Dear Reader,

Weather Wars

Flooded Cumbria

And the fourth angel sounded, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so as the third part of them was darkened, and the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night likewise. Revelation 8:12.

Over the Christmas and New Year holiday period, and which is indeed still continuing, as this edition of the New Ensign goes to press, the intensity of chemtrail spraying has been unprecedented. Our correspondents from various parts of the UK and the rest of the world, are reporting unusual weather: In the UK, extremely mild with copious quantities of rain and severe flooding in the west, The mild weather also affected Europe including Moscow and St. Petersburg, which were without snow until fairly recently. Extreme weather is also being experienced in the USA and Australia.

There is good evidence that these conditions are caused by man made weather control (Geo-engineering) utilising the chemtrail sprayed particulates in conjunction with HAARP and radio/wifi masts.

Consequential upon the aerial spraying, causing a diminution of sunlight, many have been badly affected by throat and chest infections over the holiday. Many will run to their doctor and be prescribed dangerous drugs and antibiotics, which will cause further health problems to them.

We are indeed seeing at the present time “signs in the heavens”, but not quite as we expected no doubt!

While most have been distracted during the last holiday period, the enemy, was as ever, been busy at work endeavouring to wipe out Yahweh’s servant people, but praise Yahweh, for we know their plans for us won’t succeed! This reminds us of His promise that: “And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved: but for the elect’s sake those days shall be shortened.” Matthew 24:22

What Is Salvation?

By Pastor Eli James

A Biblical Word Study Exposing the Non-Scriptural Traditions of Modern Church Teaching

“None of the wicked shall understand, but only the wise shall understand.” – Daniel, 12:10.

CONSIDER THIS FAIRLY common assessment of what it means to be “saved”: “The Crucifixion, however, had forever repudiated the sacrifices of the temple and the Jewish ambition of world conquest. The Jewish dream of divine special favour over all mankind had no part in the doctrines of Christianity. The Cross dispelled that narrow, selfish myth. Salvation was for all: God’s mercy and love encompassed everyone, everywhere; poor, rich, the slave and the prince. No one was excluded. All one had to do was believe: to accept.” Olivia Marie O’Grady, The Beasts of the Apocalypse, pp. 131-132.

We will find that O’Grady’s assessment is both simplistic and naïve, as she falsely equates the Jews with the Israelites of the Old Testament and has not studied the Scriptural concept of salvation. There is nothing selfish about True Israel getting the inheritance that was promised only to us, because, as you will see, we have to EARN IT.

Unfortunately, modern Christianity has routinely departed from the Scriptural meanings of words. The essence of accurate translation is to first properly understand the meanings of the words in the original language. Words, such as ekklesia (congregation or assembly) and ethnos (race, nation), have been horribly translated to have meanings that are utterly foreign to the intent of the original Hebrew and Greek writings. Ekklesia means “congregation,” NOT church. It is an exclusive reference to Israelites gathered together for either worship or for official business. The presence of a denominational priest is not required for any such meeting. In fact, this type clerical priesthood is even condemned in Scripture (the Nicolaitanes). The word ‘Gentile’ has been distorted even more horribly, having been given the connotation of “non-Jewish,” even though it has never had any such meaning in either Hebrew (goy) or the Greek (ethnos).

The word ‘salvation’ has undergone a somewhat less glaring transformation in meaning, but it is nevertheless, in modern usage, quite different in meaning from the Biblical usage. Though more subtle, the word has, however, undergone a very broad expansion in context and a great spiritualization of meaning. The false translation of these words has led to the Replacement Theology of today, which declares that Yahweh’s promises to the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob must now be applied to all peoples. The modern, Church Greek, connotation of salvation usually involves something like “going to heaven after you die.” This is, of course, quite simplistic. We often hear the expression, “Accept Jesus into your heart, and you will be saved.” What does such “acceptance” amount to? Can it be qualified? Can it be quantified? Is it real?

Would that salvation were so easy!!!

This linked article provides a very scholarly look at the concept of salvation. Nevertheless, it is also infected by some false assumptions about what the Bible actually teaches.

The fact is that the word ‘salvation’ has ceased to be used in a Scriptural sense. In the Bible, almost every instance of the word applies to the physical preservation of the people, Israel. This is true in both Testaments. The spiritualization of the concept can only be justified by the specific context; and the context rarely deviates from the preservation of flesh-and-blood Israel.

Salvation in the Old Testament

In the Hebrew, the word for salvation is YESHUWA (#3444), meaning “deliverance...aid, victory, prosperity, health, help, salvation, save, saving (health), welfare.”

By checking the verses in which this word is used, we find that, in the Hebrew, there is not one instance in which this word has a spiritual connotation. It ALWAYS refers to the physical welfare and preservation of the people of Israel.

In a majority of cases, the meaning is that Israel will be rescued from our national and personal enemies. In this sense, it is closer to the English word, ‘salvaged,’ as in salvaging a remnant. Two important facts must be noted in these Hebrew passages:

- 1.) ‘yeshuwa’ is never spiritualized;
- 2.) ‘yeshuwa’ is never applied to any other entity than the collective people of Israel and/or to individual Israelites.

Some examples are:

I Sam. 14:44-45. And Saul answered, God do so and more also: for thou shalt surely die, Jonathan. And the people said unto Saul, Shall Jonathan die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? God forbid: as the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground; for he hath wrought with God this day. So the people rescued Jonathan, that he died not.

II Sam 23:3-5. The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spake to me, He that ruleth over men must be just, ruling in the fear of God. And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the sun riseth, even a morning without clouds; as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain. Although my house be not so with God; yet he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things, and sure: for this is all my salvation, and all my desire, although he make it not to grow. (Here, physical salvation linked to the Covenants.)

It is obvious that the Old Testament is primarily concerned with the physical preservation of the Israelite people, if only because our Race was destined to bring forth the Messiah. But His First Advent does not end the necessity of preserving our Race. The fact is that the Divine Covenants apply to us as a physical people forever.

Psalm 25: Unto thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul. O my God, I trust in thee: let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me. Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed which transgress without cause. Shew me thy ways, O LORD; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day. Remember, O LORD, thy tender mercies and thy lovingkindnesses; for they have been ever of old. Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness' sake, O LORD. Good and upright is the LORD: therefore will he teach sinners in the way. The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way. All the paths of the LORD are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies. (In this excerpt, salvation is something that occurs within the person's lifetime and it is linked to obeying Yahweh's commandments.)

By reading the various OT verses that deal with the concept of salvation, we see that it is hardly ever spiritualized beyond the physical health and preservation of our bodies and nation, nor is it generalized beyond Israel to other nations. Nor is it ever linked to any circumstances of the afterlife. It IS, however, linked to the Day of Judgment. In the words of Peter, the Estranged Elect (Dispersed) of Israel are destined “To an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled...unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.” (I Peter 1:1-5.)

Salvation is Exclusive to Israel

Psalm 14:7. The LORD taketh pleasure in them that fear him, in those that hope in his mercy. Praise the LORD, O Jerusalem; praise thy God, O Zion. For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates; he hath blessed thy children within thee. He maketh peace in thy borders, and filleth thee with the finest of the wheat. He sendeth forth his commandment upon earth: his word runneth very swiftly. He giveth snow like wool: he scattereth the hoarfrost like ashes. He casteth forth his ice like morsels: who can stand before his cold? He sendeth out his word, and melteth them: he causeth his wind to blow, and the waters flow. He sheweth his word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for his judgments, they have not known them. Praise ye the LORD.

All of these physical blessings are part of our salvation; and they are only promised to Israel...not to any church, not to any other races, not to mere “believers,” not to any “spiritual” Israel. Rather, the physical preservation of Israel is of paramount importance because we are the People destined to rule with Him after the Day of Judgment. In the meantime, how we observe our Covenant relationship with Yahweh determines the direction of world affairs. It might be stated: “As Israel go, so the world goes.” (Of course, the impostor Jews are trying to replace us in this matter! Esau is trying to supplant his brother, Jacob.) When we prosper by obeying His Commandments, the world also prospers. When we decline by disobedience and rebellion, the rest of the world also suffers. It has always been so, since Sinai. This is why Yahshua tells us, “Ye are the light of the world,” the City on the Hill. (Matt. 5:14.)

The Law Covenant was only one of many Covenants that our Father, Yahweh, has made with us through our ancestors, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. When Yahweh said to Abraham, “I will establish my Covenant between Me and thee and thy seed [zerah = offspring] after thee [direct descendants only] in their generations [dor = circle of family] for an EVERLASTING COVENANT,” He meant exactly what He said. Yahweh has always delivered on His promises, to the letter. These promises were made to no other people but these direct descendants, the kindred of Abraham, through Isaac and Jacob; and no priest can change this fact by spiritualizing or universalizing the context of Biblical doctrine.

Paul confirms the exclusivity of the Covenants at Gal. 3:16: “Now to Abraham and his seed [SPERMA = children, offspring, progeny] were the promises made. He saith not, And to seeds [that is, to many or diverse sperma, as of many, different kinds of sperma]; but as of one [kind of sperma], which is anointed.”

Most KJV translations have the proper name, Christ, instead of the correct word ‘anointed,’ meaning His anointed people, Israel. The KJV is dead wrong here, for it is patently obvious that the promises were NOT MADE TO CHRIST. The promises were made to Abraham’s direct descendants. This is exactly the fact that Paul is affirming. Indeed, Christ is the ONE WHO WAS PROMISED, not the one to whom the promises were made. Since He was sinless, He didn’t need any salvation. He IS our salvation. The KJV translation simply butchers the Greek, in an attempt to universalize the promises, which Paul, in verse 15, says very plainly CANNOT BE ANNULLED. Nor does any human interpreter have the power or authority to change Yahweh’s Covenants. Yet, the Judeo Churches are working overtime, trying to universalize the very specific and exclusive language of the Covenants!

Furthermore, I can assure you that there is no such thing as “spiritual sperm.” There is no magical transubstantiation of race that takes place, such that a non-Israelite transmutes into a “descendant of Abraham” by becoming a “believer.” Those who believe falsehood are not true believers, are they? To Be Continued OS24062

In The Name of Yahweh

By Andrew Carrington-Hitchcock

Part 4

GENESIS 49:5 – Simeon and Levi [are] brethren; instruments of cruelty [are in] their habitations.

Genesis 49:6 – O my soul, come not thou into their secret; unto their assembly, mine honour, be not thou united: for in their anger they slew a man, and in their self will they digged down a wall.

Genesis 49:7 – Cursed [be] their anger, for [it was] fierce; and their wrath, for it was cruel: I will divide them in Jacob, and scatter them in Israel.

Here Simeon and Levi are described as angry and possessing instruments of cruelty with which they killed a man. It should therefore come as no surprise that they are represented by the most dangerous weapon of the time, a sword.

The heraldry of a sword is found in the Arms of many of the counties of the United Kingdom and Ireland, such as Cheshire, Connacht, Durham, Essex, London, and Perth.

Frediricia - Denmark

It is also found in provincial emblems of Holland, Sweden and Denmark.

Genesis 49:8 – Judah, thou [art he] whom thy brethren shall praise: thy hand [shall be] in the neck of thine enemies; thy father's children shall bow down before thee.

Genesis 49:9 – Judah [is] a lion's whelp: from the prey, my son, thou art gone up: he stooped down, he couched as a lion, and as an old lion; who shall rouse him up?

Genesis 49:10 – The sceptre shall not depart from Judah, nor a lawgiver from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him [shall] the gathering of the people [be].

Genesis 49:11 – Binding his foal unto the vine, and his ass's colt unto the choice vine; he washed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes:

Genesis 49:12 – His eyes [shall be] red with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

Judah is likened to a lion three times, he is said to be in possession of a sceptre, and he is associated with a grape vine.

The emblem of the three lions is primarily associated with England being their tribal emblem, it is the coat-of-arms of the England football team and cricket team, and is emblazoned on the players' team shirts.

The lion is one of the two supporters of the Royal Coat Of Arms Of The United Kingdom, the other being the unicorn of Ephraim.

The use of the lion is not restricted to England, it can also be found in heraldry from: Belgium; Canada; Denmark; Finland; Holland; Ireland; Luxembourg; Northern Ireland; Norway; Scotland; and Sweden.

The sceptre and the grape vine are not used, however the sceptre forms an important part of the coronation ceremony of British Sovereigns, who are directly descended from King David.

An important point here is that when the Jews claim to be Israel or, "God's Chosen People," they are claiming to be solely the tribe of Judah.

If this is the case, then why do they not use any of the heraldry of Judah to represent themselves, and furthermore how do they explain the whereabouts of the other eleven tribes?

Genesis 49:13 – Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea; and he [shall be] for an haven of ships; and his border [shall be] unto Zidon.

prov
Wales;

Zebulun is associated with ships and a ship became the emblem of his nation.

The ship is the ancient symbol of Holland and it also appears in the emblems of various princes in England; Scotland; Ireland; and Denmark.

Genesis 49:14 – Issachar [is] a strong ass couching down between two burdens:

Genesis 49:15 – And he saw that rest [was] good, and the land that [it was] pleasant; and bowed his shoulder to bear, and became a servant unto tribute.

The symbol of Issachar is an ass (more commonly known as a donkey).

Genesis 49:16 – Dan shall judge his people, as one of the tribes of Israel.

Genesis 49:17 – Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward.

Genesis 49:18 – I have waited for thy salvation, O Yahweh (LORD).

Here we can see the primary emblem for Dan is a serpent. A horse and rider are also mentioned.

The primary emblem of the serpent was not used, presumably due to its association with Satan in the Garden of Eden, however the symbol of a horse appears in Denmark, Germany, Holland, Lithuania, Scotland, and Sweden.

Also in a number of places in England, you can see ancient white horses cut into the turf of a hillside.

Genesis 49:19 – Gad, a troop shall overcome him: but he shall overcome at the last.

The symbology for Gad is not as clear as for some of the other tribes, but troop ended up as the heraldry of a man on a horse holding a pennant.

Genesis 49:20 – Out of Asher his bread [shall be] fat, and he shall yield royal dainties.

Again unclear symbology, but, “royal dainties,” was translated in heraldry as a covered cup or goblet.

This heraldry can be found in the Arms of Barnsley and Warrington in England, and in Greenock and Paisley in Scotland.

Genesis 49:21 – Naphtali [is] a hind let loose: he giveth goodly words.

Here we can see the emblem for Naphtali is a hind (more commonly known as a deer).

Genesis 49:22 – Joseph [is] a fruitful bough, [even] a fruitful bough by a well; [whose] branches run over the wall:

Genesis 49:23 – The archers have sorely grieved him, and shot [at him], and hated him:

Genesis 49:24 – But his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the mighty [God] of Jacob; (from thence [is] the shepherd, the stone of Israel:)

Genesis 49:25 – [Even] by the God of thy father, who shall help thee; and by the Almighty, who shall bless thee with blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that lieth under, blessings of the breasts, and of the womb:

Genesis 49:26 – The blessings of thy father have prevailed above the blessings of my progenitors unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills: they shall be on the head of Joseph, and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren.

With Joseph this gets a little complicated, as he was given a double blessing, two tribes, which Jacob (Israel) transferred to his two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, see:

Genesis 48:14 – And Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid [it] upon Ephraim’s head, who [was] the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh’s head, guiding his hands wittingly; for Manasseh [was] the firstborn.

Genesis 48:15 – And he blessed Joseph, and said, God, before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me all my life long unto this day, Genesis 48:16 – The Angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.

Now to return to Genesis 49:22-24 to establish the marks to look out for in heraldry pertaining to Ephraim and Manasseh.

We can see a bough (branch of a tree) and archers shooting arrows.

The primary emblem of the tribe of Manasseh is an olive branch, with the secondary emblem being a bundle of arrows.

The nation that uses this symbology in its emblems is the United States, and these are generally shown beneath an eagle.

The bundle of arrows is also used in the Arms of towns in England and Scotland, and was one of the original emblems in the emblem of Holland.

With regard to the symbology of Ephraim, we turn to the book of Deuteronomy and to what Moses said about this branch of Israel:

Deuteronomy 33:17 – His glory [is like] the firstling of his bullock, and his horns [are like] the horns of unicorns: with them he shall push the people together to the ends of the earth: and they [are] the ten thousands of Ephraim, and they [are] the thousands of Manasseh.

Here we can see a bull, horns and unicorns.

The bull appears in heraldry throughout England, Scotland, Denmark, and Sweden, and is a principal item in the emblem of Iceland.

The unicorn is one of the two supporters of the Royal Coat of Arms of the United Kingdom, the other being the lion of Judah. The unicorn supports both sides of the Arms of Scotland, and is prominent in other heraldry in Scotland and Holland.

The horn is featured in heraldry within towns of England, Denmark, and Holland.

Wales And The Lost Tribes of Israel (Part 2) Guto ap Dafydd

King Arthur

KING ARTHUR'S FLEET to North America has been suggested to be in the hundreds in ships and in the tens of thousands in men. According to Wilson, Welsh shipbuilders were the best in the business and many ancient Khumric kings fought wars of movement that relied upon their being able to move large numbers of troops and vast quantities of supplies from place to place – a fact he says is often overlooked by many establishment figures who are quite happy for other tribal groups, the Angles, the Saxons, the Vikings and others to have sailed long distances in ships of great speed and manoeuvrability.

Madog and King Arthur's vast armies are believed to have travelled up the intricate river systems of North America, raising structures and encountering friendly and unfriendly tribes of native Americans before finally settling down mostly around the Midwest or the the Great Plains.

There are some claims that they possibly worked with and influenced South American civilisations as well – not so much of a stretch of the imagination if considering the possible influence of the Druids on Egyptian civilisation and Pyramid building.

People would do well to avoid negative knee jerk reactions and keep an open mind in this area – history teaches us that truth is most often far stranger than fiction.

Wilson and Blackett have spent much time in the USA with American historians, collecting considerable evidence and visiting sites of interest.

Evidence of Welsh speaking native Americans is numerous and far more common than what we have perhaps been led to believe, with books and historical records suggesting that this hypothesis cannot now be disregarded.

King Arthur II, claims Wilson, was killed in a battle with Native American tribes in what is today known as Kentucky and his body sent home to Britain.

In 1824, Thomas S Hinde, of the prominent Hinde family, wrote to John S. Williams, editor of The American Pioneer, regarding the Madog tradition. In the letter (pages 373-376) Hinde claimed to have gathered testimony from numerous sources that stated that in 1799, six soldiers had been dug up near Jeffersonville, Indiana, on the Ohio river with breastplates that contained Welsh coat-of-arms. He also gives several references to Welsh and Welsh-speaking Indians. The present-day location of the breast plates are unknown.

Reuben T. Durrett's book 'Traditions of the Earliest Visits of Foreigners to North America' published in 1908 has an incredible amount of references to the Welsh Indians.

As does 'The Rev Morgan Jones and the Welsh Indians of Virginia' published in 1898, and 'The biography of Francis Lewis and Rev Morgan Jones' written by Lewis' granddaughter Julia Delafield and published in 1877.

Numerous other credible sources can be found from across much of North America in support of the Welsh American heritage.

Although no comprehensive and thorough pan-Atlantic genetic research seems to have yet been done in this area, it is also interesting to note that many native American tribes in the Midwest and North East of the USA, and Canada especially, have a disproportionately high percentage of the R1b haplogroup (Y-DNA).

As mentioned, the R1b haplogroup Y-DNA (R-M269) is most commonly found in Western Britain and Western Europe, with the highest concentration to be found specifically in Wales at 92.3% as a percentage of total population.

John Evans of Waunfawr (above his map) is an oft-cited example of an explorer who could not find Welsh speakers in the Mandan tribe. But the Mandan was only one tribe and Evans only explored a small area, mainly following the upper Missouri river.

He did not set out to find all the areas with well documented claims of Welsh speaking locals – in Virginia, north Carolina, Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Florida to name but a few.

Furthermore, Evans was in the pay of the Spanish crown. If he would have reported evidence of Welsh speaking Indians it would give the Khumric Welsh (and British state at that time under Elizabeth 1st) a rightful claim on North America, making Christopher Columbus and the Spanish government's claim utterly valueless, leaving Evans out of a job and probably in danger of his life.

Maybe he simply didn't find any evidence on his particular travels and dared not try again in case he found what he may have suspected was true. One thing is fairly sure – the Christopher Columbus discovery of America is now a defunct historical celebration due to numerous other earlier claims, not least the Madog claim – a claim that is now getting harder to ignore considering the various evidence and numerous Madog/Madoc place names scattered across North America.

Although there can be little doubt that they later became more problematic, the destructive comet and resulting Dark Ages angle suggests that the swift, genocidal Anglo-Saxon conquest of large areas of Britain theory perhaps needs to be re-evaluated as well.

Wilson states that most of Britain was devastated when debris from this comet caused a scatter of vast explosions and devastations equivalent to a rain of perhaps a hundred atomic bombs.

The illiterate German peasants, guided by the Roman church eager for them to colonise were thus able to move into depopulated areas, slowly recovering empty lands in east Britain especially, he claims.

Wilson and Blackett claim that Coelbren alphabet inscriptions also exist on many ancient stones in Britain, notably the stone of King Gorddwfn. Dafydd ap Gwilym (died 1367 AD) mentions it, as do six other well known bards between AD 1420 to 1480.

The theory that Iolo Morgannwg (born 1747) randomly came up with the Coelbren in some opium den in Hampstead, unless he had a Dr Who Tardis time machine, therefore makes little sense and was presumably an early propaganda piece by an establishment desperate to try and manipulate the true history of Wales and Britain. Although no historian can be right all of the time, Wilson and Blackett are unequivocal that their body of research is a provable, authentic and accurate ancient national British history.

Thousands of members of the public in Wales, England, Scotland and across the globe are fully aware of the conspiracy to cover up the truth, perpetuated by the BBC and others in academia and beyond.

Real Welsh British history can now thankfully be found being increasingly discussed, researched and debated online.

Contrary to what many (mostly elite English establishment historians) have tried to tell us, the Britons were a highly advanced, culturally developed, literate, metal-working civilization who had followed Christ and his teachings since 35-37 AD – not the illiterate barbarians that the establishment academics would have us believe. Any notion of a shared or inclusive Brythonic heritage were forgotten however when the London establishment and Crown imported the German Hanoverian family of the elector of Hanover as their puppet Kings and Queens claims Wilson:

“From this point onwards everything historical had to be politically and religiously redesigned into a suitably acceptable form to promote the new Germanism in England in particular, and Britain as a whole.

“From this time onwards the centuries of assaults upon all ancient British history, heritage and culture, accelerated and increased. Everything British had to go.

“The numerous, strong, culturally advanced British nations had to be transformed into primitive tribes of uneducated barely civilized peasant barbarians and the German origins of the Anglo Saxons needed to be promoted and extolled.

“Periodic control of parts of Britain by the Romans were expanded to an imaginary period of 400 years of total domination and described as ‘Roman Britain’ with all the British dynasties suddenly eliminated.”

Wilson and Blackett are certain that, despite the sudden devastating effects of the crashed comet, there were no dark ages in Britain in the political way we have been led to believe. The major Khumric British Kings continued from at least 500 BC to 1300 AD and the Khumric British line of kings persisted right through the greatly exaggerated alleged ‘Roman period’.

Commenting on the Dark ages narrative, Wilson writes:

“The near 80 successive Khumric Kings, who ruled from circa 500 BC to AD 1300, included King Arthur I (the first Arthur) son of Mascen Wledig of circa AD 345 -400, who did defeat the Romans as Soissons – Sassy and kill the Roman Emperor Gratian as Lyons-Lugdumum in 383 AD. The sixth generations later King Arthur II (the second Arthur) son of King Meurig, who was born in AD 503, died in 579 “What the Academics in London, Oxford, Cambridge, and elsewhere cannot get into their heads is the provable fact that the British line of Kings persisted right through the greatly exaggerated alleged ‘Roman period’ and that there never was any Roman Britain of the order they imagine, and imagine is the correct word.” Wilson adds:

“Because it was not possible to murder the entire ancient British nation, the strategy has been to destroy, to eradicate, and to obliterate the vast and entire corpus of all ancient British history. At this present time this deliberate and evil campaign has been largely successful, and the demolition of the truth is gathering pace.

“These organizations have succeeded in transforming the correct image of our ancient British ancestors from being a very well recorded highly civilized, literate, advanced and developed culture that was comparable to anything that Greece, Rome, or Judea, had to offer, into a gross caricature of misrepresentation as a disparate spread of loose primitive near savage tribal peoples.

“The misrepresentation of our ancient British Ancestors is so grotesque as to be almost beyond imagination”

For over 30 years Wilson and Blackett say that they have made every effort and attempt to make the Welsh authorities aware they are sitting on a tourist industry that could offer thousands of jobs where work is much needed, but to no avail.

It is obvious they say, that the real history of Britain and the Britons is of huge potential embarrassment to the London regime, to the Church of England and to the Vatican in Rome. The media, press and official establishment have tried to destroy them and their characters because they have “dared to question the phoney, fabricated, and forged and quite hilariously stupid set of yarns that have been invented since AD 1714 to masquerade as ancient British history, foisted by the London establishment as servants to the Crown corporation”

But where does all this talk of the lost tribes of Israel leave the people that currently call themselves Jewish? A report published in the Times of Israel in March declared that modern day Jews are in fact mostly Khazars who converted to the religion of Judaism in the period between the seventh and ninth century and ruled over Khazaria – a vast part of what became southern Russia and Ukraine, before moving in their droves to what we know today as modern Israel and becoming the ancestors of what are often now known as the Ashkenazi Jews.

The report by Israeli researcher Eran Elhaik states that Khazar ancestry is the single largest element in the Ashkenazi Jewish gene pool.

A team of esteemed scholars from leading research institutions and museums also issued a report to the Israeli government acknowledging that European Jews are in fact Khazars – research which the Israeli government have accepted prompting many Israelis to suggest creating a new second homeland in the present day Ukraine which would have been part of the original Khazaria empire.

According to Alan Wilson, this figure of present day Ashkenazi Jews in Israel not being ethnically or originally Jewish/Israelite is put at around 95% of the population, while up to 5% of the present day population are thought to be remnants of the original ethnic Israelites.

This would certainly make sense if we consider that most of the original tribes of Israel would have left this area of the middle east many centuries before if following the Lost Ten Tribes hypothesis.

The 'anti Semitic' label often given to anyone who merely discusses or debates the situation and history of Israel/Palestine has also become rather defunct considering that the Semitic label refers to people who are from and speak a family of languages native to the Middle East and Western Asia which includes ancient Phoenician as well as the later Hebrew and Arabic languages .

British Israelite movements seen in the last few centuries seem to continue to attempt to sell an Anglo-Israeli version of history that conflates 'British' with 'English', failing to grasp that British in its true sense means Khumric/Welsh Britons with a shared common language of Cymraeg/Welsh – a language steeped in the history of Britain, Europe and it seems, Egypt, Palestine and the Middle East.

Professor John Morris Jones wrote a thesis in 1898 that demonstrated how the complex Khumric syntax and that of ancient Egypt were identical, with the same seven vowels - AEIOUWY – used in ancient Egypt and Cymraeg.

Wilson asks:

“So why has this centuries long Anti-British conspiracy aimed at the total destruction of the history, the heritage, and the culture of the native British people which is the inalienable property of all of us who are British by descent and/or birth, been carried on?

“What are the Church of Rome and the London Establishment of its Monarchy and Church so afraid of that they determinedly conspire to destroy the rightful inheritance of the British Nation?”

He and other historians such as Michael A Clark believe that one of the main reasons for the conspiracy is that, following the collapse of a religious-political movement in Jerusalem in AD 35, the group known as The Holy Family, led by a certain Joseph of Arimatea (later known as St Ildid), packed up, left Jerusalem and sailed to Britain knowing that their ancient kinsmen, the Khumry, who would have been in Britain for at least 500 years prior, would give them refuge and protect them.

A young man going by the name of Iesu Grist/Jesus Christ is also claimed to have visited Britain in his youth, and is also buried in Britain according to Wilson.

The disproportionate number of place names in Wales that have Israelite origins also tends to lend a certain weight to the history of the Khumry and the twelve lost tribes hypothesis in a biblical/Israelite context: Bethesda, Hebron, Hermon, Bethel etc.

According to Wilson:

“The First Christian Church was established in Khumric Wales in AD 35 -‘the last year of Tiberius and this was attested to by Cardinal Baronius, the learned Vatican Librarian, as a direct result of his researches around 1535. This original Apostolic Christianity was taken to Rome from Britain in AD 51 when the Apostolic Christian family of King Caradog travelled to the Italian capital where Caradog’s son Linus became the first bishop of Rome.

considerable.”

Wilson comments that this very definitely contradicts the claims of the Church of Rome that Peter and Paul founded the Western Church in Rome, both of whom incidentally arrived in Rome at separate times much later.

So there is an immediate problem with Roman Catholicism and the original Apostolic Christian Church according to Wilson and Blackett’s work. These major problems increase when the detail of the original British Apostolic Christianity stemming directly from the Holy Family, its founder and his followers in Britain, is compared with that of Rome.

In other words, The Khumric Welsh took Christianity to Rome, not the other way round. If this is correct it turns all known European history on its head, spins it sideways and kicks it into oblivion. No wonder the London establishment and media act so peculiarly when it comes to Wales and the Welsh language, bizarrely undermining a crucial part of their own Brythonic heritage in the process.

If Christianity was taken to Rome from Wales by the Khumric Welsh, this, as mentioned, virtually demolishes the pretensions of the Church of Rome.

This version of British history – and the suggested ancient lineage of the Welsh Khumry being the original lost tribes of Israel – is obviously damaging to the pretensions of the puppet English Monarchy and is further potentially problematic to aspects of modern Israeli political power ambitions.

Maybe affectionate descriptions of the Welsh language being the ‘language of heaven’ are also a further vexation to those wishing to claim and exercise absolute religious and monarchical authority.

As Wilson states:

“It is time to tell the truth. The whole truth, and nothing but the truth. We are dealing with the biggest pack of political and religious lies in the history of the world.”

Meanwhile the Cymric people have somehow managed to retain their timeless language, values and sense of place and purpose whilst still reaching out and connecting themselves to the whole world.

Perhaps the people of Wales, past and present, have always known that they have been fighting dark political and spiritual powers.

So could the Welsh Britons be the Khumric lost Ten Tribes of Israel?

Yes they could is the simple answer. More debate and discussion of the various evidence and possibilities is certainly needed.

But generations of a collective national memory still exist and, when added to the increasing amount of credible evidence, the suspicion must be that this is a distinct if not very likely possibility. History, as always, is in the making. Wilson and Blackett have written more than 11 books on British Welsh history which can be brought from most online platforms. There are also countless videos and DVDs of their work available online, most of them free to watch. Or for further information and prices contact one of their main retailers here

General Grant and The Jews A Report Compiled by The Late Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith

Gen. Ulysses Grant

Editor's Note:

ONE of the most attacked and smeared of American leaders is the former President Of the United States Ulysses S. Grant. The odium and ill repute heaped upon his character has often been so vituperative as to appear maniacal. At the time of his Presidency the United States was torn and divided by the hatreds and sufferings engendered by the bloody and senseless civil war between the Southern Confederacy and the Northern Union --- these personal feelings were carried over into the regard with which political leaders were held. General Grant naturally became both a devil and a saint, depending upon the political prejudices of the individual. But, in more recent times, a definite and positive campaign has long been under way to picture this former President as a dissolute, degenerate and corrupt man.

Smear and character assassination are political weapons today-weapons used by the Zionist, conspiracy to destroy the effectiveness of Nationalist patriots who dare to voice a warning to our Nation of the evil plot of world dictatorship. The, campaign against General Grant, a tremendously popular hero, seemed to bear all the earmarks of the type of smear campaign that would have been carried on by an earlier Drew Pearson or Walter Winchell.

But was General Grant "anti-Semitic"? (For that is the only "crime" which calls down all the satanic wrath of the smear-mongers. And so-called anti-Semitism is actually only a vocal expression of awareness of the inherent evil in organized power mad Jewry.) The research staff of The Cross and The Flag started to work on the Orders and Statements issued by General Grant.

The result of this research appears below.

In our own time, another military leader, General George Van Horn Moseley, also tasted the vicious wrath of the Jew because he dared to speak the truth forthrightly.

(These orders way be found in the Official Records of the War of the Rebellion, Series 1, Volume XVII, Part 11, pages 330, 337, 421-22, 424.)

Refuse all permits to come south of Jackson for the present. The Israelites especially should be kept out.

What troops have you now, exclusive of Stevenson's brigade?

U. S. Grant - Major-General

November 19, 1862
LaGrange, Tennessee,

To: General Webster
Jackson, Tennessee

Give orders to all the conductors on the road, that potential geographical expansion is limited only by the natural factors of assimilation, race, language and way of life --- of the people living within its sovereignty, and by the consent and petition of those White men who wish to join their fate with ours and become our brothers and sisters in one great White community. The need is leadership with the vision and idealism to continue the building of the great structure whose foundations were so nobly laid by the Founding Fathers, who would weep in deep grief today if they could but know of the lack of vision on the part of the present so called leaders of our people.

No Jews are to be permitted to travel on the railroad Southward from any point.

They may go North, and should be encouraged to it, but they are such an intolerable nuisance that the department must be purged of them.

U. S. Grant Major-General III

Hdqrs. 13th A. C, Dept. of the Tennessee
Oxford, Mississippi,
December 17, 1862

Hon. G. P. Wolcott, Asst. Secretary of War
Washington, D.C.

I have long since believed that in spite of all vigilance that can be infused into post commanders, the specie regulations of the Treasury Department have been violated, and that mostly by Jews and other unprincipled traders.

So well satisfied have I been of this, that I instructed the commanding officer at Columbus to refuse all permits to come South, and I have frequently had them expelled from the department, but they come in with their carpet sacks in spite of all that can be done to prevent it. The Jews seem to be a privileged class that can travel everywhere. They will land at any wood yard on the river and make, their way through the country. If not permitted to buy cotton themselves they will act as agents for someone else, who will be at a military post with a Treasury permit to receive cotton and pay for it in Treasury notes which the Jews will buy up at an agreed rate, paying gold.

There is but one way that to reach this case, that is for the Government to buy all the cotton at a fixed rate and send it to Cairo, St. Louis, or some other point to be sold. Then all traders they are a curse in the Army) might be expelled.

U.S. Grant - Major General IV

General Orders Hdqrs. 13th A. C, Dept. of the Tennessee No. 11)
Holly Springs,
Mississippi,

December 17, 1862

The Jews, as a class are, violating every regulation, of trade established by the Treasury Department and also department orders, are hereby expelled from the department within twenty-four hours from the receipt of this order. Post Commanders will see that all of this class of people be furnished and required to leave, and, anyone returning after such notification will be arrested and held in confinement until an opportunity occurs of sending therein out as prisoners, unless furnished with permit from headquarters.

No passes will be given these people to visit headquarters for the purpose of making personal application for trade permits.

By order of Major-General U.S. Grant
Jno. A Rawlings
Asst. Adjutant-General V.

General Order
Holly Springs, Mississippi
December 8, 1862

On account of the scarcity of provision all cotton speculators, Jews and other vagrants having no honest means of support, except trading on the misery of the country, and in general all persons from the North not connected with the Army whatever, and having no permission to remain in town, will leave in twenty four (24) hours or will be put on duty in the entrenchments.

What Happened? Monica Stone

THIS IS A QUESTION being asked by so many people, the thinking people that is, those who are worried why everything is going so wrong with society as a whole and the White Race in particular.

THE BOOK OF SONGS

The love of God for His wayward children has been limitless and abounding. It has remained changeless throughout the ages, filled with His noble purpose. He created so that He might express and share that love, which is the very essence of His nature, with beings created in His likeness, beings which could absorb and reflect that love. Yet, that his love might be wholly free man has endowed with freewill he has used perversely.

BOOK OF WISDOM

Man chooses wrong instead of right for just two reasons, either it is the easy path of least resistance, or it is the most alluring. Consequently, the Good Religion must first concern itself with establishing strength of character and moral backbone, for these form the only foundation upon which the palace of spirituality can be erected.

It seems that this is where we went wrong so many eons ago, our Father gave us freewill and we used it perversely, we squandered what was given to us. We made the choice to rather follow the negative, that old scoundrel you call the Devil, than to follow and adhere to the Laws of God. In our stupidity we follow the material things, selling our souls to the highest bidder and could not be bothered about what repercussions, tragedy, suffering it would bring over mankind. By making this choice we lost our humanity, forgot about charity to take care of each other we would rather go to war and kill, murder and sow chaos and mayhem.

BOOK OF GLEANINGS

For a time the fighting men heeded the words of their chiefs, for they were neither willful nor reckless, but there were some among them who went down to the plains in peace. They returned with tales of treasures and pleasures awaiting below, reporting that the time was ripe for an attack.

Because we did not adhere to Laws of our Heavenly Father we went down from the mountain where we lived as the Children of the Light, down to the valley where the pleasures and treasures were too alluring. In so doing we made the wrong choice, because our Father warned if we go down this mountain, there is no coming back. We showed lack of character, backbone, immoral behaviour and so lost our foundation on which the Law and Order of the Most High God was founded.

There is no question that what the White Race is experiencing in their lives today is of our own doing. We cannot blame anyone but ourselves, we made these wrong decisions and we are reaping more than the whirlwind. All over the world where there used to be White countries we have an influx of different races, religions, cultures and morality to name but a few of the strange things these people bring into what we know of the Western World.

What I see today in South Africa is not a pretty sight, it saddens and disturbs me deeply. The situation in South Africa is life threatening on all levels to what is left of the White Race. I do not want to admit, see it or experience this, but the destruction of my people is very real. Their lack of understanding, knowledge and awareness is beyond my comprehension. It really seems the saying, “the gods make them crazy the wish to destroy” is true and we are living this every day. I speak of the Whites in South Africa in particular as this is the land of my birth, but the same happened all over the White Western World which is no more.

The perpetrator, the carrier of darkness, the destroyer destroyed one of the scared foundations of the White Race, his connection to and understanding of what right and what is wrong. The White Race lost the True Religion and accepted the Judaism of the Jew and they became Judeo-Christians where everyone is equal and the downward spiral started, first so very slow, so nobody would notice. What we have today is a fast track to destroying the White Race and it is covered with such sweetness it is accepted as the way to go and most are looking forward to their own demise.

What happened? The White Race, the Aryan, of so long ago does not exist anymore, most are just happy to get on with their “normal lives”, we became so accustomed to this stinking swamp, I wish I had a more descriptive word to express the filth we sunk into. The more I talk to people the more I realize they really do not want anything better or to stop the fast track to oblivion! How can we make them see, how can we make them understand? What I do understand is that the majority are quite comfortable things stay as they are.

Let us take South Africa as an example, this is not easy for me to criticize my own people, but maybe by being so blunt, they will start thinking and at least start analyzing their very soul and attitude. Talking to so many people here, it shocked me to realize how they accepted the “new” South Africa. They will criticize the government, call the “president” names, but still look for excuses why and what is taking place. They still enjoy, those who have an income, their lives and in many ways there are more money now in South Africa than ever before. Yes, since we became a “democracy” a communist black government and accepted by the corrupt Western World, there is lots of money. More expensive and bigger cars are seen on the roads, bigger houses and more shopping centers, more of the good stuff than ever before. More easy money for the privileged the sky is the limit, and maybe beyond?

There are endless talks of a piece of land for the Boers. All these talks keep the Whites in their comfort zone, there is someone out there “fighting” for us, right? The endless references to the constitution that the Afrikaner is entitled to his own sovereignty, to be master of his own ship and affairs. The man in the street does not even start to comprehend the wonderful constitution is built on sand, it is just a piece of paper.

The ANC government does not care about you, those in power will not share or give away even a fraction of what they have today, they are riding on the high seas of power and money is pouring into their pockets. Those who are negotiating with the ANC, USA, UK, UN and Europe, either they are the most misguided men I have ever come across or the most stupid. Maybe they have their own agenda, only time will tell. South Africa, as so many “white” countries have traitors of their own, there is nothing new under the sun, we had them in the past we have them now in abundance. The tragedy is we could not afford it in the past and in the year of 2015 we cannot afford this at all, as the White Race is heading for complete annihilation if the trend is not reversed.

The weakness of the Aryan to stand together against a common foe will lead to disaster. We keep on fighting each other. Everyone wants to be the “leader” most not even knowing how to lead. It is so true that in order to lead you must first be a follower, it seems not in the case of too many who will in their quest to be heroes destroy their own. The saying “divide and conquer” still is very much effective. By not knowing history, not knowing the true enemy of the Aryan race, nothing will be accomplished. It seems especially true in the times we are living in now that we accomplished so much technologically, advanced in science with such strides, but lost our soul, common sense and who we are in this process. Even if we do not want to admit to the sorry state we find ourselves in, all the signs are there. More lost people, more poverty, starvation and loss of hope. We still have this “I” in our hearts, the selfish attitude, so we just walk over our fellow men and women and do not care, do not have empathy, the word “love” does not even figure. What has happened?

This yeast of Cultural Marxism made us a soulless people, a gutless people. The enemy really succeeded. Are we going to allow this to destroy what is left of who and what we are? The Aryan Race once was great, we achieved so much, but we allowed weakness to creep in and with this weakness we allowed the darker races to move into power positions and our weakness made them strong. The black race does not have strength of character like the Aryan, their strength is in savagery, brutality and numbers. If we start listing what we have lost in giving in to this weakness the list will go on forever.

Cultural Marxism destroyed every facet of everything we are dealing with, personal lives, education the church, religion, medicine, what we think how we have to think, how we react, what to say and what not to say, etc. Now MUM is the word, maybe if we do not say anything of what happened, what went wrong, maybe all will just go away. If you dare to speak your mind, protest against the evil destroying us, talk about all the things which ARE wrong, to the prison cell you go or even worse you can be found in a ditch where you have committed suicide (according to the political correct media). How many of our people came out with the truth and were severely punished, some very severely. We just heard on the news today 6/15/2015 Ursula Haverbeck (86 years old) a very brave lady spoke the truth about the holocaust was arrested and she can go to prison for 5 years. She is just the latest of victims we know about.

When we go back through the ages, and yes, this attack on the Aryan Race is not new, it is as old as from the time Lucifer was cast from the Heavens, we see hundreds of thousands of martyrs, murdered, maimed, tortured because they stood up for the Cause. How many innocent victims have died because they came in the way of the Ultimate Plan to destroy the Aryan Race, maybe we will never know. How many were slaughtered on the altar of Communism when the Commissars had their heyday in Russia? How many are slaughtered in these times we live in, how many more will die a horrible death to appease the bloodlust of the vampire? The earth's soil is drenched to the limit with the blood of martyrs, prophets and messengers. This is a grim picture, but it does not give us the reason to stop, we owe it to ourselves, our children and all those still to be born. It is a question each and every one must ask him/herself how and when are we going to put a stop to this. As the saying goes, "God only helps them who help themselves", are we going to prove we are worthy of help, or are we just going to take this situation and disappear like so many empires before? When the Aryan Race is no more, the planet will sink into chaos like it was before the earth was framed.

The education of children and college students are riddled with Political Correctness, Cultural Marxism, equality and misinformation. If the student dare to question he will not be allowed to earn his degree and will be ostracized never to be able to find a job. So to appease the Vampire, we keep on teaching untruths and the castle is getting bigger and bigger and heavier built on sand of nothingness. This is going on for so many years all the information being fed to the students became a way of life, we all became used to it. "It was always like this" is the answer, nobody ask a question, all just accept and so we slide through the ages as idiots. Becoming more idiotic as time goes by. To sift through truth and lie is becoming more and more difficult as the one is flowing into the other, like the Aegean stable we will have to use drastic measures to clean all this up.

In the medicine world our doctors who should have been healers, after all they made a promise to save lives, to heal and to help. Not so, our doctors became liars, hopeless in diagnoses and using humans as guinea pigs, not saving, but, destroying. How many died at the hands those who should have been healed? We would never know.

Our justice system became a nightmare, there is no justice, only law enforcement, enforcing the law of the vampire. Long gone those days when a policeman (political incorrect word) gave his hand to help, now the hand holds a gun and is used. Judges are corrupt, the prison system became a money making industry. How many innocent men/women are incarcerated, no one knows, they just rot in a cell somewhere, all forgotten. This also is not new it comes as long as Cultural Marxism is established, not always under this name, sometimes it is called a "revolution" of the one or other political party or despot pushing his will on the people. Galileo went to prison, because he was politically incorrect, only centuries later was it proven he was correct. The list goes on and on.

Coming back to the situation in South Africa, mudslinging and blame are being laid at the feet of the African National Congress, all the ills befalling the population are blamed on the leaders. This is true, but what happened and why did we get to this situation where everything we held dear is falling apart?

One of the reasons of why South Africa is in this dire situation fighting for our very survival is the lack of knowledge about the modus operandi of the Vampire. I listen to so many White leaders of today and there is no lack of amazement how they blunder on from one side to the other. It is so true in Hosea 4:

For want of reflection My people will perish; For you have rejected all thought from yourselves. So I reject you from the Priesthood to Me;- And having abandoned the Laws of your God, I will abandon your children Myself!- As against Me they sinned in their power, To contempt I will change all their honor. (Ferrar Fenton).

Is this what happened, we in our stupidity, thinking we can fight this war against the Vampire all by ourselves why we are failing in any attempt for these ages gone by to destroy the enemy? With selfishness, lack of insight we brought this now out of control situation on ourselves. How many centuries have we gone to war against our own brothers, how many of our own perished through the ages with such a lot of blood spilled we did not get anywhere, but fed the Vampire who lives on the blood of the Aryan Race. We have lost the best of our Race through senseless wars, we are standing on the precipice of annihilation by the beast of the field, the foot soldier of the Vampire. The beast is driven by his hatred towards everything that is orderly, civilized and beautiful, he has none of these attributes in his make-up as he never accomplished anything. Because of his vicious, murderous behaviour he is an excellent tool in the hands of the Vampire with their hatred since the beginning of time towards the Priesthood of the Most High God.

We have to understand it is not only the material gain, the accumulation of property, be it human or real estate, it goes beyond this, it is far more complex than this. These Vampires are the offspring of Lucifer/Satan who are still rebelling against the Most High God, the Creator of the Heavens and the Earth. Satan has to destroy the Aryan Race as he wants to rule over all creation and we the Aryan Race is in his way. In our lack of knowledge and understanding we are the most treasured helpers to Satan-Lucifer-Vampire command centre in the Universe.

What will it take for the Aryan Race to come to their senses before we are completely destroyed by this evil force? Maybe a major planet catastrophe never before experienced? With the Vampire in full control of all the Aryan and non-Aryan armies, the media, all walks of life, there is no chance in any way any nation or leader for that matter can stand up and change the course of our direction to get out of this death cell, death wish and hold the darkness has over us.

Maybe these word from HABAKUK (Ferrar Fenton) describes our situation the best. What is astonishing that Habakuk's ministry was about 626 BC, nothing has changed for too many ages, if it does not change and for the better we might as well put off the light on the Aryan Race's existence on planet earth, here follows the burden that Habakuk, the Preacher saw:

How long, LORD, shall I shout, -

*and You not attend to my cry?
To You I shriek out when oppressed
but You listen not!*

*Why do I see passion and sin?
With bribery and wrong in my presence – and contention, and strife rising up?
For the law is relaxed, and the right never wins,
but the wicked encircle the good,
so the criminal gains the decree!*

*Nations! Look and reflect, and observe for a work I will do in your days, you will not believe if it told!
I will raise up the Kasdim, a nation ferocious who will march from a country afar, to seize dwellings that are not their own.*

*And with them are Terror and Fear, they make a law and rules for themselves;
their horses are swifter than leopards,
and fiercer than ravening wolves!
Their proud cavalry rich from afar,- they come, - they fly on like an Eagle that rushes along to devour!*

*All of them came on for plunder!-
Greedy faces as the wind of the east, and they gather up slaves like the sand!
They scoff at Kings, laugh at the Princes, and they jeer at all fortifications,
for they take them by heaping up dust!
As the tempest sweeps by, and it passes,
so he sees by his trust on his God.*

But are YOU not LORD from of old? - my HOLY GOD! We shall not die,- You appointed him LORD by Decree, and, My Rock, You empowered him to punish!

*Your pure eyes never sanction the wrong, and oppression You will not endure,- then why do You look on the traitors,- and are dumb when the bad rob the good?
And make men like the fish of the sea,
and like reptiles with no one to rule?
He pulls them all out with his hook, sweeps his net or collects in his drag,-
He therefor can laugh and rejoice, so worships his net, burns sweets to his drag,
for he prospers by them on good food.
Should he not therefore spread out his net,
and continually Nations destroy?*

I think we can really relate our situation with what Habakuk wrote so many centuries ago. So in studying and accumulating the knowledge of why we are in this death knell, what are we going to do about it? Are we going to sit talking at meetings, conferences, lamenting, complaining about such and such and putting the blame on whatever and whomever we find handy, instead of going back into our souls to determine when and where we chose the wrong path. Our Father never left us, we turned our back on Him when we chose to follow the Son of Morning Star.

Even in this ONE MINUTE before midnight strike for the complete annihilation of the Aryan Race, there is always HOPE and we must NEVER forget that. We had so many prophets telling us, warning us, let's NOW change our attitude and start listening.

In the case of the Boers in South Africa, we made a Covenant with the Most High God before the Battle of Blood River on December 16, 1838. We have to bow our heads in shame, as our Father kept His promise and gave us the victory over the Zulu impis, but true to our nature, after the victory we just went our merry way and forgot about it. Now it is time to renew this Vow and then stand by it, honor it, our God will be with us, He has always been, we have to repent and return to Him, follow His Laws, not man-made Laws or as the preachers of the day make the laws as they go.

The first and foremost is to LOVE OUR GOD, WITH ALL OUR HEART, there is nothing beyond this, no compromise or make believe. We have become so shallow we really make ourselves believe that we love God, it is only lip service. Let us believe God that He truly will be with His Children and then we can fight and be His Battle axe and once and for all in this last battle against His ages old adversary be Victorious and defeat this old devil called Satan and his minions. Without our Most High God and Heavenly Father we cannot, we are not able to do this on our own. The time has come to admit we failed miserably through the ages, we do not have the luxury to think we can do this alone any more.

May our Heavenly Father be with us all, give us the understanding, knowledge and insight to do what must is to be done. So let it be said, so let it be done.

BOOK OF SCROLLS

These are the words spoken by the Great interpreter, Who through the powers inherited by him from above and by the powers now in his keeping, all freely bestowed upon him by the grateful hearts of his people below, will lead us the Fields Of Everlasting Glory.

O Exalted One, intermediate between gods and men, what we now do for you, you do for us.

Part 1: 2 Chronicles 7:14.

John Trotter - Winmalee, Australia

OUT OF THE THOUSANDS of verses in the Bible the above verse would-be one of the best known. It is considered a verse that epitomizes a rallying call for God to intervene on behalf of Christians in the affairs of mankind. The historical context of this verse is when Solomon's Temple was dedicated. King David had just died. Solomon had been approved to be King over Israel and also to build the Temple in which God would dwell. Solomon had sought the right heart to rule Israel (1 Kings 3:9), so God gave him great wisdom. The approximate date is 960 B.C.

As is so often the case some of our smallest words infer the greatest consequences. The word "If" is such a word as shown in the poem "If" by Rudyard Kipling. This word is conditional like that of the Mosaic Covenant. There were to be blessings or curses all depending as to whether Israel obeyed or disobeyed. Deuteronomy 30:15-20 lays down the outcome of this conditional Covenant. It is the same with 2 Chronicles 7:14.

The phrase "my people", has been referred to the wrong people, for it is thought to be to Christians. If it be to Christians, then how come they are not humble, do not pray, do not seek His face and still do wicked things. Surely such people cannot be called Christian. It is my view that this phrase refers to Israel as a nation. This verse is a call to the nation and also individuals. These Israelites are to be mostly found in the Western Nations. They are the descendants of the Anglo - Saxon and Celtic peoples. It is amongst these people that you find most of the world's Christians. I do believe amongst the 15 million Jews there are some descendants of Israel. The following quote by Dr. Alfred Lillenthal, in his book, "The Zionist Connection" says the following on page 733, "Here's a paradox, a paradox, a most ingenious paradox": in anthropological fact, many Christians may have much more Hebrew - Israelite blood in their veins than most of their Jewish neighbours". This Jewish author shows in the previous paragraphs that most of the Jews today are not of Israel as in the Old Testament. Isaiah 43 : 1 says, "But now thus saith the Lord that created thee, O Jacob, and he that formed thee, O Israel, Fear not, for I have redeemed thee, I have called thee by thy name: thou are mine". It could not be clearer. This is not the church or Christians as such. See Ezekiel 16; 8, Zechariah 13:9, and Malachi 3:17.

God had to keep His side of the bargain when it came to the Covenant or oath, as is shown in Deuteronomy 7:6-8. God knew that His people would not keep their side of the bargain for that is why God set in motion the process of redemption, a buying back through His Son's death and resurrection. All of this was done in accordance to the laws of Divorce. If we were able to see into the future and come to realise the ongoing disobedience of Israel, down through history, we would have given up centuries ago. It is only for God's mercy that the redemption of His people will be fulfilled.

The Bible is very clear that God has not dealt with any other nation in the same manner as He has with Israel. Psalm 147: 19 - 20 says: "He sheweth His word unto Jacob, his statutes and his judgments unto Israel. He hath not dealt so with any nation: and as for His judgments, they have not known them. Praise ye the Lord". The phrase "called by thy name" shows the special relationship. This relationship was as a husband and wife (Jeremiah 3: 14). This phrase came from Numbers 6:27 where it says, "And they shall put my name upon the children of Israel and I will bless them". This is the concluding verse from Aaron's blessing. See also Deuteronomy 28: 10, and 2 Samuel 7:23.

The word "name" means character, honour and authority. The words can mean that the quality of God as expressed in the meaning of the word "name" has been passed onto the people of Israel as long as they obeyed the law. Fenton seems to suggest that His name has to be invoked or called upon. The Septuagint says, "On whom my name is called". Some have suggested that this name refers to the fact that the Western Nations are generally associated with being Christian. At the moment with the meaning of Christian becoming so poorly defined, I cannot see God's name being represented in the Western Nations. It is my view, the Western Nations have lost their Christian status. If "my people" are Christians, as many believe, then the word Christian has lost its meaning. The only issues that will save us is that God will keep His side of the agreements, or Unconditional Covenants, with the fathers and secondly the fact that He preserved a symbolical "7000" who have not bowed the knee to Baal ( I Kings 19:18, Romans 11: 4 ).

The following part of the verse refers to 4 requirements, before God can help in the suggested way. These requirements are: 1. humility, 2. prayer, 3. seek God's face and 4. turn away from wickedness. I shall briefly comment on these 4 requirements. The Septuagint puts the word "repent" in place of being humble. In Greek it means "be ashamed". What this means is that we should feel shame or guilt. In Zephaniah 3:5 we are told that "the unjust knoweth no shame". In Isaiah 54:4 we are told, "Fear not; for thou shalt not be ashamed, neither be thou confounded (disgraced), for thou shalt not be put to shame; for thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, and shalt not remember the reproach of thy widowhood any more". All this is to take place in the future under the arrangements of the New Covenant with the House of Israel and with the House of Judah. All this is equated with humility. As Proverbs 22: 4 states: "By humility and the fear of the Lord are riches and honour and life". This as a nation we have yet to learn, for we are still relying upon our own might and military strength.

Prayer is the second point. I know that many prayers ascend to heaven but is any one listening. In Proverbs 28: 9 we have a frightening statement when it says: "He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination". Read the surrounding verses for added details. Isaiah 1: 15 has a similar note of concern when it says, : "And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you: yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood". I am not saying that God does not answer our many personal prayers. Many times He answers our prayers in a way that we least expect. It is my view that the prayers referred to here are prayers for the nation. Like the prayers that King George VI asked of Britain during the time of the W.W. 2. Even Churchill referred to the destiny of Britain that suggested a providence or protection by God.

The Western World is to sink further into the pit, before there is a sense of real need of prayer for God's providence. Are we going to reach the situation of 2 Chronicles 36: 16 where it says: "But they mocked the messengers of God, and despised His words, and misused his prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against His people, till there was no remedy"?. I believe so, but God will provide a way of escape as a result of His Son dying and being resurrected from the grave. It is not generally understood just how much the Law plays a part in this national revival. As it says in Matthew 5: 18 "For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled". There is yet to occur the fulfilment of many more events of prophecy.

To "seek thy face", means to search or strive after. Fenton's translation says, seek my presence. The world has many distractions. Materialism has replaced God. Instead of seeking His face we have turned our face to the gods of the heathen. We have been promised in Deuteronomy 4 : 27-31 that if we seek the Lord with all our heart and soul, even when in tribulation, He will have mercy upon us and He will not forget the Covenants which He swore with our Fathers. The unconditional Covenant with Abraham and his seed will be the fulcrum around which the history for Israel turns.

The final point is that of turning from our wicked ways. These wicked ways were not just day to day sinning but evil acts, approved by the leaders of the nation. In 2 Kings 17 : 13-17 we read the extent to which Israel had accepted all the curses of Canaan. This ongoing evil is also expressed in Zechariah 1 :4. Yet in all this evil God was prepared to show mercy if they turned about face as shown in Isaiah 55 : 7 : "Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord and He will have mercy upon him ; and to our God for He will abundantly pardon". May be the reason for God's lasting mercy is because, every 100 years there is a new generation of people who can be given another chance - just a thought !

This turning is not just a personal thing, it is also a national matter. When governments legislate laws that are contrary to God's Laws that is a serious indication as to how far we have removed ourselves from our creator. People generally see little reason to expect long term hope in our leaders. It is just like being in a family where there is no one to aspire to. Reformation starts at the top and it is for this reason that the ecclesia, the called out ones, will be under the rulership of Christ in the government of God's Kingdom on earth. The unconditional New Covenant with both Houses of Israel and Judah will prepare the way for God to hear from heaven, forgive our sins and heal the land. These 3 points will be commented upon in Part 2 of this article. THY KINGDOM COME.

Harold Stough Notes History of the Bible (Part 2) From The Primitive Baptist's Library

THE TWO PARALLEL STREAMS OF BIBLES

Apostles (Original)	Apostates (Corrupted Originals)
Received Text (Greek)	Sinaiticus and Vaticanus Bible (Greek)
Waldensian Bible (Italic)	Vulgate (Latin). Church of Rome's Bible.
Erasmus (Received Text Restored)	Vaticanus (Greek).
Luther's Bible, Dutch, French, Italian, etc., (from Received Text).	French, Spanish, and Italian (from Vulgate).
Tyndale (English) 1535 (from Received Text	Rheims (English) from Vulgate (Jesuit Bible of 1582)
King James, 1611 (from Received Text)	Oxford Movement. Westcott & Hort (B and Aleph). American Revised 1901.

THIS SHOULD BE sufficient to persuade the reader not to regard these two streams of Bibles as equally pure or good. We believe that translations arising from the corrupted texts have been largely responsible for departures from many of the most essential doctrines of the Christian faith, e. g., the creation, plenary inspiration and preservation of the scriptures, the divinity and virgin birth of Jesus Christ, and the resurrection from the dead.

The English and Welsh Baptists, having arisen from the Anabaptists, who were descendants of the Waldenses, were supporters of translations made from the textus receptus. The same may be said of the early Baptists in America. We find no evidence that Wickliffe's translation ever gained much favor or support from them. Wickliffe's English translation was made from the Latin Vulgate, he being ignorant of Greek and Hebrew.

The "Great Reformation" which followed over a century after Wickliffe's death did not make the Catholic Bible the "true Bible," any more than it made the Catholic Church the "true church." As shown above, the Protestant Reformers and the Waldenses all refused to use the Catholic manuscripts (either Vulgate or Vatican).

We do not claim that the King James Version is the only translation that can be called the inspired word of God, but rather that the Received Text is the only underlying basis for any past, present or future New Testament translation that should be so regarded by Christian people. Translations from the Received Text have been made in most of the major languages of world.

Preservation of the Bible by the Waldenses
 (From Our Authorized Bible Vindicated, 1930, pp. 31-42 )
 by Benjamin G. Wilkinson, Ph. D.

The Bible of the Waldenses Brought from Judea To show that the messengers of God who carried manuscripts from the churches of Judea to the churches of northern Italy and on, brought to the forerunners of the Waldenses a Bible different from the Bible of Roman Catholicism, I quote the following:

The method which Allix has pursued, in his History of the Churches of Piedmont, is to show that in the ecclesiastical history of every century, from the fourth century, which he considers a period early enough for the enquirer after apostolical purity of doctrine, there are clear proofs that doctrines, unlike those which the Romish Church holds, and conformable to the belief of the Waldensian and Reformed Churches, were maintained by theologians of the north of Italy down to the period, when the Waldenses first came into notice. Consequently the opinions of the Waldenses were not new to Europe in the eleventh or twelfth centuries, and there is nothing improbable in the tradition, that the Subalpine Church persevered in its integrity in an uninterrupted course from the first preaching of the gospel in the valleys. - Gilly, Waldensian Researches, pp. 118, 119.

There are many earlier historians who agree with this view. (Allix, Leger, Gilly, Comba, Nolan). It is held that the pre-Waldensian Christians of northern Italy could not have had doctrines purer than Rome unless their Bible was purer than Rome's; that is, was not of Rome's falsified manuscripts. (Comba, p. 188.)

The Waldenses of northern Italy were foremost among the primitive Christians of Europe in their resistance to the Papacy. They not only sustained the weight of Rome's oppression but they were successful in retaining the torch of truth until the Reformation took it from their hands and held it aloft to the world. Veritably they fulfilled the prophecy of Revelation concerning the church which fled into the wilderness where she hath a place prepared of God. Revelations 12: 6, 14. They rejected the mysterious doctrines, the hierarchal priesthood and the worldly titles of Rome, while they clung to the simplicity of the Bible.

The agents of the Papacy have done their utmost to calumniate their character, to destroy the records of their noble past, and to leave no trace of the cruel persecution they underwent. They went even farther - they made use of words written against ancient heresies to strike out the name of the heretics and fill the blank space by inserting the name of the Waldenses. Just as if, in a book written to record the lawless deeds of some bandit, like Jesse James, his name should be stricken out and the name of Abraham Lincoln substituted. The Jesuit Gretser in a book written against the heretics of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, put the name Waldenses at the point where he struck out the name of these heretics. (Gilly, p. 8.) Nevertheless, we greet with joy the history of their great scholars who were ever a match for Rome.

In the fourth century, Helvidius, a great scholar of northern Italy, accused Jerome, whom the Pope had empowered to form a Bible in Latin for Catholicism, with using corrupt Greek manuscripts. (Post-Nicene Fathers, Vol. 6, p. 338.) How could Helvidius have accused Jerome of employing corrupt Greek MSS. if Helvidius had not had the pure Greek manuscripts? And so learned and so powerful in writing and teaching was Jovinian, the pupil of Helvidius, that it demanded three of Rome's most famous fathers - Augustine, Jerome, and Ambrose - to unite in opposing Jovinian's influence. Even then, it needed the condemnation of the Pope and the banishment of the Emperor to prevail. But Jovinian's followers lived on and made the way easier for Luther.

History does not afford a record of cruelty greater than that manifested by Rome toward the Waldenses. It is impossible to write fully the inspiring history of this persecuted people, whose origin goes back to apostolic days and whose history is ornamented with stories of gripping interest. Rome has obliterated the records. Dr. DeSanctis, many years a Catholic official at Rome, some time official Censor of the Inquisition and later a convert to Protestantism, thus reports the conversation of a Waldensian scholar as he points out to others the ruins of Palatine Hill, Rome:

"See," said the Waldensian, "a beautiful monument of ecclesiastical antiquity. These rough materials are the ruins of the two great Palatine libraries, one Greek and the other Latin, where the precious manuscripts of our ancestors were collected, and which Pope Gregory I, called the Great, caused to be burned." (DeSanctis, Popery, Puseyism, Jesuitism, p. 53.)

The destruction of Waldensian records beginning about 600 A. D. by Gregory I, was carried through with thoroughness by the secret agents of the Papacy.

"It is a singular thing," says Gilly, "that the destruction or rapine, which has been so fatal to Waldensian documents, should have pursued them even to the place of security, to which all, that remained, were consigned by Morland, in 1658, the library of the University of Cambridge. The most ancient of these relics were ticketed in seven packets, distinguished by letters of the alphabet, from A to G. The whole of these were missing when I made inquiry for them in 1823." (Gilly, Waldensian Researches, p. 80.)

Ancient Documents of the Waldenses

There are modern writers who attempt to fix the beginning of the Waldenses from Peter Waldo, who began his work about 1175. This is a mistake. The historical name of this people, as properly derived from the valleys where they lived, is Vaudois. Their enemies, however, ever sought to date their origin from Waldo. Waldo was an agent, evidently raised up of God to combat the errors of Rome.

Gilly, who made extensive research concerning the Waldenses, pictures Waldo in his study at Lyon, France, with associates, a committee, "like the translators of our own Authorized Version." (Comba, Waldenses of Italy, p. 169, note 596.) Nevertheless the history of the Waldenses, or Vaudois, begins centuries before the days of Waldo.

There remains to us in the ancient Waldensian language, "The Noble Lesson," (La Nobla Leycon), written about the year 1100 A. D., which assigns the first opposition of the Waldenses to the Church of Rome to the days of Constantine the Great, when Sylvester was Pope. This may be gathered from the following extract:

"All the Popes, which have been from Sylvester to the present time." (Que tuit li papa, que foron de Silvestre en tro en aquest.) (Gilly, Excursions, Appendix 2, p. 10.)

Thus when Christianity, emerging from the long persecutions of pagan Rome, was raised to imperial favour by the Emperor Constantine, the Italic Church in northern Italy - later the Waldenses - is seen standing in opposition to papal Rome. Their Bible was of the family of the renowned Itala. It was that translation into Latin which represents the Received Text. Its very name "Itala" is derived from the Italic district, the regions of the Vaudois. Of the purity and reliability of this version, Augustine, speaking of different Latin Bibles (about 400 A.D.) says: "Now among translations themselves the Italian (Itala) is to be preferred to the others, for it keeps closer to the words without prejudice to clearness of expression." (Nicene and Post-Nicene Fathers, Vol. 2, p. 542.)

The old Waldensian liturgy which they used in their services down through the centuries contained "texts of Scripture of the ancient Version called the Italic." (Allix, Churches of Piedmont, 1690, p. 37.)

The Reformers held that the Waldensian Church was formed about 120 A. D., from which date on, they passed down from father to son the teachings they received from the apostles. The Latin Bible, the Italic, was translated from the Greek not later than 157 A. D. (Scrivener's Introduction, Vol. 2, p. 43.) We are indebted to Beza, the renowned associate of Calvin, for the statement that the Italic Church dates from 120 A. D. From the illustrious group of scholars which gathered around Beza, 1590 A. D., we may understand how the Received Text was the bond of union between great historic churches. As the sixteenth century is closing, we see in the beautiful Swiss city of Geneva, Beza, an outstanding champion of Protestantism, the scholar Cyril Lucar, later to become the head of the Greek Catholic Church, and Diodati, also a foremost scholar. As Beza astonishes and confounds the world by restoring manuscripts of that Greek New Testament from which the King James is translated, Diodati takes the same and translates into Italian a new and famous edition, adopted and circulated by the Waldenses. (McClintock & Strong Encycl., Art. "Waldenses.")

Leger, the Waldensian historian of his people, studied under Diodati at Geneva. He returned as pastor to the Waldenses and led them in their flight from the terrible massacre of 1655. (Gilly, Recherches, pp. 79, 80.) He prized as his choicest treasure the Diodati Bible, the only worldly possession he was able to preserve. Cyril Lucar hastened to Alexandria where Codex A, the Alexandrian Manuscript, is lying, and laid down his life to introduce the Reformation and the Reformers' pure light regarding the books of the Bible.

At the same time another group of scholars, bitterly hostile to the first group, were gathered at Rheims, France. There the Jesuits, assisted by Rome and backed by all the power of Spain, brought forth an English translation of the Vulgate. In its preface they expressly declared that the Vulgate had been translated in 1300 into Italian and in 1400 into French, "the sooner to shake out of the deceived people's hands, the false heretical translations of a sect called Waldenses." This proves that Waldensian Versions existed in 1300 and 1400. It was the Vulgate, Rome's corrupt Scriptures against the Received Text--the New Testament of the apostles, of the Waldenses, and of the Reformers.

That Rome in early days corrupted the manuscripts while the Italic Church handed them down in their apostolic purity, Allix, the renowned scholar, testifies. He reports the following as Italic articles of faith: "They receive only, saith he, what is written in the Old and New Testament. They say, that the Popes of Rome, and other priests, have depraved the Scriptures by their doctrines and glosses." (Allix, Churches of Piedmont, pp. 288, 11.)

It is recognized that the Itala was translated from the Received Text (Syrian, Hort calls it); that the Vulgate is the Itala with the readings of the Received Text removed. (Kenyon, Our Bible and the Ancient Manuscripts, pp. 169, 170.)

Letters And Views

A Letter Published in Gentleman's Magazine 16th Oct. 1753 Jewish Naturalisation Act

Sir—, It was intimated in your last Mag. p. 417, 2, 1753. that many of us did not even yet see clearly all the benefits which will accrue to the Jew by naturalization.

This put me upon reflecting, that many Jews may, after they are naturalized, probably leave this kingdom, and go into parts beyond the seas, and there beget, and have born, sons and daughters; who may beget more sons and daughters, and so on to the end of time: there may, from these naturalised Jews be descendants, professors of the Jewish religion and to all foreign parts of the known world, natural born subjects of Great Britain, where they had never spent six-pence, or so much as set a foot.

For every Jew naturalized by act of parliament is thereby made a natural born subject to all intents and purposes, and by the statute of the 4th by his present majesty, c.21. It is enacted, that all children which shall then after be born out of the legiance of the crown of Great Britain, whose fathers shall be natural born subjects of the crown of Great Britain, at the time of the birth of such children, shall, by virtue of that act and the 7th of Queen Anne, be adjudged and taken to be, and all such children are thereby declared to be natural born subjects of crown of Great Britain to all intents, constructions and purposes whatever.

The next thought that occurred some, was, that every one of these travelling gentry that shall meet with a disappointment from any Christian prince, prelate, state, or potentate, in parts abroad will have a home to retreat to, where, upon renting a house for £10, for one year, he may compel Christians to maintain him and his Jewish family; for the words of the act lately past in favour of the Jews are general—Persons professing the Jewish religion—which words do plainly comprehend the poor as well as the rich Jews; and if the rich Jews, in consequence of this law, become qualified to be governors, directors, supercargoes, &c, of the three great companies, the poor Jews will become entitled to all the provisions made for the poor by the several laws and statutes of the realm; so no exceptions in the Act extend to the one case more than the other one.

From these considerations, it does not seem likely that naturalizing Jew will suffer the burden of the poor or attend to the propagation of the gospel; therefore, and for the reasons hinted at by your correspondent, I incline to the opinion of him. Your humble servant, A Christian Scot-Man.

Criminals Protecting Criminals

Sir—, The modern day police FORCE is nothing more than a private militarised security firm to protect elite Jewish criminals.

Their role is to give the public perception that they are protecting law and order and serving the community; when in reality nothing could be further from the Truth; as they are unlawfully enFORCing their master's criminal plutocratic rules.

These police 'officers' of the sea, are working within unlawful legislation, within maritime/contract law and not Common Law – the law of the land under the Magna Carta. Therefore, they are ACTing in a deceptive matter, which is fraudulent – therefore criminal. And because they are a private corporation working under fraud and not public or social law, they have zero authority over us. Their criminal antisocial behaviour serves only the elite Jewish criminals and works against the interests of the public.

These organic robots donned in black occult costumes, as a collective, are a menace to society. These non-critically thinking people have essentially sold out for mammon and kudos. They have let their insecurities get the better of them and allow cognitive dissonance to dominate their mode of reason. Essentially they have allowed themselves to become mind-controlled.

These people are nothing more than double traitors, because their actions are playing a key role to enFORCE this JWO onto society. Therefore they are directly helping to bring about our enslavement and ultimately our destruction. These double traitors are playing an equal role with the actual perpetrators of this demonic evil agenda. Sheeple controlling the sheeple in exchange for short-term Pavlovian rewards, in order to ease their deep-rooted insecurities. Yours truly, J. Salter, Warwick, UK.

A Patriotic Song

The True Christian men of America
wear not a cloak or carry a dagger
Their alliance is to Yahweh above
Of this they will not faint nor falter

He gave his son, crucified upon a cross
He gave his blood for White Humanity
To preserve their line, until his return
To stand tall, and be a brotherhood

To protect the mothers and babes in their arms
Who hold the continuance of this sacred line
We have the seal in our foreheads placed there
To protect our sacred ground

Hold steadfast and hear ye, Oh House of Israel tis a call from the wilderness, Prepare, fear not those who can take the body, but those that steal the soul

Unite as kinsman, for tis time to awaken from your slumber
Tis time to form an earthly army. of untold numbers

Do not go into captivity, nor take their silver and gold

Fly the flag of your ancestors unknown to the infidel and lost souls

For through our prayers to our Father, We will be guided as in the days of old

Stand tall oh Women of Israel, prepare the camps

For soon, our mighty warriors will go forth to war. (From Pastor Dan USA)

Offer and Acceptance

Sir ____, Just like in any contractual arrangement, it's all about offer and acceptance.

They have offered us their poisons, pollution, mind-control, wars, Orwellian control grid, perversions, de-natured foods & lifestyles, insane unlawful legislation and corruption – and we have collectively accepted it all.

So who's fault is it really?

Perhaps things aren't so unfair after all(?)

This is all a spiritual opportunity. Until we learn to have some self worth; brave up and stand up for ourselves by stop tacitly accepting and conforming to this nonsense – we really are not in any position to complain. Yours truly, Digger

A Police State

Sir ____, So according to the alternative media, we're heading for a police state. But aren't we already there?

Do we not already have our own self-policing state in place(?) The sheeple controlling the sheeple. Making sure we conform and keep in line.

If you don't believe this – try stepping out of line. Try a bit of non-conforming and just experience the backlash you get FROM NON AUTHORITIES. When I say non authorities, I mean your neighbours, your work colleagues, you family, your friends, your spouses, your fellow so-called alternative friends. They just can't handle it. It makes them feel very uneasy. But, but ...you can't do that – this will happen to you and that's no way to behave. Pa-the-tic individuals who are always happy to moan about their lot and slag off the government. Yet they're always the first to come down on another slave who dares to challenge the dirty system, which these people complain about. Quite remarkable and disturbingly sad.

These people deserve the oppression they get. They ensure we all pay our UNLAWFUL (but voluntary) taxes, they self regulate the hours we slave, by making sleight remarks to anyone who dares to have time off during the week, or who are not a good little slave like them. You're late for work. What, you're not going to do overtime!?! You're having three weeks holiday – my word! And they frown on those who are activists, by commenting on how awkward these people are. Even though it has only been awkward difficult people who have ever made any positive changes in society.

It's staggering that people can't see that they are their own worse enemy. Tacit consenting slaves, self-motoring neighbours, obsessive managers, control freak foreman, and all the numeral self-police individuals in this compartmentalised control grid.

Then there's the snitchers.

Ohhhh dear. These have got to be the lowest of the low in this whole self-policing apparatus. Those that snitch on their brothers n sisters. Often through vengeance, or a financial reward, or just for a pat on the back from an 'official' government agent. Saddos. Pathetic, sad creatures of the lowest order. Snitchers are always amongst us – they are our neighbours, work colleagues, general public and sadly in some cases family members. These turncoats have zero integrity and can never be trusted. Them and us and they have chosen to help them out.

They would contact the tax inspectors to report on someone who is not paying taxes – despite all taxes being voluntary and unlawful. They would report on someone breaking a piece of legislation, even though this nonsensical piece of legislation is nothing to do with 'do no harm' and only benefits the authorities. The authorities who are ruining these same snitcher's lives, yet they try to assist them. Slaves assisting the slave masters. Try and work their logic out. Total traitors.

Then there are the PMTs [Professional Myopic Traitors]

Just like the menstrual pmt, these creatures are a bloody pain. Excuse the blunt metaphor, but these professional traitors are effectively professional snitchers in society. They directly and forcefully keep the whole oppressive system in place.

These are the sellouts in our society, who have chosen to work for 'them'. They have chosen to sell their souls to assist our slavery and oppression. And what for? For short term pavlovian rewards, just to get the mortgage paid off, to have a secure income and in many cases, for the perks and kudos. damn traitors.

The police, the social services, the tax inspectors, ticket inspectors, traffic wardens, the bailiffs/debt collectors and the plethora of government 'official'. Sellouts the lot of them, whilst pretending to themselves they have chosen a vocational occupation in order to help society. Rubbish!! – they have chosen a self-serving role in life because they are deeply insure traitors who need to either wear a uniform to have a title in order to fill their insecurities. These people warrant zero respect from us. They are our number one enemy. Because there will also be evil in the world, and tyrannical oppressive governments ..... thanks to these sell out myopic traitors. Yours truly, Peter Ashley, Bedford.

My Russian/Ukrainian Trip - Part 3

By Louis Beam

Biting the Bullet:

The trip to Saint Petersburg was accomplished on a high speed “bullet” train.

Before the trip to Saint Petersburg the last time I had ridden a train had been in Mexico in the 1980s. I left Mexico City on the way to Mérida in the Yucatán Peninsula to study the archaeology wonders located not far from that city. I would not advise anyone to go backpacking through Mexico now, as under the current “drugocracy” ruling that country you will be risking your life. That train, barely functional, moved along at fifteen to twenty miles per hour, smoking and heaving as it tried to make its way down the track and through the jungle the eight hundred or so miles to its destination. Along with various animals, assorted natives, a light bulb swinging from two exposed electrical wires, and no functional bathroom services for the several day trip, and having heard “¿café con canela?” over a hundred times from large women marching through the car at every stop (one or two stops an hour, as the wheels needed oiling often and appeared to be seizing up). Suffice it to say, my description of this ordeal by rail became known to my friends as the “Train Ride from Hell.”

I abandoned that train after three days of torture, having not the faintest idea where I was, and with my backpack walked into the darkness toward lights in the distance. The Mexican government has since discontinued that train service which, I must add, did the world a great service. Honestly, I had rather trade three nights in Viet Nam during the Tet Offensive than spend another three days in that iron train from hell.

Russia, on the other hand, is a first world country with bullet trains that travels at times near two hundred miles per hour. My trip sponsor, Max French, who is a retired railroad engineer, convinced me to try another train ride. It was with some mental trepidation as to the wisdom of his decision that I went to the railroad station in Moscow.

I should not have worried in the least. The train ride to Saint Petersburg turned out to be linear opposite of my train ride from hell. It was wonderful, a high-speed trip without a single incident of someone shouting “¿café con canela?” a single time, nor did the Russians ever find it necessary to stop and oil the wheels to keep them from falling off.

As was his custom, Max French spoke with almost everyone he met with no need for a formal introduction to start the process. Sitting across the table from us on the train was a handsome man in his late fifties. While I dozed Max began the process of trying to communicate with the distinguished looking man. Because the stranger spoke some of the English language, information was exchanged between the two of them. Soon I was told that this man just across from me had been a combat pilot of a helicopter (MU- 8 or MI 8) in Afghanistan, which the Russians had invaded under communist rule in the late 1980’s.

As it was my first encounter with a former Soviet military man, I was uncertain how to view him and how he would view me. How strange it felt to be sitting across a small table from a commie pilot. In times past I would have relished turning my M-60 machine gun on his aircraft, were that possible. Now he smiled at me and handed me a piece of chocolate as Max made the introductions between the two of us. We looked intently at each other with what I can only describe as "knowing eyes." In heavy combat he had seen it all, it was written on his face. I felt empathy towards him immediately. A different army, a different time, a different place but a shared experience.

As a Soviet warrant officer in combat, as he looked at me I pondered, perhaps he was thinking of the over two thousands Stinger surface to air missiles that the U.S. government had supplied the mujahideen there, and which had been used to shoot down helicopters like the one he flew, killing his comrades at arms.

"So, this is the face of the enemy" I thought. I had hated and opposed men like him most of my life. Now, sitting next to him, he looked like one of my neighbours in Texas, just someone who had served in a different army. His smiling face was friendly and we quickly shook hands and traded information.

The uncertainty of how to react to him had not lasted long. As we shared experiences, we quickly became friends. It was his hope and mine that our respective nations would never be in conflict. We expressed our mutual desire for no more wars, and our hope for Russians and Americans to work together for the future. It was clear to the both of us that if it were left up to people like him and me, that desire for peace between us would be most certainly assured. Unfortunately, the very purpose of my trip and being in his country was to help end suffering caused by war in the Ukraine.

Former Soviet warrant officer (later promoted captain) Aznabaev Damir took a pencil and wrote on the back of a receipt his years of service in Afghanistan. Max made a stab at writing my years of service which I quickly corrected at the very top of the small note. I can truthfully say that this small piece of paper has become a treasured document for me, and I cherish it.

So passed the time to Saint Petersburg. It could not have been spent in a better way. I gained much insight into myself, as well as others on that ride. "When Enemies Become Friends" would make a great title for that pleasant train ride.

Russia Has Two Capitals

Beautiful Saint Petersburg, the cultural heart of Russia.

While Moscow is the governmental capital of the Russian Federation, Saint Petersburg is the cultural capital. It lies to the north and west of Moscow, and is only a short distance south of the border of Finland. To say that it is a majestic city is to make an understatement. The beauty and cultural treasures of this wonderful place are difficult to describe. Few places on earth can boast both a city and cultural background as that of Saint Petersburg. Walking the streets, the city itself seems to the onlooker to be an open air museum with each city block presenting new works of magnificent buildings and art treasures.

The Czar of Russia's Winter Palace is in Saint Petersburg, and in it the art and treasure of the Hermitage Museum. To understand the history and cultural of the Russian people, as well as to know who they were in the past, it is necessary for any foreign visitor to the Russian state to go to that city. It can be there that one begins to have a full appreciation for the background events and cultural mélange that is modern Russia.

This process of understanding begins there with a visit to the Czar's Winter Palace and the Hermitage, which opened in the Czar's place in 1852 as an Imperial Museum. This magnificent complex of buildings, which was once the home of Russian nobility, is today home to 16,000 paintings, 12,000 sculptures and 700,000 archaeological exhibits among many other beautiful artifacts displayed in nine buildings.

As I toured the palace of the Czars of Russia, and looked at the historical context which formed Russia, it became clear that Russia is a much more complex nation than what most of us believe. The preconceptions of the Russian people that we had before arrival to that country fade into nothingness, as we discovered the reality that is both modern and historical Russia.

In touring the Winter Palace, like anyone else would be, I was greatly impressed with the wealth and magnificence of that place. After two days of taking it in, I kept returning to the throne room of the Czars to stare at it intently.

Looking at that chair in which men and women of great power and wealth had sat, I kept thinking of the people, the common men, women and children of Russia whose lives and existence would make all this possible for the nobility to have. Call it my simple, common background if you wish, but my mind always goes to the people, not to the rulers of a country when considering the life, breath and duration of any great nation.

Standing there by the throne chair of the Czar, I could not help but wonder what kind of lives and existence the typical person would have lived in those days that would make it possible for the few to accumulate so very much wealth, for so much in the hands of the few makes for a hard life for the many. It was clear to me that the average person in Russia when the Czar ruled would have never trod where my feet were.

My attitude towards people, people everywhere in my country, is that of the Founding Fathers of the American state, which was, that each man held his rights, liberties, freedom and property by unalienable right, and "that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness," and that all of the above cannot, will not and shall not be abused by any government whatsoever.

Clearly, to me, this was not the case in a Russia ruled by Czars, or certainly not by a communist totalitarian police state. For that matter, neither was it true from the times of the ancient Sumerian Empire to the founding of the American state, which to my great pride as a decedent, changed everything, not only for those of my own country, but indeed for the world at large. For the world would come to know and seek the freedom that was the United States' political background that produced the Declaration of Independence and rebellion to the King of England.

I realized that while Russia had its Czars, Europe had had its kings and nobility, and from time to time its strong men ruling the people under them with an iron fist, as had China its divine Emperors, Egypt its god-Pharaohs, Pre-Columbian America with Inca, Mayan, Aztec etc. dynastic god kings and every other known civilization with one sort or another of potentate determined to crush any of the common people who opposed them throughout history. So, really, the Czarist period of Russian is much more a comment on mankind in general than of Russia in specific.

Even now in my own country, the United States, a political elite of wealth far exceeding any Czar or king of Europe has come to power and is seeking, through their banking/military/industrial/police state combines, to create a ruling oligarchical "nobility" of Bushes, Clintons and others closely related to them by money, power, connection and statist belief.

It occurred to me that I was in modern Russia, the Russia of 2015, and as I was learning that the people there today consider themselves quite free to live their lives and pursue their dreams as they deem fit. The idea of personal liberties and personal responsibility for their lives has taken root, and will never be turned back there again. For once a people have tasted freedom, they will accept nothing else in the future.

British Policing: A Dangerous Monster In Waiting

Brian Gerrish; UK Column; via Mike Clayton

THE 'austerity' banner is assisted by an increasingly poisonous environment within the police itself. An already hard and sometimes dangerous job has become even more pressured, target driven and laden with paper. In recent months evidence has been emerging of a dangerous change in policing both north and south of the border. We ignore these events at our peril.

In Scotland a highly centralised Police Scotland has been formed by merging the original 8 police districts. Under the control of one Chief Constable, Sir Stephen House, Police Scotland has rapidly become a law unto itself. Aside from the fact that there is now no possibility of independent investigation of the police, as Police Scotland will investigate Police Scotland, Chief Constable House has been brazenly arming police on routine patrols across Scotland. When the prevalence of armed offices came to the attention of Members of the Scottish Parliament, House effectively told the elected members that the arming of police was his affair and not theirs.

His alarming dictatorial control then shifted to Scotland's judges as he tried to influence a Sheriff who had deep concerns over police cover-ups. "Scotland's top cop Sir Stephen House slapped down after trying to interfere with the role of sheriffs." Nothing serious there then. Coupled with armed police patrols, police bullying of judges and police cover-ups, we must remember that there is no separation of powers in Scotland. The Cabinet Minister for Justice is just that - a political cabinet minister. He is responsible for the Justice system, security, access to justice, criminal law and procedure, civil law, the police, the legal profession, courts, sentencing, prisons and prisoners, victims and witnesses, reducing re-offending, youth justice, criminal justice social work, community safety, fire and rescue services, anti-social behaviour, drugs policy, violence reduction, anti-sectarianism & liquor licensing.

Since the SNP holds total political power, and under the hand of Nicola Sturgeon it has already been accused of Nazi style control over its Members of the Scottish Parliament, the present SNP Minister for Justice Michael Matheson, holds immense power over all aspects of the law. In a party where criticism of the party policy is barred, Matheson's justice policies, however draconian, are unlikely to be challenged.

So a troika of Nicola Sturgeon, Matheson and House, now control the law and policing in Scotland. They are above the law, control the law and are the law. Aside from armed police that the public do not want, we should also remember that Police Scotland have recently refused to give evidence when a man died in custody. East Germany or the new Scottish model of government? Not so many years ago

British politicians on both sides of the border would have been shouting in horror at such flagrant abuse of power in a third world country let alone in Europe. Now there is a just a deafening silence.

In England the centralisation of the 43 police districts is happening by stealth. The smokescreen is 'austerity' cuts. Westminster would have us believe that the shortage of public money means that every police force must look for savings, and that invariably means amalgamation and privatisation. Devon and Cornwall and Dorset police are already getting into bed together to save money and others are following.

The 'austerity' banner is assisted by an increasingly poisonous environment within the police itself. An already hard and sometimes dangerous job has become even more pressured, target driven and laden with paper. In addition the political interference and meddling is relentless.

Whilst many people know only too well that the Independent Police Complaints Commission is certainly not independent or trustworthy, the 'grouping up' of police districts, means the opportunity for at least a separate police force to conduct an investigation is dwindling fast. In parallel, control of police policy and training has been slipped into the hands of the former Association of Chief Police Officers ACPO, an unaccountable private company. Now replaced by the National Police Chiefs Council NPCC, a decision which ACPO alone made, NPCC is a body of unknown legal standing, and is in any case, buried out of public sight within the Metropolitan Police.

How has it been possible that British Constables, a civilian service and traditionally unarmed apart from batons, have been allowed to fall under the control of their own increasingly unaccountable senior officers? How is it also possible that these same senior officers have taken the British 'bobby' from unarmed with public respect, to paramilitary, black uniformed and heavily armed, with corresponding public concern and fear?

As with Scotland, the visible and increasingly unaccountable power of the police could only have been achieved with the agreement, or perhaps acquiescence of our politicians. If the latter, what has caused them to remain silent as our police have become thuggish black shirts, bristling with automatic weapons, tazers, gas and high tech batons, whilst the tally of deaths in custody has spiraled?

The overwhelming evidence appears to be that the transformation of British police has been achieved with the agreement of our elected political masters. The new policing policy changes have been drifted in backed by Westminster, and more recently a devolved Scottish Parliament, both using an opaque visibility. As Tony Bunyan, Statewatch Editor, commented in 2008: "We can now see a pattern emerging across the EU where people who exercise their democratic right to attend cross border protests are confronted by aggressive para-military policing, surveillance, preventive detention and expulsion.

This is a reflection of the EU's definition of "security" at international events which is now defined as covering both "counter-terrorism" and "public order". Back in 2003 the bilateral exchange of information on "suspected troublemakers" between EU states for international events was agreed. What is proposed now is not the one-off exchange of information related to a specific event but a permanent EU-wide database of suspected "troublemakers", this is utterly unacceptable in a democratic Europe." If the draconian EU policing objectives are the most transparent, a raft of other factors have driven the militarisation and metamorphosis of our 'Bobbies.' Factors influencing police behaviour include dramatic changes in Personality and Values. Upstanding, reliable and trustworthy public servants are out, and low intellect, tattooed, 'just need a job' are in. This aspect is adversely reinforced by the increasing privatisation of police roles by companies such as G4S.

Next to changes in the type of individual policing us, we now have significant changes in police training itself. The caring, protecting public servant training model is out, and the heavyweight armed response against a dangerous and unpredictable public containing would be terrorists is in. Training by knowledgeable and experienced police officers is old hat, and has been replaced by Leadership and Diversity Courses using political charities such as Common Purpose, with applied behavioural psychology and mental reframing by NLP.

Leading Powerful Partnerships for example was a five day police training course backed by both the Home Office and the Scottish Police College. Aimed at senior 'leaders' in the police service and across the public and voluntary sectors... "the programme challenges leaders to step outside their comfort zone, try different approaches and reinvigorate their creative thinking. Participants can expect to return to the workplace with renewed energy and an insight into how they can enable their organisation to work successfully with partners..."

Strange, that at a time when many would say that the police are failing to perform the simple task of protecting the public, and their emphasis seems to increasingly be upon tough public order and counter insurgency measures, they are being 'challenged to step outside their comfort zone, try different approaches and to reinvigorate their creative thinking'.

Noteable also that the 'Leading Powerful Partnerships' training is just that - training to stimulate and facilitate working with partners. Isn't a fundamental principle of good policing that they are independent of others and can investigate without fear or favour? The question is, who decided that the police needed training in partnerships, and why?

Perhaps we get a clue via Dame Shirley Pearce, a Clinical Psychologist and 'Independent' Chair of the College of Policing? Or then again perhaps they really do need her experience with Cambridge and East Anglia Universities, or the Higher Education Funding Council for England, or Health Education England.

A better clue would appear to come from the heavy penetration of the political charity Common Purpose in the police. Also encouraging its 'future leaders' to step outside their comfort zone and lead 'beyond authority', Common Purpose took partnership working to a whole new level. Senior police officers were trained to 'break out of their professional and social 'silos' to lead beyond authority.' Yes that is correct...'lead beyond their professionally given authority', and hence their professional and public accountability.

Leading outside their authority, many senior police officers such as Geoff Dodd Divisional Commander Chief Superintendent and Assistant Chief Constable Steve Smith West Yorkshire police were recruited to Common Purpose's Advisory Boards to work in partnership with individuals from the public, private and voluntary sectors - behind closed doors naturally, and using 'Chatham House' rules to protect the identity of those present. As Maria Wallis former Chief Constable Devon and Cornwall Police said in Common Purpose's own publicity material..."An intensive and fascinating insight into decision making at the top level ...20:20 has helped me to understand the mechanics of policy making in the UK and Europe and how to influence it."

Remembering that the poor performance of Maria Wallis caused mayhem in Devon and Cornwall Constabulary, and great angst amongst her civilian staff, it also ultimately led to her departure. We might wonder if her mind was too focused on the "mechanics of policy making in the UK and Europe and how to influence it" rather than on policing Devon and Cornwall and catching criminals. Since Common Purpose taught Maria about UK and EU policy making, we might perhaps assume that Common Purpose was enacting policy in selecting and training her. We might also assume that Common Purpose was steering her to influence that UK and European policy in their own image. We might also assume that the policy changes included policing policy with a heavy bias towards EU driven policing models, for which Tony Bunyan Statewatch Editor gave warning.

Returning to the question as to whether our politicians knew about the dangerous changes to the face of British policing, of course they knew. The change has been too broad, too deep and too calculated for them not to. We can assume therefore that our politicians north and south of the border have been a key part of the police transformation to a paramilitary status. That the real object of the change has been undeclared to the public and implemented largely by stealth, must surely lead us to believe that our politicians do not have the best interests of the public at heart. Unchecked, the transformation of our police, represents a dangerous monster in waiting.

Ancient Egyptians' Links To Yorkshire Uncovered From Our Leeds Correspondent

DATING back five millennia in a land thousands of miles away, Ancient Egypt could scarcely seem further removed from modern day Yorkshire.

But now the “amazing” discovery that Egyptian mummies were buried near Barnsley nearly 2,000 years ago has been revealed by the curator of a new exhibition which shows the civilisation has closer links with the region than ever previously imagined.

Egyptologist Joann Fletcher, who was born in the town, said: “There is more and more evidence that this was happening and we are undertaking scientific analysis to underpin this really amazing possibility.

“You don’t think 2,000 years ago that Ancient Egyptians came to Yorkshire – but they did.”

The practice of embalming and wrapping the dead in linen was brought to England by the Romans, the University of York professor and BBC TV presenter said.

But analysis of bones found in Yorkshire dating back to this time has found some of the mummies were born and raised in North Africa.

“It really does widen your horizons – in some ways it blows your mind,” she said.

The Romans Are Coming exhibition, which is now open at the new Experience Barnsley museum at the town hall, features an AD 300-400 mummy cast that would have encased a child’s body.

Gypsum plaster was used to cover embalmed, linen-wrapped corpses to protect them from Yorkshire’s damp climate.

“We have certainly got evidence that the Romans in our part of the world were embalming, mummifying and wrapping in linen their dead, according to – we believe – Egyptian customs,” she said.

Examples of this have been discovered in Pollington, a few miles north of Barnsley and Doncaster, as well as in York and Castleford.

And evidence of burial sites around Thurnscoe, near Barnsley, has also recently been found, Dr Fletcher said.

“More work needs to be done because this is just the tip of the iceberg,” she added.

“I’m wanting to put together a comprehensive picture of the whole of the Barnsley area – where people lived, where they farmed, where they worked, where they were buried, where they worshipped.”

She added: “Come back in 10 years and we’ll have a much better idea.

“We’ve only just started looking to be honest, because until very recently who knew these existed?”

Egypt became part of the Roman Empire when Mark Antony and Cleopatra VII – the last pharaoh – were defeated at the Battle of Actium in 31 BC.

Their customs and artefacts were subsequently spread across the world as the Romans conquered more and more nations.

A coin minted in the year of their downfall and found among a treasure hoard in Darfield, near Barnsley, also features in the exhibition.

Dr Fletcher said the discovery of the silver piece, which features an image of Mark Antony and was made just before “one of the greatest battles, the most decisive battles, in world history”, had blown her mind.

“They had minted these coins to pay their legions, to pay for the 500 war ships Cleopatra herself had funded – and of course these coins then end up in Darfield,” she said.

Bronze figurines of Egyptian gods Isis, Serapis and Apis discovered in the region also feature in the exhibition alongside a collection of Roman pottery, jewellery, clothing and coins.

It is the first time the artefacts from the Barnsley area – many of which were being stored at museums in Doncaster, Sheffield and beyond – have been brought together.

“It is a very, very special exhibition,” said Dr Fletcher, who said there had largely been “tumbleweed” in South Yorkshire when it came to the history of Roman Britain until now.

“It’s the first of its kind in this wonderful museum and it’s basically the first of many temporary exhibitions looking at the wealth of artefacts in Barnsley.

“We have been able to look at the evidence and put it on the map for the first time.”

Stingray Fake Phone Masts Placed Around London To Listen In On Calls

Andrew Griffin; Independent; via Nathon Allonby

MORE THAN 20 fake phone towers, which indiscriminately Hoover up information from phones, have been found active in London. The controversial technology is supposedly used to catch the communications of criminals, by intercepting information on its way to the network. But they’re unable to distinguish between the phones of criminals and everyone else, meaning that they pick up all of the information that is sent through them.

The Stingrays, also known as IMSI catchers, work by tricking phones into think that they’re phone masts. When phones connect to them, they are able to pick up all of the data that is flowing through them, but the people using them would have no idea that it is happening.

Police around the world are thought to be using the technology. But this is the first time that they have been found in the UK. The Metropolitan Police was reported in 2009 to have bought some Stingrays, and in November the Times said that the police had started using them. But Sky News’s investigation is the first evidence of their use.

The Met would not confirm or deny that it was using the technology, telling Sky News that "the only people who benefit are the other side, and I see no reason in giving away that sort of thing".

The director-general of the National Crime Agency told Sky News: "Frankly, some of what we need to do is intrusive, it is uncomfortable, and the important thing is we set that out openly and recognise there are difficult choices to be made."

But the technology can also be bought easily and relatively cheaply on the internet, meaning that some or all of the use found by Sky News could be from criminals or other non-governmental people. "When will Police stop pretending IMSI catchers don't exist?" said Eric King, deputy director of Privacy International. "The spying tool has featured in everything from 'The Wire' to 'Zero Dark Thirty'. Companies are selling them on the grey market to anyone who can pay, "The only thing we don't know about them, is what the police are doing to protect people from their use by criminals, and when they use them, what legal frameworks ensures they're properly used?"

Sky News located the masts using technology made by GMSK Cryptophone, a German security company. The organisation found the more than 20 fake towers in three weeks of use.

Met Police Spends Millions Of Pounds On Secret Aircraft - Nathan Allonby

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE has secret spy planes capable of eavesdropping on mobile phone calls from the sky.

The existence of the fleet of planes - each costing at least £3 million to purchase and hundreds of thousands more to operate - has never been publicly disclosed. The police have been using the planes since at least 1997. The disclosure of the spending, which is not detailed in official accounts, comes as the police face 20 per cent cuts in their budget, creating fears that hundreds of support staff will lose their jobs and the number of officers reduced.

Despite the cuts the Met's secret fixed wing aircraft fleet is still flying regular sorties over London from a base at Farnborough airfield, in Hampshire. The planes have apparently been fitted with secret surveillance equipment capable of intercepting mobile phone calls or eavesdropping on conversations.

They are understood to be similar to surveillance planes available to MI5 which have been used in anti-terrorism operations and were used to help West Midlands Police track suspects connected to a plot to kidnap and behead a British Muslim soldier.

One of the planes is a Cessna F04, which can carry up to 14 passengers or be fitted with specially integrated patrol mission packs. We have been asked not to disclose full details of the aircraft on security grounds. The twin engine craft are operated separately from the Met's Air Support Unit which has three helicopters and flies hundreds of hours a month in support of police operations around the capital at a cost of £3 million a year.

Last week a Metropolitan Police spokesman refused to discuss its use of the fixed wing aircraft but insisted it has gone through a "full" procurement process. However members of the Metropolitan Police Authority, which scrutinises the force's spending said they had never been told of the aircraft.

Metropolitan Police Authority member James Cleverly said he was totally unaware that the Met had any fixed wing aircraft. Mr Cleverly, who also sits on the authority's counter terrorism and protective services committee, which examines the force's covert work, said: "This is not something that I have been made aware of or have had the opportunity to scrutinise. In the light of the tight financial situation we are facing and the cuts being imposed on the police service it is imperative that we examine any assets that could be construed as a 'luxury'. I would expect full disclosure of details of this to the MPA to enable us to examine whether it represents good value for money for the police service."
