "those who say they are Jews and are not" perfected their false religion and transcribed the Cushite Chaldean records of Baal worship ceremonies into what later was to be called the Talmud. This Devil worship of Moloch is contrary to the God worship of Moses. This is what Jesus meant when he said their father was not Abraham, but the "father of lies, who was a liar from the beginning."

The next thing the Serpent Race had to learn was how to control great human mass movements, whereby the people could be induced to contribute toward their own destruction willingly and even eagerly. This training period was provided by the golden era of GREEK INTERNATIONALISM Charles Mackay, wrote in 1841 "Three causes especially have excited the discontent of mankind and by impelling us to seek for remedies for the irremediable it has bewildered us in a maze of madness and error. These are death, toil, and ignorance of the future—the doom of man upon this sphere, and for which he shews his antipathy by his love of life, his longing for abundance, and his craving curiosity to pierce the secrets of the days to come.

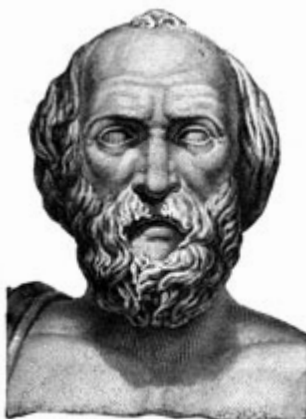

"The Christian individual has confidence of victory over death and understands that toil is a penance imposed because of the transgressions of Adam and knows that his future is in his own hands, so long as he walks in the light given him and uses his abilities and talents as Divine Providence intended him to use them.

"But the great human mass looks to worldly agencies such as government to protect them from the pain of death, reduction of toil to a week of forty eight hour days, and security from future worry.

"Man looks to God for security. Men look to the State. God gives man freedom of choice, or liberty. The State gives men orders with no choice but to obey."

In ancient Greece, every manner of man made security was tried and found wanting. From the age of dual kingships, through the time of tyrants, the federation of city states to the communism of Sparta, the Democracy of Athens, and the world conquering dictatorship of Alexander, nothing was permanent save death, toil, and concern for the future.

SPARTAN COMMUNISM

Anyone who believes the idea of a totalitarian and planned society started with Karl Marx and the system called Marxism, has overlooked the lesson we should have learned from Greece, as it really began with Lycurgus of Sparta.

At that time Sparta had two kings and a constitution and a congress to make the laws. Yet Lycurgus became dictator, without actually deposing the kings, abolishing the congress or revoking the constitution. It was—as in the United States of today—a peaceful revolution "within the form." The citizens thought they had a limited constitutional monarchy, but actually they had a socialized democracy with Lycurgus controlling the whole government as dictator, even as the Invisible Government controls the United States.

As soon as Lycurgus got complete control of all agencies of the government, he issued an order that there would be no more written laws, and that the laws of the land would vary from day to day as the Invisible Government would determine. Military discipline was forced at all times and every Spartan was expected to be a soldier until he had reached the age of 60.

Family life was not prohibited in Sparta, but, a few days after a child was born, it had to be brought before the elders of the community. The elders would then decide whether the child was worthy to become a member of Spartan society. If the elders considered it a healthy child, the parents were permitted to take it back home and keep it for the first seven years. When it became seven years of age, the state took the child away from its home. It was never to return.

If the elders decided a child was defective or weakly, it was simply allowed to die of exposure. From seven to twenty, the young Spartan was trained for service to the State. At twenty he entered military service and was forced to join a "dining club" where trusted leaders kept him thoroughly in line with the aims of the State, and prevented his showing any symptoms of initiative, individual thought or other forms of what now is called mental illness.

At the age of 30, the Spartan became a full citizen of the State and then took on a new set of State duties and responsibilities.

Citizens were barred by law from engaging in trade or manufacturing as these were State monopolies and only the chosen could engage in enterprise of any type. Citizens were forbidden to possess gold or silver and, paper not having been invented, all money was made of iron.

There was no such thing as private property and all wealth was, in theory, derived from the land. Ground was parceled out to influential Spartans, slaves cultivated the land; and a strict accounting was made to the government each year.

The principle aim of the Spartan system of government was guaranteed security for all through the development of an invincible soldier citizenry and peacetime conscription. In the United States in the past conscription served the same aim. But, instead of producing better soldiers, the system produced worse soldiers. In the Persian Wars, the volunteer soldier armies of Athens proved so superior to the drafted armies of Sparta, that the latter system began falling into disrepute along with the entire socialist idea. Socialism wasn't even tried again until after the Dark Ages.

GREEK DEMOCRACY

Meanwhile in Athens a thing called "Democracy" was being developed. But let's not blame the Greeks for inventing the type of "democracy" we're being sold today. Only the free-men—only those who paid tax on property—were allowed to vote. There was no such thing as universal suffrage.

It was not Athenian democracy which caused the fall of Athens, but her money manipulators and her corruption in the market place, all of which brought on deficit financing and a foreign policy based on expediency. Athens became the world center for trade, commerce and international banking. Naturally, it attracted the "eternal internationalists" who were being kicked around all over the world, and migrating naturally to the spots where they could practice their now perfected profession of money changing which they had picked up along with the Talmud, at Babylon. And the Greeks, who were engulfed in the quest for art and culture, were too busy to notice what was going on in the market place.

History indicates that it all started with a crash in the commodity exchanges of Greece. A depression similar to that of 1929 A.D. occurred, and Pericles, who was otherwise a great man, created a deficit financed program that made FDR, who was not a great man, seem like small potatoes.

He conceived the idea of putting all the unemployed people of Athens on the government payroll, building Parthenon's, Temples to Athena, art galleries, dams, etc. That went over splendidly for a few years, until the people began realizing that there wasn't anything to back up all the money they had. Just before the bust that's bound to follow boom, when money isn't solid, Pericles engineered another war with Sparta, and the crash was averted for awhile.

But, in the manner of the Democrats, Pericles left the door open for charges of "corruption in office." A young man named Cleon decided to run on the ticket opposite Pericles. The Demos of Athens yelled "We like Cleon," and Cleon was elected to end the Spartan war and clean up the mess. Instead, Cleon perfected the most gigantic bureaucracy the world had ever known up to that time.

Athens never recovered from the financial crash which was bound to come. And when Philip of Macedonia stood at the gates of the once proud city, ready to march in as the conquering hero, history records that Athens was a hollow democracy in which the people were ground down by poverty and resigned to a spiritless dependence on the state for their daily crusts of bread.

From the glory that was Greece we had a heritage of art, culture and philosophy, and a history lesson which we ignore. However, the Serpent Race learned a lesson on how to control human mass movements and how to make a people contribute willingly toward their own destruction, a lesson which it has never ignored.

INTER NATIONALIST ALEXANDER

The world conquest by Alexander the Great was different. The Chaldean world government under Nimrod caused creation of the anti-Christ and the Babylonian economy. The world government of Nebuchadnezzar's time perfected these systems and added a third: control of nations. The Medeo-Persian world government perfected all three, and added the international cartel system for control of trade and commerce, which today makes the Marrano Rockefellers spiritual brethren of the Rothschilds.

But the mission of Alexander the Great's world government was to spread culture, philosophy and the Greek language—and to drive the Lost Tribes of Israel Northward and Westward to a new land, in Europe, and the British Isles.

Alexander, in other words, began by being an instrument of God, rather than the devil. The Ninth Chapter of Daniel prophesies the rise and fall of Alexander and the division of his empire after his death, with unerring accuracy. And the historian Josephus recorded how, when Alexander entered Judea, he was met by the high priest Jaddua (Neh. 12: 11, 22) at Mizpeh. Jaddua headed a long procession of priests and citizens of Judea who at that time were true Judahites, not Jews, and they all were dressed in white linen. Alexander was so impressed that he was shown Daniel's prophecy concerning himself. He then offered a sacrifice to God in the court of the temple, and granted the Judeans the liberty to live according to the law of Moses and even granted them freedom from tribute in the sabbatical years. Alexander believed himself divinely chosen for his task, and founded over 70 cities where Greek learning survived and otherwise helped prepare the way for the coming Messiah.

Then the serpents got at him, convincing him that he, himself was the Messiah. He was determined to found his world capital at Babylon and proclaimed himself a god and was struck down at the height of a drunken orgy. His world was divided into four parts, but in his twelve years of winged conquest, he had done all the things appointed unto him.

THE ROMAN REPUBLIC AND CARTHAGE

The Roman Republic also was raised as an instrument of God for Rome was destined to destroy the new spiritual Babylon which was Carthage.

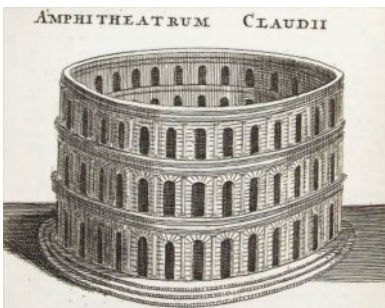

When the dispersion began, thousands of mongrelized Semites fled into Egypt and North Africa, in defiance of God's commandments as recorded in Jeremiah, Isaiah, Nathan and other Books of the Old Testament. These self chosen people established Carthage as a trading post, raised it to empire status, and devoted themselves to Baal worship, cartelism and international finance. Lack of space prevents elaboration, but these few quotes from Will Durant's exhaustive Caesar and Christ should suffice for our purposes: "The Carthaginians, were apparently the first to issue the equivalent of a paper currency—leather strips stamped with signs of value, and accepted throughout the Carthaginian realm. Probably it was the rich merchants, rather than the aristocratic land owners, who provided the funds for those armies and navies which transformed Carthage from a trading post into an empire. Carthage grew wealthy from the gold, silver, iron and copper of Spain. The exploitation of this empire and trade made Carthage, in the third century B.C., the richest of Mediterranean cities. Tariffs and tribute brought her annually 12,000 talents, twenty times the revenues of Athens at her zenith.

" Polybius reported that "at Carthage nothing that results in profit is regarded as disgraceful."

" The Carthaginians appear at their worst in their religion. Their ancestors had worshipped Baal-Moloch and Astarte. The Carthaginians addressed similar devotions to corresponding deities—Baal and Tanith. To Baal in great crises, living children were sacrificed, as many as three hundred in a day."

It was obvious that, if the prophecies were to be fulfilled, this Babylon of the third century B.C. must be destroyed and its people scattered, as must all other Babylons including the Babylon confronting us today. The Republic of Rome was the instrument raised by Almighty Providence for that destruction.

THE ROMAN WELFARE STATE

Later, after its acts in fulfilment of the prophecies, Rome itself become a new Babylon which had to be destroyed—but not before the people who rejected the Christ were to Judaize Christianity, put on Sheep's clothing and masquerade themselves as the "Chosen People", against which the Apostle John warned us so many times.

They were also to learn the fine art of creating the Welfare State and using it and its people for their own profit and power.

It was during this age of Universal Brotherhood and one world religion was founded, which was a perverted, Baal-diluted Christianity. Its theme was supposedly to end world poverty wipe out discrimination. In short, the time for Socialized Democracy.

The landed aristocracy was levelled, and the slaves were freed. Mongrelization and miscegenation reigned, and the government claimed that it could provide man made security for all.

Out of this third century picture of a twenty first century America, rose Diocletian, the son of a slave, as the "people's choice." We quote Will Durant: "He (Diocletian) and his colleagues divided the Empire into ninety-two provinces grouped into seventy two dioceses and four prefectures, and appointed civil and military rulers for each division. It was frankly a centralised state, which considered local autonomy, like democracy, a luxury of security and peace, excused its dictatorship by the needs of actual or imminent war.

"In years of peace Diocletian, with his aides, faced the problems of economic decay. To overcome depression and prevent revolution he substituted a managed economy for the law of supply and demand. He distributed food to the poor at half the market price or free and undertook extensive public works to appease the unemployed. He brought many branches of industry under complete state control. The state forbade the export of salt, iron, gold, wine, grain, or from Italy, and strictly regulated importation of these articles. It went on to control establishments producing for the army, the bureaucracy, and munitions factories, textile mills, and bakeries. The government required a minimum product, bought this at its own price, and made associations of manufacturers responsible for carrying out orders and specifications. If this procedure proved inadequate, it completely nationalized these factories and manned them with labour bound to the job. Butchers, bakers, masons, builders glass blowers, ironworkers, engravers were ruled by detailed governmental regulations. The associations of tradesmen and artisans had special privileges from the government, and often exerted pressure upon its policies., in turn they served as organs of national administration and helped regiment labour, and coil taxes for the state from their membership. Such a system could not work without price control. In 301 Diocletian and his colleagues issued an Edictum de pretiis, dictating maximum legal prices or wages for all important articles or services in the Empire. The edict was until our time the most famous example of an attempt to replace economic laws by governmental decrees. failure was rapid and complete. Tradesmen concealed their commodities. Every taxpayer sought to evade taxes. The state organized a special force of revenue police to examine every man's property and income. In the fourth century, thousands of citizens fled over the border to seek refuge among the barbarians."

When the barbarians invaded and took over what once was a great civilization, the action anti-climactic. For a great civilization is not conquered from without until it has destroyed it, from within.

With the fall of Rome, Babylon fell once more and its people were dispersed. In 476 K Odoacer, now of Rome, recognized the supremacy of the Eastern Roman emperor at Constantinople, and Odoacer was accepted as a vassal king. So, even though the Roman Empire in West was ended, the Roman Empire in the East continued until 1453.

The Jews people who, by now, had renounced both the New Testament and its promised Messiah, deserted Rome like rats deserting a sinking ship. They returned to the East and fed ill what remained of the glory of the Eastern Roman Empire. They established a new Babylon on the ruins of the old and began Judaizing the Middle East.

Mohammed arose to run them out and they took refuge in Constantinople, from where they gained the Khazars as proselytes and the Khazars were later to overrun Russia, and still later, America. There was one blessing to the Dark Ages in Europe: a new people would be left alone to start anew to develop a Christian civilization in a new nation which looked to God for security rather than to man made statutes.

But immediately as that new Christian civilization began to look promising to man and pleasing to God—the people of the Devil moved in with their now perfected set of tricks: man-made religion, international finance, cartel and cabal, democracy and the welfare state. The people of the West should have known by this time that they could not stand on anything other than pure and undefiled Christian principles and that they must be a nationalistic people maintaining friendly relations with all other nations but making binding agreements with none. Greece and Rome should have taught them the folly of deficit financing, centralized government, and planned economy.

But the Children of the Devil with their own Messianic dream moved in on them and perverted their civilization—and history began repeating itself all over again.

Once again, while Europe was being despoiled, God selected a remnant people and led them to a new land of milk and honey, gave them the finest government and gave them the task of building the kingdom which must be prepared for Him.

And, once again, this remnant people has turned its eyes from God and welcomed in Babylonia, and allowed the creation of another Roman Welfare State—and the Barbarians of the North are awaiting our destruction from within, so they can march in and take over—first the fall of the Harlot of Babylon, then the Beast will command that we worship him. That noise you hear is simply the march of history repeating itself.

If, as Christian nationalists, we are to put on the full Armor of God and battle the "rulers of the darkness of this world" and defeat "spiritual wickedness in high places," then we must be "wise as serpents." This means, among other things, that we must understand the reverence and worship of Internationalism which is a part of the materialistic religion of the so-called "Jews" (who are not Judeans but do lie.)

Many excellent and highly recommended articles, pamphlets and books have been written, exposing the true identity of this fraudulent people which masquerades as a "chosen race." However, none of these writings pinpoint the development of Internationalism by the Nasis (Princes of Judaism) as a companion weapon of Marxism for control of other people, and Zionism, for control of their own people.

It is our purpose therefore, to expose the Jewishness of Internationalism, something which we must understand if we are to be successful in any political counter revolution. And, once again, because we have only the lamp of experience to guide us, we must begin again at the very beginning.

ORIGIN OF THE JEWS

The Jews say the Old Testament is their Book, so it would be difficult to find a better authority for tracing their beginnings.

First Biblical mention of a people called the Jews occurs in II Kings, 16:6; when Ahaz (742 B.C.) was King of Judah and was engaged in a war with Israel and other nations. The verse in the King James version of the Bible reads: "At that time Rezin king of Syria recovered Elath to Syria, and drove the Jews from Elath, and the Syrians came to Elath, and dwelt there to this day."

In this brief mention of Jews, there is no indication that they were a part of Judah.

Many patriotic historians point out that they were a neighbouring, Edomite tribe not one of the tribes of Israel who were pushed out of Elath and joined their previous conquerors, the Judahites.

This is confirmed by the next mention of Jews in II Kings, 25: 25; where we learn that Ishmael, of the royal seed took ten men with him and smote Gedeliah. He died, and so did the Jews and the Chaldeans that were with him at Mizpah.

So, we find the Jews already mixed in intrigue with the Chaldees of Babylon, acting as advisers and aides to the governor appointed by Nebuchadnezzar. The historian Josephus gives us an erroneous story of this affair and condemns the prophet Jeremiah for supporting Ishmael—and many Bible students have followed the writing of this man rather than the words of the Bible ever since. Thus have the fraudulent "Jews" been foisted upon us as "the people of the Book," when the Book itself refutes this assumption.

Jeremiah gives us further light in Verse 9 of Chapter 34. King Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people of Jerusalem, not just the Hebrews, but all the people, to free the Hebrews who were slaves.

Notice the careful distinction Jeremiah makes between the Hebrew and the Jew indicating that the Hebrew and the Jew are different people. Lay history indicates that the original people called Jews were Ashkenaz, who joined themselves to the Judah tribe as proselytes but still remained a separate nationality. Others trace the origin of those calling themselves Jews today to the seduction of Eve in the Garden of Eden by the fallen angel, Satan. In the New Testament confusion is caused by the use of the words Judah, Judea and Jew which are used almost interchangeably.

During the time of Daniel, the word Jew was a word of opprobrium, as Nebuchadnezzar indicates when he speaks of the prophet being "taken out of Jewry".

The Book of Esther should be treated as a revelation from God Himself, warning His Adamic Israelite people of what would happen to them if they ever allowed the Jews to get the upper hand in government.

"How the Jews love the Book of Esther," said Martin Luther.

Read the book carefully and in this spirit, you'll understand what Luther meant. Not once does the name of God appear in the book. It is devoid of all spiritual food. Not once does it mention devotion or reverence or prayer. The only thing remotely connected with a religious thought in the entire Book is Esther's call to her kinsmen to fast before she goes in to see king. Mordecai, the principle character in the Book, is called a Jew, whose great grandfather was a Benjamite. There must have been a little mongrelizing in the four generations of the captivity, for Mordecai is not called a Benjamite, but a Jew. The same would, of course, apply to Esther his niece, whom Mordecai took to raise as his own daughter "for she had neither father nor mother."

By concealing her identity she became the favorite wife of Xerxes (Ahasuerus) and later, by using her feminine wiles, managed to thwart a plot and save the Jews—and get Mordecai in as Prime Minister.

The barbarian manner in which the Jews first killed the sons of "anti-Semite" Haman, and then hanged them after they were already dead is a type of death the Talmud writers later condemned Jesus.

Spirit discerning Christians understand that the Book of Esther is a prophetic warning in the Holy Word of what we must expect if we ever let the Jews get total control. But, in these latter days of the Age of the Gentiles, the very elect is deceived.

Jesus commissioned His Apostles to tarry together until they had received the Holy Ghost—then they were to complete the task of separating the People of the Cross from the People of the Serpent; "in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

After the task of separation had been completed in that part of the world, Jerusalem was destroyed according to the prophecy of Jesus and Christianity began moving Westward into Europe, Phariaism receded back to its point of origin, Babylon. The People of the Serpent were to make continuing stabs at the West. However, they were rebuffed and held in check in the West until after two things had occurred:

1. The serpent race of Khazars were to take over and 2. The new United States of America was to accord full citizenship rights to the Jewish Khazars, over the strong protests of such stalwarts as Benjamin Franklin and Governor Peter Stuyvesant.

MOHAMMED AND THE JEWS

After the People of the Cross became distinguished from the People of the Serpent, there arose another to challenge Jewish control of the Middle East: the People of the Crescent.

The ministries of Peter, Paul, John and other Apostles had left a deep impression on the people of the East. But, as Christianity moved Westward, the Judaizers found fertile ground east of the Mediterranean.

To stop this Judaizing of the Arabian people, there arose Mohammed, who recognized the true God, and the Prophets of the Book, but considered himself a later prophet than Jesus and the prophet to end all prophets. Mohammed tried to win the Jews over—which was a fatal mistake. The American historian Washington Irving wrote: "On the arrival of Mahomet at Medina, some of the Christians of the city promptly enrolled themselves among his followers, they were probably of those sectarians who held to the human nature of Christ, and found nothing repugnant in Islamism, which venerated Christ as the greatest among the prophets. The rest of the Christians resident there showed but little hostility to the new faith, considering it far better than the old idolatry. Indeed, the schisms and bitter dissensions among the Christians of the East had impaired their orthodoxy, weakened their zeal, and disposed them easily to be led away by new doctrines."

"The Jews, of which there were rich and powerful families in Medina and its vicinity, showed a less favourable disposition. With some of them Mahomet made covenants of peace, and trusted to gain them in time to accept him as their promised Messiah or prophet. Biased, perhaps unconsciously, by such views, he had modelled many of his doctrines on the dogmas of their religion, and observed certain of their fasts and ordinances. He allowed such as embraced Islamism to continue in the observance of their Sabbath, and of several of the Mosaic laws and ceremonies. It was the custom of the different religions of the East, to have each a Kebia or sacred point toward which they turned their faces in the act of adoration, the Sabeans toward the north star, the Persian fire worshippers toward the east, the place of the rising sun, the Jews toward the city of Jerusalem. Hitherto Mahomet had prescribed nothing of the kind, but now, out of deference to the Jews, he made Jerusalem the Kebia, toward which all Moslems were to turn their faces when in prayer."

The rest of the story of Mohammed's conquest of the East is replete with incidents of the Jews renouncing the covenants of peace, double crossing Mohammed and his successors, indulging in treason and treachery. Again we quote Washington Irving: "All the concessions made by him to that stiff necked race had proved fruitless, they not only remained stubborn, but treated him with ridicule. An event at length occurred which caused the anger of Mahomet against the Jews to break out in open hostility. A damsel of one of the pastoral tribes of Arabs who brought milk to the city was one day in the (Jewish) quarter. Here she was accosted. A Moslem drew his sword, and thrust it through the body of the goldsmith. Mahomet interfered to quell the tumult. (and) prevented their being put to the sword, but their wealth and effects were confiscated, and they were banished to Syria, to the number of seven hundred men."

This may seem like, a small incident for the beginning of a hatred of Moslem for Jew which must culminate in the "Crisis of the Ages" in our time. But the Moslem has a high regard for womanhood, cannot tolerate the immorality and amorality of the Jew.

Finally, the Mohammedans conquered all of Asia Minor, and allowed Christians to remain among them, but drove the Jews out of Babylon—and the Nasi Prince then set up his world capitol at Constantinople, where the Byzantium Emperor mistakenly tolerated him.

ENTER, THE CHAZAR

Though the Dark Ages there had settled upon Europe, an iron curtain which divided the two worlds at the Bosphorus. Trading between East and West continued by way of the overland route which led around the Black Sea by way of the Caucasus.

In control of that area were the Khazars, a Mongol-Turko people famed for their brutality. They collected tribute from the merchants using the only trade route available between East and West.

Where there is a trade monopoly, there also are Jews. The Jews converted the Khazars to Pharaism, but, as is characteristic with Orientals, the Khazars absorbed the Jews, just as the Ashkenaz had absorbed the Judahites centuries earlier. "Chazar" is a variant spelling of "Khazar;" used interchangeably, as is the now accepted "Mohammed," as compared with the "Mahomet" of Washington Irving.

THE JEWS OF EUPOPE

Meanwhile in Europe, the People of the Serpent were not doing well at all in their attacks on the citadels of the People of the Cross.

The 1945 edition of Encyclopaedia Britannica is very lenient toward the People of the Serpent. It is our authority for the following history, we quote: "With the First Crusade (1096), there took place in the Rhineland the first of the long series of massacres which made the middle ages one long martyrdom for the Jews and ultimately had the effect of driving them back again towards the east. Meanwhile, the growth of the financial activities of the Lombards and Cathars rendered the Jew less necessary in the field which he had previously tended to monopolize and drove him into the meaner calling of pawn broking. The first country to rid itself of the Jews entirely was England, whence they were expelled by Edward I in 1290. This was followed a few years later by the more deadly expulsion of the far more important communities of France (1306). In 1391 and again in 1411, a wild wave of massacre swept through the (Spanish) Peninsula. Following the example of their fathers in Gothic times, many Jews (less stout hearted than their brethren elsewhere) sought refuge in baptism. To cope with the problem of these so-called Marranos, who remained true at heart to their old faith, (hypocrisy added to treachery—Ed.) the Inquisition was introduced (1478). Ferdinand and Isabella issued the edict of expulsion which put an end to the settlement of the Jews in Spain (March 31, 1492). The edict was imitated in Portugal (1496) and in Navarre (1498). Almost simultaneously, the last remnant of the ancient French communities was banished from Provence. An expulsion from the kingdom of Naples (1510 and, more completely 1548) and from the duchy of Milan (1597)...

The whole of Western Europe was now closed to the Jews, which prompts an important editorial question: Could ALL of Christianised Western Europe have been wrong in expelling the Jews?

These expelled People of the Serpent sought refuge in Constantinople, and joined their proselyte brethren, the Khazars, in the Polish Pale or in South Russia from whence they were to emerge again to capture control of most of Europe, then migrate in locust like swarms and inflict a Pharaoh like plague upon the United States of America in the first half of the 20th century.

AMERICA "LIBERATES" THE JEW

In the centuries following their expulsion from Western Europe, the Jews began creeping back into the lands of the People of the Cross. They re-opened pawn shops and second hand goods stores, dabbled as they could in high finance, created or took over secret societies, engaged in international under-the-counter manipulations, perfected their government-within-a-government Kehilla system with which Jews are still kept loyal to the Cabala. But in not a single country of Western Europe were they able to gain full citizenship status.

It was the newly created United States which performed this necessary service for the serpent Race.

Despite awful and impassioned warnings from the wisest man of the times concerning what would happen if Jews were given citizenship rights, or even allowed to enter the country, Benjamin Franklin was overruled and, for the first time in Christian history, Jews were treated as full citizens in the new United States. Governor Peter Stuyvesant tried to have the Jews driven out of New Amsterdam (now New York City) but was forced to accept them on orders from the East India Company.

The reaction in Europe was immediate. The Jews financed Adam Weishaupt, a racial Jew who claimed to be converted to Christianity, and immediately gained control of the French Revolution and, on Sept. 28, 1791, the French national assembly enfranchised French Jewry.

Says Encyclopaedia Britannica: "This was the beginning of the liberalistic era, which reached its climax in the treaty of Versailles in 1919."

The same source also says: "The Bill of Rights of the American constitution influenced the French to emancipate their Jews in 1791."

Napoleon, came along of necessity to clean up the carnage left by the French Revolution. The situation made the man, not the man the situation. He tried to get along with the Jews by encouraging their assimilation with French Christian society. Determined to impose their "culture" upon others, they refused to assimilate, in France or any other country. Napoleon imposed a centralized church government upon the Jews, by which he thought he controlled the rabbis. He also issued an edict whereby he exercised a dictatorial control over all financial transactions into which the Rothschilds of Germany entered.

But a new revolution of 1848 had the effect of freeing the French Jews again, and by this time Karl Marx was on the world scene to give the Jews their most effective weapon for controlling mass human movements: Communism.

Meanwhile, Belgium gave the Jews full citizenship rights in 1830; Austria and Hungary gave them political freedom in 1867, Italy in 1870, Germany in 1871. In 1874 France and the United States forced the wise Swiss to grant political equality to the Jews. More diplomatic pressure forced Denmark to follow suit in 1849, Norway in 1851. Sweden held out longest; as late as 1943 no Jew could sit in its council of State—but World War II forced Sweden to kowtow. The Turkish revolution of 1908 brought the Jews a semblance of political freedom in that land—and the Russian revolution of 1917 need not be detailed here.

The Jews had to blackmail, buy or mongrelise the British aristocracy before they could create an Invisible Government in England. The Jew Francis Goldsmid was admitted to the bar in 1833. Twenty years later Jews were permitted to hold municipal office. In 1858 Baron Lionel de Rothschild "crashed" the house of commons when he was allowed a seat without taking the Christian oath. By 1871 Jews were allowed to enter the previously sacred higher halls of learning in British Universities. In 1885 Nathaniel de Rothschild took his seat in the house of lords—and by 1890 all offices were open to Jews save that of the king of England.

In commenting on the fortunes made by the "emancipated Jews," our previously quoted authority says: "It was, of course, the same system that made possible the large fortunes which brought to birth the Jewish proletariat." Which is an evasive way of saying that Jewish financial control created Jewish communism. But, to continue the quotation: "Large numbers of Jews were artisans in the Moslem lands, in east European areas and in the United States. Through the teachings of socialism these European and American workers became a class-conscious group, united into proletarian friendly societies and into special Yiddish speaking trade unions. In nearly all lands where Jews settled there were individual Jews active in socialistic and trade-union movements: Karl Marx, Ferdinand LaSalle, and Edward Bernstein in Germany, Trotsky, Kamenev and Zinoviev in Russia; the Adlers in Austria; Samuel Gompers, one of the founders of the American Federation of Labour, and Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers were striking instances in the United States."

The history of the world is the history of a series of Apocalypses and the creation of a great civilization and its destruction by the forces which Revelation refers to as Babylon, the Beast, and the Anti-Christ.

When Babylon and Anti-Christ first invaded a civilization in the time of Nimrod, there was no Beast to complete the destruction, so God Himself confused the language and scattered the people.

Babylon was destroyed by the Medes, Persians, it in turn by the Greeks and in turn by the Romans, and the Roman civilization by barbarians.

This time, things are different, because, for the first time in history a great Christian civilization faces destruction. Other civilizations were, at least in part pagan civilizations.

The ingredients of world destruction are not quite completely assembled. The Babylonian (Jewish) System is upon us and the people are prepared for the arrival of the Anti-Christ and—after the fall of the Babylonian economic system must come the Beast who will lead the people and is already prepared to seize control of the world.

"Thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness, and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens."—God's denunciation of "Democracy" as recorded in Exodus, 18: 21.

IMPERIALISM

Elementally, Imperialism is the uniting of different nationalities and racial groups under one government. Traditionally, Imperialism always is accompanied by the loftiest idealism, earnest though erroneous, sincere but thoroughly Satanic. Satan has been looking for a world ruler since the beginning of his authority over the world. He hoped he had one in Jesus, whom Satan took up "into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth Him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them; And saith unto Him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me." When Christ rejected the offer, He sealed His own mortal doom, established His immortality and since that time Satan and his children, the Jews, have been preparing for the time of the Anti-Christ, who will take over and rule the world—unless Christs' followers have, the courage to prevent it. If they do not have that courage, Christ has promised to come in person and do it, but bodies will be piled so high and deep that it will take seven years to bury them after the devil will be chained for a little while.

In previous types of the "Apocalypse," Satan has always been frustrated in his attempts to create and maintain universal Imperialism. Satan almost succeeded when he got hold of Alexander the Great. The winged leopard was impelled by the greatest idealism. He didn't want to make Orientals subjects of Occidental masters. He didn't try to set up a new religion. He promised equality regardless of creed or colour. He encouraged intermarriage and practiced it. He wiped out trade barriers and demanded free commercial exchange between nations. He hated poverty and would have wiped it out if given time. He established complete equality for all people, or at least tried. His goal was world peace. In short, he would have delivered in his day what-the UN promises in our tomorrow: Utopia. But that has never been God's plan, neither under yesterday's Alexander nor tomorrow's Anti-Christ.

Alexander was cut down at the height of his glory, and the world struggled on without his United Nations.

Rome tried it again. The idea was to bring universal peace and justice to a war torn mankind. Citizenship was granted to free men throughout the empire. International law superseded all national and community law. But even under the name of Christianity, it didn't work, for it was not God's plan.

After that and for the next couple of thousand years, regional Imperialism was the best Satan could do.

Now we again hear the cry of "One World". Unable to profit from the lessons we should have learned in the successive falls of Babel, Babylon, Nineveh, Athens, Carthage, Rome, et al; now we're ready to make the same mistakes all over again.

Why can't people live and let live, without trying to force their own peculiar ideas down everyone else's throats?

The end result of this worldwide chaos will be the emergence of the Beast Dictator of an order of world Imperialism, or a return to God's order of racial nationalism. The Prophets say that world imperialism will gain the upper hand for 1335 days, then God's order will—for the first time in history—become worldwide. Standing squarely with the Prophets and knowing that the Beast will win the opening rounds for now the "left" and the "right" are being directed by the anti-Christ, and nothing short of a miracle can prevent the shedding of blood, which the Prophets also have foretold, "let us put on the full armor of God," and prepare to stand—by analysing and understanding the three principle politico-economic weapons which the Beast has ready prepared for him by our gullible leaders.

Without discussing Plato's ethics, we have here the thesis that war is a biological necessity, so long as there are growing and expanding States. Imperialism, then, is the ideological justification for war, a war to enforce peace and prosperity, as it were.

The ultimate World Imperialism (World Government) will enforce peace and prosperity. There is only one thing wrong with the thesis: In all the history of the world, it has never worked. Why?

Without delving too deeply into the metaphysical, here is the beginning of governmental wisdom: According to natural law, unlike things attract and like things repel. However, under Divine Law, unlike things repel and like things attract. God gave man dominion over the things of the earth, to govern them by natural law. But man, himself, is governed by Divine Law.

Therefore, a world government for man can never succeed if it is established under natural law. It can succeed only if it is established under Divine Law, which decrees that only like things attract, and unlike things must be kept separate unto themselves, where they will thrive and prosper among their own, and for the Glory of God.

In the United States, our attempt at government under Divine Law was handicapped from the beginning by the presence of two inassimilable minority groups: black slaves and Jewish traders. For these and other reasons, we have renounced our Constitution and gone in for a type of benevolent imperialism, which brings us into conflict with the "Chosen Race" imperialism of World Zionism. Challenging all three is the growing racial nationalism of Asia and Africa, and a minority demand for a return to racial nationalism on the part of the Anglo -Saxon, Celts and European descended peoples of the world, and even among the formerly enslaved whites in Russia. And, complicating the entire world social upheaval which is occurring, is the imminent collapse of the economic system of liberal capitalism which is the "Modern Babylon."

SOCIALISM

Let's pull no punches and make no mistakes about it: The United States is no longer a Constitutional Republic: it is a Socialized democracy. The rise of Socialized Democracy in the United States was foretold by the Prophet Daniel. Those with eyes to see will understand the following verses in Chapter Eleven: After a great war and a double-cross by a "prince for his own behalf; "then he shall turn his face toward the fort of his own land: but he shall stumble and fall, and not be found."

"Then shall stand up in his estate a raiser of taxes in the glory of the kingdom but within few days (years) he shall be destroyed..."

"And in his estate shall stand up a vile person, to whom they shall not give the honour of the kingdom, but he shall come in peaceably and obtain the kingdom by flatteries." Finally: "He shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver ...but tidings out of the east and out of the north shall trouble him: therefore he shall go forth with great fury to destroy.

"And he shall plant the tabernacles of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him."

Daniel also foretells the end, which is final victory for God's order of Government for the world. Revelation best tells the story of the rise and fall of Zionism, And Ezekiel, in Chapter one foretells the rise of the "false" Israel (Zionism). All conclude, and the lesser Prophets confirm, that, after great tribulations, God's order of Government will triumph. God's order is fully recorded by Moses in Deuteronomy, and by the Founding Fathers in discussions which led to the writing of the Constitution of the United States, with its Bill of Rights. But, we're digressing from the purpose of this report. Socialism is "soft" Marxism brought to power by flattery and coercion. and by money manipulation. It has led to a type of American Imperialism whereby the cream of young American manhood is scattered over the globe for the protection of the international bankers and cartel interests: Its chief Method of conquest is your dollar and mine. Its crash will come with the fall of Babylon, for which the Beast of Zionism is waiting and promising then to take over. Socialism, as a system, leads inevitably to rule by Jewish bankers and Zionism.

COMMUNISM

Communism is hard Marxism, coming into power by violent revolution as contrasted with socialism's persuasive evolution. People living under Communism have received the "mark of the Beast." in that they must show their "mark" in order to buy and sell in the market place. Socialism still experiments with the "mark" through Selective Service numbers. Social Security numbers, Union membership, crop allocations, programs, grants-in-aid, etc., etc.

Communism maintains control through a minority given power through physical force. Socialism maintains control through a minority given power through control of printing press money, and through control of special privileges granted other minorities on a basis of black mail and or promises of security and higher standards of living. Communism is Anti-God. Socialism is, Anti-Christ. Communism depends on brute force as its source of power. Anti-Christ works miracles with printing press money. When old "666" and the incarnate Anti-Christ make themselves known to the world, they'll unite—and they'll get their power, and are getting it, from "that old Dragon," which emerges as World Zionism. This is more understandable when we recall—that Jewish bankers financed the Revolution in Russia and also control the liberal capitalistic system which has the Western World in such a mess.

ZIONISM

Elementally, Zionism is an attempt to create a Racial Nationalism for a people who have had neither Race nor Nationalism for the past 2500 years.

Once again, we must telescope history to understand the movement called Zionism: Geographically, "Zion" was a hill in Jerusalem, on which King David had his palace, and on which his son, King Solomon, completed the building of the Temple. Rebuilt several times, Jesus prophesied its final destruction, which occurred in 70 A.D., as a final renunciation of and judgment upon "those which call themselves Jews." Those who, by that time, the end of the Apostolic Age, had not accepted the new Covenant of Grace were divorced from God and their names taken out of the Book of Life, and God's final judgment upon them was fulfilled.

The Jews, as distinguished from the true Israelites, had perverted spiritual meanings and this made them carnal and material. They were looking for a temporal Messiah who would, literally, make them rulers of the world and possessors of all its material wealth. Therefore, when Jesus told them His Kingdom was not of this world, they rejected Him, engineered the phoniest trial in all history and used political pressure to force Pontius Pilate to order the Crucifixion.

They were dialectic materialists from the beginning. They didn't recognize the real Messiah when He came, and they've been looking for a Messiah ever since—one who will establish them as rulers of the world and possessors of all its wealth.

Bar-Kochba was acclaimed their awaited Messiah in 132 A.D. But Hadrian put a stop to that and barred the city of Jerusalem to them, though he allowed Christians to continue their pilgrimages to the Holy City.

In the next three centuries, Jerusalem and Palestine ceased meaning a thing to the Jews. Zionism was dead and should have remained dead. Jews now looked to Babylon as their "Holy City," from which an international government operated, making dispersed Jews the people of a "nation within nations". wherever they settled. Lest any reader be deceived concerning the facts of Zionism, its death and rebirth, as the head of the beast, wounded unto death, then brought back to life, as recorded in Revelation. We quote from the Jew favouring Encyclopaedia

Britannica, 1945 edition, Volume 13, page 56: "Palestine ceased to be the centre of Jewish life about the year 400 because of economic decline, exploitation, taxation, and because of the religious, civil and political disabilities imposed by the new orientalized and Christianised Roman Empire. Babylon consequently arose as the acknowledged spiritual centre for all Jews because it lay outside the area of Christian anti-Jewish legislation and because it offered greater economic and political opportunities."

Zionism, in both its spiritual and material sense, was deadlier than a door nail to the Jews. So as long as Jews were allowed to live in ghettos where they were subjected to their own Babylonian laws and courts, where government was administered by rabbis and elders, there was no need for Zionism. But the Jews were still looking for their "Messiah."

In the sixteenth century a "Messiah" came along in the person of one David Reubeni. The Sephardic Jews of Spain, Italy and Turkey accepted him with open hearts, and it really scared the Ashkenazim Jews of Europe and Russia; who wanted no part of any Messiah who might upset their ghetto plan of control of the Jews. Reubeni and his disciple Solomon Molchi caused a breach between the three principal castes of Jews which hasn't yet been settled. In 1666, yet another "Messiah" came along and Sabbatai Sebi of Smyrna proclaimed himself the long awaited leader of the Jews. This time the Ashkenazim (Kike) Jews of Europe went wild with joy, began packing up their Talmuds and buying passage to Smyrna to join the overdue "Messiah." The excitement didn't die down for over a century—and the ability of the Elders to control their people was waning fast. The Yids and Sephardics were at each others throats and still are in exclusively Jewish communities, and the whole minority movement was about to collapse.

Moses Mendelssohn (1729-86) just about wrote finis to the whole horrible hubbub. He told his fellow Jews that the only thing that really made them a different breed was their religion. He exhorted them to forget all the nonsense about their race and nationalism, and go ahead and accept Western culture and abide by the laws of the nations in which they lived; remaining faithful to Judaism as a religion and otherwise try to be loyal citizens of the country of their birth. Under the influence of Mendelssohn's philosophy, the Jews began acting like people and began being treated like people. They were accorded civil rights and ghettos began disappearing.

In 1806 Napoleon called a meeting of the Jewish Sanhedrin, and Judaism as racism or nationalism was repudiated. From now on, they said, Judaism would be a religion and nothing else.

This didn't sit well with the Rothschilds, Montefiores, and other Jewish leaders who wanted to use a controlled people for their own selfish purposes, to gain political and financial power.

So, the Alliance Israelite Universelle was formed, and Zionism was disinterred, given a political cloak and an aim, to restore the forgotten Palestine as a Jewish State—and political Zionism was born.

From now on the Jews would be their own Messiah, they would become rulers of the world and possessors of its wealth through their own cunning and serpentine guile.

The political application of Zionism caught on like wildfire among the Yiddish element of Jewry. What had been a Jewish religious minority now became a political proletariat. Marx rewrote Weishaupt's Illuminati code for intellectuals and made it a Communist code for the masses. Leo Pinsker of Odessa inspired the creation of a Jewish "Nationalism" which culminated in the Truman engineered bastard State of Israel. Ginsberg, Herzen and others finally codified the master plan which has come to be known as the Protocols of the learned Elders of Zion.

The rest of the story is well known to our readers whose documentation has yet to be disputed by the Political Zionists.

Let this be understood: Zionism is Jewish Racial Nationalism. They claim to be a nation but if this were so, they would hurry back eagerly to Israel and stop plaguing us with their presence.

While denying our right to racial nationalism they base their right to rule the world on their own.

Only by mongrelising the rest of the world can they justify their claim of "racial" superiority. Therefore, while proscribing amalgamation of their own with any others, they encourage it among all other people. While trying to keep their own religion intact, they try to destroy all others. While controlling liberal capitalism, socialism and communism they are able to play one against the other, for the final purpose of ruling the world, whether that world emerge as a world of liberal capitalism or as a world of soft Socialism or a world of hard Marxism.

CONCLUSION—AND PROLOGUE

In this report we, have classified the systems which we must defeat under several headings: Babylonism, anti-Christianism, Centralism, Imperialism, Socialism, Communism and Zionism. Behind every one of these stands the International Jew who has brainwashed and all but destroyed us with his triple power of Purse, Press and Politics. He has given us printing press money and regulates the value of it. To suit his own interests. Through this power he has forced Christians into wars so that they may kill each other, thus making room for his "chosen people." He has given us "Brotherhood" and denied us Christianity.

He has given us liberalism, Socialism and Communism and he has denied us Racial Nationalism.

He has taken control of our professions of law, medicine and theology.

He dictates to our President, tells our Senators and Congressmen how to vote, renders our Supreme Court decisions. He is rewriting our Bible once again, tells us what kind of music we may listen to, what books we may read, what kind of movies we may see, censors our radio and television programs and our newspapers. He dictates the style of our clothes and the price of our coffee.

He selects the candidates for whom we may vote and he seeks to tell our children whom they may marry.

If we are to restore our Christian American Heritage, we must build a positive program of Christian American action which will not compromise in any manner with his controlled liberal capitalism, Marxism or anti-Christianism. Such a program is yet to be written.

CALLING THE PEOPLE OF BRITAIN

At last the bible makes sense!

At last we know its meaning.

Its the book of the RACE
